+ Brent Weiss of Crookston leads the NWAC rushing figures with 164 yards in two games, followed by Leonard with 154 and Craig Erhart of Bemidji with 151. Erhart has averaged 15.1 yards in 10 carries while Weiss has a 5.1 average on 32 tries and Leonard stands at 9.6 on 16 trips.

+ Rob Egersdorf of Bemidji tops the NWAC passing yardage charts with 91 yards on three completions in five attempts. Todd Selk of East Grand Forks has completed three of nine passes for 88 yards.

+ Erhart has caught two passed for a NWAC-high 69 yards.

+ Boe is the league's top punter, averaging 34 yards in five punts.

+ Bill Jury of Thief River Falls heads the punt return yardage figures with five returns for 59 yards and an 11.8-yard average.

+ Dave Swanberg of East Grand Forks has 140 yards on four kickoff returns for a 35-yard average.

Registration Is Underway For PP&K Event

Registration has begun for the 1979 punt, pass and kick football competition in the showroom of Tunberg Motor Co. in Thief River Falls. In making the announcement, Wally Tunberg said, "We're looking forward to a big local PP&K competition in Thief River Falls. We hope all the youngster, 8 through 13 years of age, in this area will come in to register and take part."

He pointed out that PP&K — throughout its six levels of competition — is free of any charge, and that youngsters need only have a parent or guardian accompany them to the showroom to register.

"Our competition here will have first, second and third place trophies for contestants in each of the six age groups, or 18 trophies in all," said Tunberg. "Increasing each entrant's chances of winning is the fact that youngsters compete only against others in their own age group."

"Of course, there is no body contact in PP&K. It's punting, passing and place-kicking for distance and points, just as the name says. First place winners in each age group in our competition will go on to the zone competition. And from there, top winners go on up the ladder through district, area, division and national finals," he said.

Waterfowl Workshop Here . . .

Hunter Education Programs Planned

Sportsmen, biologists, researchers and outdoor users this fall will draw a bead on the problems and frustrations that face today's sportsmen. A variety of special interest clinics, seminars and 12-16 hour classes will be conducted by the Department of Natural Resources this fall throughout the state.

Some of the topics dealt with will be wildlife management, laws and regulations, ethics, species identification and habitat needs. Plus, special skill will be offered in finding your way with map and compass, tracking, dog care, decoy placement, duck and goose calling, survival and first aid.

The list goes on and will be somewhat different in each area of Minnesota, depending on that area's concerns and priorities.

A waterfowl hunting workshop is scheduled to be held Monday in Thief River Falls, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at the Franklin middle school.

All outdoor users are urged to attend. Even for the most avid sportsman, it will be their chance to share with those less fortunate and a wonderful extension of your favorite pastime.

Local resource people are used as much as possible in order to keep on top of local areas of concern.

Many thanks go to Les Kouba for donating a limited edition print (Mallards Arriving), to be given to each person successfully completing one of the 12-16 hour classes and to those people who help.

The limited edition will also be used as a door prize where clinics and seminars are held, as long as supplies last.

In some areas a donation will be charged for registration at clinics. These proceeds will go toward the development of teaching units for the new adult hunter education program by the environmental sciences foundation, Inc.

If you are already concerned about the future of hunting and would like to see it as a respectable sport in the eyes of all Americans, then lets all chip in, says the DNR.

For details on all courses, clinics and classes, write to Dick Anderson, Hunter Education Coordinator for the Minnesota Dept. of Natural Resources, 316 No. - Oak St. Fergus Falls, Minnesota 56537.

Enforcement agents of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources recently broke an organized poaching ring that killed and marketed more than 100,000 ducks, geese, deer, squirrels, rabbits, fox, fish and other animals in the last few years.

Power Plants Have Impact On Wildlife

As America's energy demands become critical, what effects will be placed on our fish and wildlife resources?

Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) is currently wrestling with this question. Especially in regards to the construction, location and operation of power plants.

According to Larry Sisk, senior staff biologist for the service. "The impacts from power plants on larval and young fish are immense."

As power plants intake tremendous amounts of water for cooling, they are not very selective. "There is a significant loss of fish; power plants could possibly wipe out an entire year class of fish," Sisk added. "The power plant intakes act like giant fish traps, and they can limit the fishery resource within the area of the plant."

Under the provisions of the fish and wildlife coordination act and the federal water pollution control act, the FWS provides input regarding the influence of power plants on fishery resources. The FWS reviews power plant study documents to determine if power companies have assessed fishery resources and potential impacts to them. FWS authorities are concerned that power plants meet acceptable criteria for thermal discharge and that the power companies have demonstrated environmental conscious and concern in the location, design, and operation of their projects.

The FWS recognizes the growing need and importance of energy and is only concerned that proper standards be met to safeguard fish and wildlife resources.

To review industry studies the FWS is contracting with indepepdent environmental consultants to determine the overall effects of power plants on fishery resources in the Great Lakes states. There is some preliminary indication that impacts have been improperly assessed by power companies, simply because sampling techniques, timing and data collection have been quite variable.

The FWS contract currently under way will give the agency a better system to establish review critieria in order to provide power companies with valuable assistance in addressing fishery matters.

FWS will be working closely with the environmental protection agency.

Laws Assist Handicap Who Wish To Hunt

Many handicapped persons are unaware that there are some state laws designed to make it easier for them to participate in recreational hunting.

Dick Tarte, director of enforcement for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, said the DNR receives numerous calls every fall from persons who have physical problems but love to hunt.

He said there are three state laws concerning handicapped hunters and summarized them as follows:

+Local conservation officers can issue special permits to shoot or hunt from a standing vehicle to licensed hunters who are physically unable to walk with or without crutches, braces or other mechanical support because of a temporary or permanent disability.

There is no charge for this permit, said Tarte, but hunters are required to have the appropriate hunting license (small game or big game).

+Tarte said hunters using handguns under the above provision are restricted to calibers .357, .41 and .44 magnum for any animal during the deer and moose season in any to the taking of deer and moose. The case length of the bullet must be at least 1.285 inches. When and where the deer or moose season is not open, hunters unable to use shoulder fired guns and having a doctor's statement may take small game or unprotected species with smaller caliber handguns.

Tarte said handicapped hunters who are still unsure about some of the fine points of the regulations should contact their local conservation officer.

DNR To Stage Public Meetings To Discuss Water Allocations

Proposed standards and criteria for the regulation, conservation and allocation of state waters will be the subject of seven public informational meetings scheduled by the Department of Natural Resources during October.

The proposed rules for water appropriation are required by state law.

Included will be proposed guidelines for development of management plans for water and related land resources.

After reviewing public reaction to the proposed standards and guidelines two public hearings will be held, probably in December, to present the final draft rules.

Schedule of public includes stops at Itasca community college in Grand Rapids Oct. 1; University of Minnesota agricultural research center in Crookston Oct. 2; Fergus Falls community college Oct. 3; Southwest State University in Marshall Oct. 4; Albert Lea technical vocational institute Oct. 9; St. Cloud State University, Oct. 10; and the Capitol complex in St. Paul Oct. 11.

All meetings with the exception of the St. Paul site, will start at 7 p.m. St. Paul meeting starts at 1 p.m.

Copies of the proposed draft rules and further information on the rules and the public meeting may be obtained by writing to Hedia Rieke, Supervisor, Water Appropriations Unit, Division of Waters, Minnesota DNR, 3rd Floor Space Center Building, 444 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55101.

JEWELS FOR THOUGHT
BY PHIL HESS

Scientists think the sea may serve as a future source of fuel. We agree, especially if we can find a way to recover all the oil that's been spilled into it.

The only surefire diet is in these four words: "No more, thank you."

One think about the way youngsters dress today: they don't have to get into their old clothes when they come home from school.

Sign outside mission house: "First come, first saved."

First it was a gas shortage . . . now it's a DOLLAR shortage to buy gas!

Remember our Annual Noritake China SALE. Save 20% on sets, place settings, and serving pieces.

Jackie Thune also participated in the lamb lead project where a 4-Her models a garment made out of wool while showing the lamb.

HARVESTING of research plots is shown as it was being done on the Kenneth Sanders farm. Special binder manufactured in Japan was purchased from funds provided by the Minnesota wheat research and promotion council to harvest the plots.

Four Fertilizer Research Plots Being Harvested

Four farmers in Pennington county are cooperating in a fertilizer research program on wheat. The wheat fertilizer research project being sponsored by the University of Minnesota agricultural extension service, the agricultural experiment station and Minnesota Wheat Growers, is studying the effect of broadcast versus grain drill applied phosphorus and potash on yields and quality of hard red spring wheat.

Pennington county farmers cooperating in the project are Clyde Christensen, Kenneth Sanders, Leonard Skaar and Everett Flesche.

"Experiment station research findings frequently require some adjusting to field conditions on commercial farms," states county extension director Terry Courneya. "The soil type variations, rainfall pattern differences and other variables that are present when research is distributed throughout a region tend to add a practical dimension to the findings," Courneya stated. "Farmers are less inclined to question the creditability of research findings when they occur in their neighborhood."

Randy Eckstein Finishes Army Training In GA.

National guard Pvt. Randy Eckstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Eckstein, Red Lake Falls, recently completed advanced individual training at Fort Benning, GA.

During the course, students received training which qualified them as light-weapons infantrymen and as indirect fire crewmen in a rifle or mortar squad.

Instruction included weapons qualifications, squad tactics, patrolling, landmine warfare, field communications and combat operations.

State Bikeway Program Aided By $4 Million

A $4 million appropriation from the 1979 Minnesota legislature extends a bikeway development program that has added over 400 miles of paved bikeways around the state in the last two years, according to commissioner Richard P. Braun, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

New monies ensure the completion of a safe and convenient bikeways network initiated in 1977 with $3.8 million from the Minnesota outdoor recreation act and $1 million in direct appropriations from the state, says Braun.

Of that total, $2.1 million was allocated to a bikeways grant program for local units of government and $1.7 million was designated for trunk highway bikeway projects, he says.

Those funds have been spent, except for $350,000, in over 120 projects statewide at a cost of $3.1 million, according to a recently released status report. Over $1,116,000 has been earmarked for projects currently in the approval process. That total, says Braun, does not refelct an additional 25 per cent in matching funds paid by local units of government for those projects funded by the grant program.

"We had many, many more applications than we could accept," Braun says, "so we have had to approve only those projects that best met criteria of safety, traffic and system continuity."

"There's still much more that can be done, especially in the urban areas where a greater percentage of applications were turned down for lack of funds."

In varying stages of completion are 356 miles of highway shoulder bikeways and 40 miles of off-road bikeways, the report indicates. Another 12miles required only signs or striping on existing roads.

Nine per cent or $374,306 was spent in administering the program, including the road information system-based computer program and a bikeways registry (maps). Registry, which will consist of 54 maps, offers comprehensive information on road characteristics and off-road bikeways as well as natural, cultural and historical information. Eight metro-area maps are available to the public at this time with eight additional maps currently in production and scheduled for release in the near future.

"The new funding comes at a time when the momentum of an already successful program promises to carry us through to further development of a statewide bikeways network," says Braun.

To Show Slides At Oak Ridge

Jim Moe will show slides taken during his trip to Washington, D.C., for the 4-H citizenship short course at a program to be presented Saturday, September 22, at 8 p.m. in Oak Ridge Lutheran church. The event is being sponsored by the Luther league and will include musical numbers and follow a box supper in which the ladies of the area are invited to participate and at which Andy Anderson will serve as auctioneer. The supper will start at 6 p.m.

Quie Proposes Home Heating Help Program

Governor Al Quie has proposed a four-point, $22.5 million dollar program to help Minnesotans facing the greatest home heating costs. The program combines federal, state and county funding.

Quie said the proposal, which he made public at a meeting with legislative leaders and administration officials, addresses the problems of energy supply, conservation, weatherization and financial assistance.

Advantage of this proposal, developed after extensive public discussion, is that it will meet the full energy requirements of those with greatest need, he said. Other proposals, in his opinion, do not do that.

A key part of his program, the governor said, is identifying and helping those Minnesotans with the greatest need for financial assistance. The governor said he would rely on community action programs, county welfare departments and private organizations, such as churches, to identify eligible people.

"Solving the home heating oil problem is everyone's business," he said.

Another key element of the governor's program includes $6.5 million in temporary crisis funding. This is in addition to $16 million in temporary crisis funding. This is in addition to $16 million in federal crisis intervention funds.

Quie said the temporary crisis funding would result from a $700,000 appropriation which will come from the general fund contingency account. This will enable the state to qualify for $1.9 million in additional federal funds. $2.2 million will come from existing appropriations with the state department of welfare. The remainder will come from county welfare and social services departments.

Proceedings Change In Divorce Court

Editor's Note: The following is prepared by the court information office of the Minnesota supreme court.

A television show of the '50's and '60's was set in a fictional courtroom. It highlighted persons sobbing uncontrollably on the witness stand, parties shouting furiously as the judge banged the gavel, and all the drama of an afternoon soap opera. The show, "Divorce Court," purported to show real-life tales of what happens in a marriage break-up, but actual court proceedings do not now resemble that television series, if they ever did.

In fact, the 18,000 proceedings in Minnesota annually are not even called "divorce" anymore, but rather, "dissolution of marriage". And divorce court is "family court" now, a special division of either the district or county court. The old "grounds" for divorce are outdated — the only reason that need be stated for a dissolution in Minnesota is an "irretrievable breakdown" in the marriage relationship.

While divorce is undeniably often a personally traumatizing event, in most cases today the parties to a dissolution work out an agreement that later becomes part of the court's order. The dissolution centers on dividing the property and assets that have accumulated during the marriage and in establishing a satisfactory way of handling the custody and care of minor children.

In the common case, one marriage partner or attorney prepares a petition for dissolution of the marriage. The petitioner must have been a resident of Minnesota for six months before the action can be begun. The petition is ordinarily filed in the county in which the petitioner lives, and the petitioning spouse asks for the property and children to be allocated in the way he or she wishes the court to act.

The petition is then served upon, or personally delivered to, the other spouse, called the respondent. The respondent files a document — an answer — stating his or her view of the case.

In some cases, the parties will go to court soon after the petition is filed for a "temporary hearing." In the temporary hearing, the judge or referee will decide who should have temporary custody of the children, who will use the house or other property, until these matters are resolved finally by the decree of dissolution. One spouse can be ordered to move out of the couple's residence. In addition, a temporary restraining order can be issued, ordering the parties not to harass, harm or molest one another. Further hearings may be held later if problems arise.

In cases where one party does not file a response, the dissolution can be granted by "default" — without the non-responding spouse's active involvement.

In the majority of cases, the husband and wife and their attorneys negotiate an agreement on how to divide the property and the care of the children. This is incorporated into a document, called a stipulation. The stipulation is presented to the judge, and it becomes part of the final order of the court, the judgment and decree.

In many counties, there is a waiting period — up to three months — before the dissolution can be final. Then the final hearing is held. The judgment and decree, when granted, will not only dissolve the marriage bonds, but will handle the "side effects," as well.

Personal belongings, real estate, bank accounts and property are divided. Responsibility for debts is assigned. Custody of children is awarded, and child support and visitation established for the non-custodial parent. Other important matters are decided — taxes, pensions, alimony, health and life insurance are often touched in the final decree.

In most cases, the dissolution hearing is short and informal, before a judge or referee. Where the parties are in substantial disagreement, for example over child costody, a trial will be held. The trial is generally before a judge, without a jury. In a case of determining child custody, the judge will look at what will be best for the child — which parent can provide the most stable environment, good schooling and is mentally healthy and fit. Children over the age of 13 can express their preferences to the judge, and these often weigh heavily in the decision.

Following the divorce, certain post-dissolution problems may arise — in child support or visitation, for example — requiring a trip back to the court. An old post-divorce waiting period before remarriage, though, has been removed under recent legislation, so that a person can remarry without delay.

While the stress surrounding a family break-up is great, and resolving some of the difficult issues that arise is often not easy, few cases reach the heated atmosphere of the "divorce Court" of television fame. Getting divorced is still harder than getting married, but most of the state's approximately 18,000 annual dissolutions proceed through the courts in an orderly fashion without undue trauma.

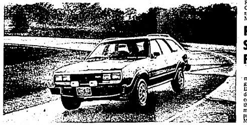
4WD Eagle Another AMC First



American Motors, which pioneered the U. S. compact car in the 1950's and introduced the first domestic subcompact in 1970, has registered another first with its Eagle four-wheel-drive automobile for 1980. Eagle is a totally new dimension in the U. S. automotive field — a marriage of the luxury and convenience of a compact car and the superior traction and handling characteristics inherent in four-wheel-drive vehicles. Eagle is offered in three body styles—2-door and 4-door sedan and 4-door wagon (shown above). It is targeted for buyers who want the maximum safety and security afforded by four-wheel-drive.

State Troopers Run In Brain Research Relay

Twenty-five Minnesota state troopers will be viving up their patrol cars and reporting to foot-power while they participate in a 5,000-mile brain research relay run on October 4-7, 1979, according to Chief James C. Crawford, department of public safety.

The marathon run is being stagged by approximately 1,500 troopers from 20 states and the District of Columbia to raise money for the Doreen Grace brain facility, the country's first brain research center.

Official run began on September 1 in Phoenix, Ariz. and will finish on November 1 in New Seabury, Mass. the future building site of the Gray facility.

"The troopers who volunteered will be running a total of 275 miles acorss the state beginning at 7:30 a.m on the Red River bridge, East Grand Forks on October 4, and continuing on highway 2 ending in Superior, Wisc.," said Sergeant chuck Jones, project coordinator for Minnesota. "We hope our participation in the relay will help establish a central facility for brain research and innovative brain rehabilitation."

Seventy to 80-miles will be covered per day, and as each man completes a dive-mile segment, he will pass a baton on to the next runner. During the entire 10-hour runing day a mobile home will travel in front of the runners and a van will follow behind. "The troopers are running because of a personal commitment to helping others," said Jones, "and in respect for Trooper Robert Stotts of Roseau who recently underwent brain surgery."

Massachusetts state police are the main sponsors of the event and will be running the relay in states that cannot provide their own officers.

Doreen Grace was a Massachusetts resident who died at the age of 21 of herpes simplex encephalitis, a virus with no known cure.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the Doreen Grace Fund may co tact Sergeant Chuck Jones, 107 Transportation Building, St. Paul, MN 55155 (612) 296-6838.

Rural Council Seeks Projects For Funding

Minnesota rural development council will be accepting grant proposals until December 1 for rural demonstration projects. The council is seeking projects that will illustrate innovative methods of addressing problems affecting rural Minnesota residents and especially encourages project which recognize the improtance of women in rural commu ities and which help address problems of particular concern to rural women.

In general, the council is interested in supporting projects which:

+ Are designed to benefit farm families;
+ Demonstrate innovative and effective ways to resolving rural problems;
+ Have an area, regional or statewide impact;
+ Use grant funds as seed money to leverage other local, private or public resources;
+ Have at least 20 per cent of the total project cost provided for by local cash or in-kind contributions;
+ Involve citizen participation and cooperation among other institutions and organizations;
+ Do not use grand funds for physical construction or improvements of existing facilities;
+ Have been reviewed and rated highly by the regional development commission.

The council is not interested in projects which have already progressed beyond the demonstration phase or which duplicate or are substantially similar to other demonstration efforts already being made with the state.

Of the 13 applications submitted during the last round of funding, seven projects have been recommended for funding. The projects ranged from approximately $11,000 to $50,000. Examples of projects submitted included an adult poster care project, critical care nursing education in the rural areas, energy efficient production of greenhouse vegetables, expansion of broadcast coverage to rural areas, cooperative dining projects and rural home renovation.

Potential applicants should contact the executive director of the rural development council as soon as possible so he has an opportunity to work with the applicants before a final proposal is submitted. Call (612) 296-2305 at Crookston.

THE FOREST AND YOU

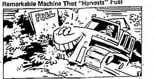
"Jaws III": The Remarkable Machine That "Harvests" Fuel

A biomass harvesting machine capable of producing one to 15 tons of biomass fuel per acre from otherwise useless brush among the pine trees on Southern flatlands was unveiled by Georgia-Pacific Corp. (G-P). This fuel is equal to from 432 to 1,088 gallons of fuel oil an hour, net after machine diesel consumption.

The 17-ton prototype is composed of two track-mounted sections, the forward portion carrying the driver and a cutting-chipping head that consumes brush and weed trees up to eight inches in diameter. Chips are blown into a hopper behind the operator's cab.

In one hour, "Jaws III" can produce between six and 15 tons of fuel!

The second section is the power unit, carrying a 430-horsepower diesel engine. In spite of the total weight, pressure on the ground is only 7-1/2 pounds per square inch. The hopper carries three tons of chips and tips to the side to unload them for transportation as fuel for G-P plants. The unit will produce in one hour about six tons of fuel and, in some instances, up to 15 tons.



This "energy machine"—"Jaws III"—is turning trash brush into a sorely needed "cash crop"—fuel!

Nicknamed "Jaws III" by some of those experimenting with the new energy machine can keep down trash brush. This helps speed growth of the desirable native Southern pine by giving it more nutrition, water and light. Brush is harvested from each acre about every three years. It also can prepare now-wasted areas for new pine forests.

Believed to be the first of its kind, it is the result of three years' work and innovation. When field-testing and adjustments are completed, G-P plans to build a series for use on its own lands, and also for sale to other landowners.

"Jaws" is the latest in a list of G-P environmental innovations that include burning dust for fuel to replace critical fuels, creating the blue-haze controls for veneer dryers that also make a fuel, testing old tires and light garbage for fuel supplements, adapting carbon monoxide and waste hydrogen gases for fuel, creating heat transfers, enclosed water and chemical systems, and other progressive processes. Last year the company won a Keep America Beautiful award for its efforts to turn pollutants into national benefits.

Dean Hahn of Warroad was a Sunday afternoon visitor at the Laurel Kline home. Rose Mary Hahn of Crookston visited Klines Saturday forenoon.

The senior citizens had a good day when they met on Thursday, Sept. 6. There were 21 that registered. Our visitors were Grace Boen, Lydia Underberg, Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Lindgren, Violet Erickson and Albin Wikholm, all of Karlstad, Elsie Kim*brough, Helen and Martin* Eskildsen and Ida Bruce.

We were busy pulling fluff and filled bed pillows, sewing up ends to finish more pairs. We sell so many pairs of pillows it keeps us busy to keep ahead.

Mildred sewed on quilt blocks and Polly pressed them. The center is making a quilt for Ruth Harper at present.

Polly and Wendell Lindgren received door prizes that Mabel gave, Amanda received the one Sarah gave, Anna B. received the one donated by Irene and Mabel won the one Elsie Kimbrough brought.

Irene was hostess Thursday.

Do You Value Your Trees And Shrubs?

By Dexter D. MacBride, ASA
Executive Vice President
American Society of Appraisers

Your trees, shrubs and other landscape plants are a valuable investment — an investment that grows. They contribute to the value of your property. As a homeowner you may not realize that, if these items are damaged or destroyed through a casualty event, you may be eligible to collect a casualty loss from an insurance company or deduct the loss from your federal income taxes. Generally, the damage must have been caused by an identifiable event of sudden, unexpected or unusual nature.

For the purposes of tax claims this can include mishaps that might come with wind or ice storms, lightning or floods, accidents such as a car running into a tree, or a wide range of other occurrences.

Most insurance policies, however, are somewhat more restrictive, and contain a provision that the company will be liable for loss to trees, shrubs, plants and lawns when loss is caused by fire, lightning, explosion, riot, civic commotion, malicious mischief, theft, aircraft, or vehicle not operated by an occupant of the premises.

In other words, if your trees or landscape plants suffer a casualty, avenues that may be open to you for the recovery of their financial worth are: Insurance Coverage, Income Tax Deduction, or Civil Damage Claim.

What are the steps you should take for recovery if you sustain such a loss?

1. An important step is to take pictures of your landscape plantings, now, while they are healthy.

2. Then, if a casualty occurs, take others immediately following the damage. These "before and after" photographs will be important evidence of the loss.

3. Consult your insurance policy to determine the amount and kind of coverage it provides. If you are still not sure whether or not your specific damage is included, contact your insurance agency or representative.

4. If the casualty is covered by insurance, have your agent arrange for an appraisal to be made by a competent tree or landscape professional.

5. If the casualty loss is not covered by your homeowners' insurance, or the amount of the loss is greater than the maximum provided in your policy, U.S. treasury regulations permit a tax deduction for non-business casualty losses to landscape trees and shrubs.

6. When the casualty results from action by an outside party, compensation is often available from the responsible individual, corporation or governmental agency. Legal counsel may be needed, and a competent appraisal by a professional tree or landscape consultant will be critical to establish the full extent of the loss.

The Busy Life

Is there anyone so busy as a ten-year-old?

Our Joey isn't in this picture. Called to the phone, you know! Something extremely important like the Cub Scout picnic or the Little League meeting. Decisions that can't wait . . . even for homework. Or so we are told!

But if you'll note the items on Joey's desk you'll see that FAITH hasn't been crowded out of our boy's busy life. Sunday School is just one of his pressing weekly "appointments." But it is one that has as prominent place in his growing up as it has on his desk.

And don't think it is merely parental pride when I tell you that Joey is already revealing some fine traits of Christian character in his attitude toward responsibilities — and toward people. His mother and I planned it that way when we made the Church an important part of our own lives.

OSHA Adopts New Inspection Plan

U.S. department of labor has strengthened worker protection against job hazards through improved procedures for handling worker safety and health complaints. The improvements will concentrate inspection resources on the gravest workplace danger areas.

"For the past two years, OSHA's goal has been to focus agency resources on the most hazardous workplaces and the most serious hazards," states assistant secretary of labor for occupational safety and health Eula Bingham.

Under the new procedures, effective September 1, "a more effective and expeditious investigation of high hazard complaints" will take place based on "effective, professional screening and evaluation. . .to determine the nature and severity of the alleged hazard," Dr. Bingham said.

At the same time she emphasized that OSHA not only continues its strong belief in a worker's right to file a complaint about workplace hazards but also sees no decrease in the importance of worker complaints as a major source of information on such hazards.

Better management of inspection resources not only will provide improved worker protection by targeting inspections at workplaces with serious hazards but also will help businesses — especially small businesses — by relieving them of most inspections on complaints of less serious nature, she said.

The new directive replaces OSHA's program directive of Dec. 1, 1977, which established a policy of conducting inspections in response to substantially all formal and non-formal complaints. The policy resulted in a backlog of complaints, many of which were not dealing with serious hazards, often diverting scarce OSHA resources from inspection sites with such hazards.

The new directive also addresses the same issues brought out in a General Accounting Office report to Congress April 9 which said that comparatively few complained of hazards resulted in finding of serious violations of OSHA standards and that a balancing of OSHA's priorities was needed.

All compalints will be thoroughly evaluated regardless of their sources, the method of receipt, or whether they are formal (written by employee or representative) or non-formal. The screening mechanism will enable the agency to respond promptly to serious hazards and to eliminate many less serious hazards without inspection.

The new directive also stresses that the anonymity of the complainant will remain protected if requested.

Highlights of the directive call for:

—Careful use of investigative techniques to evaluate all complaints by designated supervisors.

—Workplace inspection of all formal complaints where there are "reasonable grounds to believe" that a violation or danger exists.

—Priorities for responding to formal complaints with an investigation within 24 hours for an imminent danger situation, with three working days for those concerning serious hazards, and within 20 working days for other conditions.

—No inspection will be conducted when "reasonable grounds," based on statutory criteria, cannot be established during the evaluation of formal complaints that a violation or danger exists; when the complaint has no bearing on or immediate relationship to safety or health; when a recent inspection or other evidence leads the area director to believe the hazard is not present or has been abated; or when the complaint does not fall under OSHA's jurisdiction. In such cases, the complainant will be notified in writing of the disposition.

—New procedures for dealing with non-formal complaints. Each such complaint will be thoroughly evaluated. When evaluation reveals imminent danger of extremely serious hazards, inspections will be initiated within 24 hours.

—When the evaluation of non-formal complaints indicates the need for response (other than inspection of imminent danger and extremely serious hazards), the area director will notify the employer in writing of the alleged hazard and the need to take appropriate action. These cases will be closed when OSHA receives satisfactory assurances from the employer that action has been taken. The complainant will be notified of the results by OSHA. Failure of the employer to respond or to provide satisfactory assurances will trigger an inspection. In addition, one in ten non-formal complaints will be scheduled randomly for follow-up inspection to verify the employer's action.

—Non-formal complaint cases that do not establish "reasonable grounds," that have no bearing on safety and health, or that are not under OSHA's jurisdiction will be closed without further action, and the complainant will be notified.

—In low hazard industries, generally only the working conditions identified in the complaint will be investigated. When a complaint comes from a worker in a high hazard industry, usually the entire facility will be inspected.

Since 1928, when national statistics first became available, nearly one-half million pedestrains have died in traffic accidents.

CAR CARE CORNER

Tips To Add Safety And Save You Money

Ways To Save On Gas

If the high cost of gasoline concerns you, you'll be glad to know you may improve your mileage by about 25 percent.

How? With good car maintenance and proper driving techniques. Here are some tips from car-care experts:

1. Buy radial tires and keep them inflated in accordance with the manufacturer's recommendations.
2. Consult your auto manual or a mechanic you trust about how often you need a tune-up. Follow a regular tune-up schedule.
3. Change your oil and oil filter regularly. Use a multi-grade motor oil.
4. Install an efficient carburetor such as an ECONOMASTER brand carburetor designed by Holley to offer improved fuel economy.
5. Keep your wheels properly aligned.
6. Drive sensibly. Too-fast starts and stops can waste gallons of gas, as can prolonged gear changes. Most cars get their best mileage at 35 mph, but you should drive 50 or 55 on the highway. Such driving can cut fuel bills nine percent.

For a free pamphlet outlining carburetor engineering refinements, "Fuel Economy You Can Bank On," write to Dept. N, P.O. Box 3683, Center Line, Michigan 48015.

Another Option Available For Oats Growers

Because the price farmers are receiving for oats has fallen below the U.S. department of agriculture's release level for grain in the farmer-owned reserve, Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland has decided to allow oat farmers who have not yet redeemed their loans to place their grain in the reserve once again. Storage payments would resume but re-entered grain would not be eligible for redemption until the price reaches the release level.

"Farmers whose reserve loans have been called are offered the option to re-enter the reserve if the national average market price of the commodity falls below the release level," Bergland said. "This procedure will be available for barley (which has also been called) or any other called reserve commodity if the five-day or national average price subsequently falls below the release level," he said.

"Intent of the reserve is to allow farmers to hold their stocks and to take advantage of higher market prices," Bergland said.

On June 26 the price farmers received for oats reached the department's "call" level of $1.44 per bushel. This meant farmers had 30 days to redeem their Commodity Credit corporation loans, and remove their oats from the reserve. However, farmers in some areas were granted a delay in redeeming their loans because the department determined that strikes and transportation snarls had caused farmers difficulty in getting their grain to market.

On August 2, the five-day average price received by farmers for oats was $1.13. With prices at this level, Bergland said he will allow farmers who have not yet redeemed their loans to re-enter the reserve, should they wish.

There have been instances where transportation and warehousing difficulties have disrupted orderly marketing. Bergland said the added option of reserve re-entry is being offered to producers to protect them from having to satisfy the loan and to enable them to continue earning storage payments when prices have dropped drastically.

Producers with called reserve loans now have four options: (1) Redeem their loans; (2) forfeit their oats to the CCC; (3) take advantage of the extended 30-day settlement period where applicable in areas where orderly marketing is disrupted; or (4) re-enter the reserve if the price falls below the release level.

Terms and conditions of the reserve are the same as when the commodity was first put in the reserve.

Suggested New Coins

Columnist Andy Smith of the Gannett newspapers proposes several new coins to fit the dynamic times we live in. Here are some of the coins he suggests for consideration:

The Jimmy Carter coin — This coin, portraying Jimmy on one side and a large question mark on the other with the motto "Trust Me," is minted anywhere but in Washington, D.C. It starts out being worth 50 cents, and the longer you hang on to it, the less it buys.

The coin also loses its shine very quickly and after about a week you wonder what on earth it's doing in your pocket. It's most useful for throwing into the collection box after a long sermon or for making contributions to the Democratic party.

The Ralph Nader coin — This coin has Ralph on one side and a smashed Corvair on the other with the motto "You Can't Be Too Careful." The coin is about the size of a softball, so children won't swallow it, and made of foam rubber so no one can fall on it and inadvertently hurt themselves.

The coin, worth six cents, will be available to the public as soon as it has been approved by the National Safety council, the American Cancer society and the Sierra club. It can't be used to buy anything that might be dangerous.

The Richard Nixon coin — This coin has crooked edges and features Nixon on one side and Checkers on the other with the motto Nixon himself made famous: "I Am Not A Crook." This coin used to be worth something, but is not actually legal tender any more. Sometimes you can fool someone into accepting one if you give it to them quickly and keep your thumb over the front.

The Jerry Brown coin — This exciting new coin features the California governor in a two-faced portrait, each head facing in one direction with the motto "Go With The Flow." The Obverse side of the coin shows a large weather vane pointing out the prevailing winds.

It is worth 35 cents, 71 cents, 12 cents or 18 cents, whichever feel right at the time.

The OPEC coin — This coin is solid platinum, five feet in diameter and portrays oil wells on both sides with the motto "We Own It." It is worth a fortune and if you have one — and they are quite rare — you can buy anything you want and do not have to wait in gas lines.

Yes and No Answers

Columnist Al Johnson recently wrote the following in the Anoka Union:

Should the electoral college be abolished in presidential elections: The answer is a qualified "yes." Should the electoral vote be abolished along with the college? The answer for thinking middle-Americans is a resounding "no."

Every four years we go through this hassle concerning adoption of a constitutional amendment providing for election of the president by direct popular vote. In July of this year the U.S. Senate once again rejected the proposal by a vote of 51 to 49. You can rest assured, however, the proposal will rise again, and again, until we arrive at a reasonable solution.

The first point to be clarified is the distinction between the electoral college and the electoral vote.

Voting in presidential elections under the present system we are of course voting for electors to represent us in the electoral college —supposedly to cast a ballot for our candidate. The flaw here is that the elector is not legally bound to vote for that specific candidate. These electors can, and have, voted for anyone they choose — such elitism is both undemocratic and outmoded. The electoral college should be abolished.

The electoral vote is a different matter — providing a vote for each congressional district within a state, plus two additional votes for the equal Senate representation of all 50 states. It's these two additional votes which the advocates of a direct popular election wish to erase.

"One man, one vote" has an appealing democratic ring, but our forefathers had the wisdom to recognize the importance of weighting the presidential vote a bit in favor of the less populated states. How else can the farmer in Minnesota, the rancher in South Dakota, or the miner in Montana have any real impact on a national election? They are already an endangered political species. We don't want their influence completely buried under the voting avalanche of the metropolitan masses in the heavily populated states.

There is another compelling reason for standing firm in opposition to tampering with the electoral vote.

While the Upper Midwest is noted for having honest election counts, such is not the case in some regions — ballot box stuffing is still a reality in more than a few states. Under the present system such voting fraud is confined electorally to state borders. A nationwide presidential popularity contest could stimulate fraud on a scale which would dwarf the present abuses — after all, they would be shooting for the whole ball of wax, not just their own electoral votes.

The potential for fraud can be dramatized by a story concerning the late Senator Everett Dirksen of Illinois.

As the story goes, representatives of the major TV networks were arguing as to who could project the election winner at the earliest hour, Dirksen happened to be a casual participant. NBC boasted they could do it within three hours. ABC claimed two hours was all they needed. CBS topped them both by asserting they could project the winner in one hour after the polls closed.

Dirksen listened quietly, and then commented in his deep medlodious style, "The capabilities of the electronic media are truly impressive, but the mayor of Chicago can give you the final official returns for Cook County an hour before the polls close."

Would you want your vote for president cancelled by a vote from Lot 713 in a Chicago cemetery?

How Not To Save Money

Following editorial is from the Pilot—Tribune of Storm Lake, Ia.:

The new Susan B. Anthony metal dollar coin has been out since July 2, but we have yet to have one in our pocket. We haven't been isolated either. We've made numerous purchases but always gotten paper dollars in change.

We've actually seen one Anthony coin that a friend showed us.

So from where we sit, the Anthony dollar has already gone the way of the $2 bill. Collectors have stashed away a lot of those bills — in fact we have three as a keepsake at home for the time they no longer circulate.

The new Anthony dollar has not received an enthusiastic reception. It slightly larger than a quarter in a time when most of us are used to the silver dollar that is the largest coin we have.

The average consumer is confusing it with a quarter and so are the retailers.

It's becoming more evident that Washington is populated by a goodly supply of idiots and not folks with marketing expertise, especially in the Treasury Dept. We've an idea that in order to justify their salary they came up with a new coin idea one slow afternoon among many.

The treasury claims that it costs only three cents to mint the new dollar coin which is expected to last 15 years, some ten times longer than a paper dollar.

While the treasury cites some great savings on the costs it may be just as costly as the production of the $2 bill. The Anthony dollar could last forever — if folks don't accept them with any more enthusiasm than they have so far. And we're still looking for the first one to cross our palm.

Childhood Logic

We couldn't help but chuckle at the obvious logic of the youngster mentioned in the following letter by Wally Johnson of Eagle Rock, Mo., to the editor of "Farmland News":

Rachel, my venturesome 4-year-old granddaughter, climbed to the porch roof one day. Only a short drop from her bedroom window, it was an easy task. For only the second or third time in her young life, she was spanked by my frightened daughter. Filled with shame and grief, Rachel wept long and hard. Brother Jonathan, age six, tried to console her.

Jonathan: "Mother was only trying to save your life. You might fall from the roof and get killed."

Rachel: "What's killed?"

Jonathan: "That's when you die and go to heaven."

Rachel: (sobbing louder) "I don't want to die and go anywhere."

Jonathan: "You'll like heaven. It's a great place. You'll have all the toys you ever wanted. There's no work and you play all the time."

Rachel: (not sobbing) "Will you be there?"

Jonathan: "Sure, we'll all be there but we'll get there at different times. Grandpa will probably be first."

Rachel: "Where is heaven?"

Jonathan: (pointing) "Way up there somewhere."

Rachel: (sobbing loudly) "I'll never get to heaven. Mother won't even let me get on the roof."

Drying Flowers Is Fast And Easy In Your Microwave Oven

Frames provide an excellent showcase for flowers quick-dried in your microwave oven . . . and you can match the flower to the color scheme of the room.

The flowers of summer are too often gone by fall, but with some help from your microwave oven, you can dry them in a matter of minutes.

The following procedure is recommended by the home economists at Amana.

1. Use brightly colored flowers that are only partially open. Use a separate container for each flower. Dry leaves separately and add to stems once drying process is completed.

2. Partially fill a large glass jar with silica-gel (purchased at hobby shops). Place flower stem down into gel. Slowly fill remaining portion of jar with gel, being careful to place gel between all the petals of each flower. Separate petals with toothpicks and cover completely with gel.

3. To prevent possible damage to the oven's magnetron tube caused by operating it without a full load, place 1 cup of water in the oven: then put container with flower in oven. Heat for 1 to 2 minutes, depending on general size of flowers.

Carnations - dry three at a time, 2½ to 3 minutes in oven: let stand 5 to 10 minutes.

Pansies - 45 seconds in oven: let stand 5 minutes.

Daffodils - 1½ to 2 minutes in oven let stand 2 to 5 minutes.

Roses - 1½ to 2 minutes in oven: let stand 5 to 10 minutes.

Violets - 1½ to 2minutes in oven, let stand 5 to 10 minutes.

Zinnias - 2 to 2½ minutes in oven, let stand 5 to 10 minutes.

4. Allow glass or jar to cool for 30 to 60 minutes before removing flowers. When cooled, slowly pour silicagel from container and carefully remove the flower. Gently brush any excess grains of gel from petals or stem.

5. Floral wire may be used to support stems, if necessary, but only after microwave drying has been completed, never in the microwave oven.

Senator Says DOE Proves Ineffective

Senator Dave Durenberger has called testimony citing the ineffectiveness of the department of energy (DOE) "frightening" and said, "If Americans expect the DOE to lead them onto the battlefield of energy, they better be prepared for a short war and an unhappy outcome."

Elmer B. Staats, comptroller general of the United States, Tuesday told Durenberger's governmental affairs committee that a general accounting office (GAO) study detailed numerous problems within DOE.

Durenberger said the testimony by Staats and the GAO report were "so significant and frightening" that he passed on the information to President Carter in a Tuesday afternoon meeting at the White House. Durenberger and members of the senate committee on finance, another of the senator's committees, were invited by President Carter to discuss the windfall profits tax.

"I urged the president to read Staats' testimony and the complete text of the report," said Durenberger. "We cannot realistically deal with our energy problems when this country's major energy agency is apparently operating so ineffectively and with such widespread disregard for its responsibilities.

"A tax on windfall profits or a change in cabinet leadership won't solve the energy crisis when there is little or no coordination of programs or long-range planning by the department of energy," said Durenberger.

Staats told the governmental affairs committee that DOE was plagued by "a lack of overall energy conservation planning, problems of leadership and coordination in federal in-house efforts to conserve energy and delays in carrying out congressionally mandated energy conservation programs, particularly energy conservation contingency programs. We believe these problems have substantially reduced the effectiveness of the nation's efforts to conserve energy."

"Conservation is the most effective and immediate solution to our short-term energy programs," said Durenberger. "Yet, according to this study, the department of energy, which was established to plan, coordinate and implement our nation's energy programs is thwarting the best interests of our country. Not only has it failed to contribute to our efforts to conserve valuable energy, it has apparently stifled long-range conservation programs."

In his testimony before the committee, Staats said the DOE has failed at one of its most basic tasks — establishing a conservation program for federal employees and buildings. "An effective in-house energy conservation program would not only save significant amounts of energy, but would set an example for the rest of the nation to follow," said Staats.

Durenberger concurred with Staats, saying, "From my own experience, I know how much more could be done to save energy on federally-owned property. Before I was requested to move my Minnesota office from the federal building in Minneapolis, we had a terrible time controlling the thermostate — even in the dead of winter we couldn't get the temperature below 76 degrees."

The senator said he was also deeply concerned with Staats' report that many DOE officials thought the department should have no role in coordinating or managing federal agencies' energy conservation efforts.

"That viewpoint must be eliminated immediately," said Durenberger. "If the department of energy is not willing to take responsibility for all national energy programs, why are we paying 20,000 employees and spending more than $10 billion on DOE's budget?

"It makes no sense to run around, setting up little departments of energy as President Carter has suggested when the one department we have now is abdicating its responsibilities. We should either tighten the reins on DOE, specify its duties and make sure it is operating effectively, or we should disband the department and start over."

The senate committee on governmental affairs and its energy subcommittee, of which Durenberger is also a member, oversee the operations of DOE. Hearings on the department will continue next week.

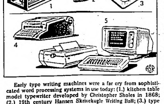
What Happened To The Typewriter?



Early type writing machines were a far cry from sophisticated word processing systems in use today: (1.) kitchen table model typewriter developed by Christopher Sholes in 1868; (2.) 19th century Hansen Skrivekugle Writing Ball; (3.) type sleeve MIGNON, popular until the 1930s; (4.) streamlined electrically operated and self-lighted typewriter once thought of as the "machine of tomorrow;" (5.) modern 3M System 84 Information Processor.

Christopher Latham Sholes would probably never have believed it: the familiar typewriter transformed into part of a system known as "information processing."

Information processing. In case you haven't heard the name before, better get used to it. By all indications, it's here to stay.

Sholes perfected the first practical typewriter in a Milwaukee shop in 1868, but he was not the first to invent the machine. Matter of fact, by count, Sholes was the fifty-second "inventor."

It is believed Samuel L. Clemons, America's Mark Twain, was the first author to submit a typed manuscript of his work — for "Tom Sawyer."

The typewriter quickly gained popularity and, by the turn of the century, it had no less than 30 manufacturers in the United States alone.

The next step in the evolution to information processing probably came with the introduction of automatic typewriters in the 1930s. The machines used a punch paper roller storage mechanism similar to those found on the then-popular player piano.

In the 1950s, punched paper tape was used to store information for later play back. The subsequent development of computers and micro electronics provided the basis for modern information processing systems.

Today, a little more than a century after Sholes' first typewriter, first word processing — and now information processing — is capturing the attention.

Here is how a typical word processing system functions, according to researchers for the 3M Company, a leading producer.

Instead of typing directly onto paper, in word processing typed information appears on a TV-like screen and is recorded — usually on a "diskette" (which looks something akin to a phonograph record). Work is easily edited or revised before finished copy is printed out on paper. And, because material is recorded and doesn't have to be retyped each time, additional "originals" can be made as often as needed. Additional material can even be recorded while the system is printing previously recorded material. Typing costs are substantially reduced.

What's next? Enter the "information processor." The researchers have now taken the word processor to its next logical step and developed a second generation system — the 3M System 84 Information Processor — combining word processing with data processing. The system uses a three-stage "building block" approach, upgrading and customizing to meet changing needs.

The typewriter has come a long way since Sholes perfected that first practical model. Experts now predict the day is not far off when there will be information terminals in many American homes — even yours. But, rest easy, Mr. Sholes . . . your typewriter never looked better!

IRS Provides Information On Tax Filing

If you're the type of person who enjoys doing things for yourself, there are several good reasons to include on your list of accomplishments doing your own federal tax return, suggests the internal revenue service.

You'll learn more about the credits and deductions that apply to your situation and at the same time you'll learn you can get tax help from the service whenever you need it.

Every tax package sent out at the end of the year comes with a set of instructions that can usually answer most tax questions. It's a good idea to read them carefully and keep them handy all year long. There are also 90 free IRS publications offering more comprehensive information on almost any tax subject, such as child and dependent care, benefits for older Americans, business expenses, moving expenses, medical and dental deductions, depreciation, sale of a home, jobs tax credit, etc. A coupon for ordering the publications is attached to every tax package. You can also order any of these by writing to your IRS office.

Probably the most convenient form of help is the IRS toll-free numbers. In the metro area call 291-1422. Toll-free from anywhere else in Minnesota call 1-800-652-9062. IRS tax assistors are available to answer most tax questions, and send tax forms and free IRS publications. A computer system lets these people answer within minutes questions about current accounts with IRS or questions such as why you got a certain bill or why you have not received your refund.

IRS also has a TTY toll-free number for deaf and hearing-impaired persons. Using regular phone lines and a TTY unit (consisting of a keyboard and a television screen or hard copy printer), hearing-impaired persons can get answers to their questions. Toll-free number is 1-800-423-4732.

IRS assists the owners of small businesses, too. IRS publication 334, "Tax Guide for Small Business," and the "Your Business Tax Kit" contain comprehensive information for the small business person. The tax kit is sent to every business person who applies for an employer identification number, and contains instructions, tax forms and a tax planner.

Periodic IRS workshops instruct business-persons in how the IRS works, the basics of filing a tax return and recordkeeping. To find out the time and place of workshops in your area, call the IRS toll-free number.

If your family lost you, would they lose the house, too?

If you died unexpectedly, your family shouldn't have to worry about where or how they were going to live. With careful planning now through our MSI Mortgage Payment Plan, you family can inherit a home — instead of a mortgage. And if you live, you've purchased the permanent life plan; it can help pay off your mortgage sooner, provide a loan for financial emergencies and opportunities, or supplement your retirement income with a monthly check. Renters too, can take full advantage of this policy.

The MSI Mortgage Payment Plan. Because your family has a right to live where they want, for as long as they want. Ask me for details.

Cancer Answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Dear Cancer Answers:

Is it okay for a person to drink alcoholic beverages while undergoing treatment for cancer?

Lynn F.

Dear Lynn F.:

Drinking moderate amounts of alcoholic beverages is usually permitted for cancer patients receiving radiation treatments or chemotherapy. However, patients should check with their doctors, since drinking may be ruled out for some types of cancer or during some treatment schedules. Patients being treated for cancer of the mouth, throat, esophagus or bladder, for example, may be restricted from drinking beverages containing alcohol.

Dear Cancer Answers:

How long does it take to find out if the chemotherapy a cancer patient is receiving is actually working?

Nancy

Dear Nancy:

Each case is different, but it usually takes three to six weeks or longer before a doctor can determine a patient's response to chemotherapy. During this time, doctors monitor the patient closely using x-rays, blood tests, and other diagnostic procedures to detect whether the tumor is getting smaller or whether there are fewer cancer cells present.

Dear Cancer Answers:

I'm an ex-smoker but still have many friends who smoke. I feel so much healthier since I quit and really wish I could encourage those I care about to quit too. Do you have any suggestions on how to go about this without offending or losing my smoking friends?

Matt

Dear Matt:

Just by quitting smoking you have set a good example and may be an inspiration for your still-smoking friends.

Sharing your own experiences with the problems involved in quitting and your ultimate success can be a means of initiating in others the desire to quit.

Once they decide to stop smoking, you can offer the sympathy and reinforcement they may need based upon your own experience.

The American Cancer Society's "Help a Friend Quit Kit" offers a complete program for you to follow. It includes an instruction folder for the smoker who has already quit, a "smoker calculator" to help the smoker find out why he smokes, and a seven-day quitter's guide to help the smoker quit permanently. You can obtain a kit by calling the Cancer Information Service toll-free in Minnesota, 1-800-582-5262 or by writing the Minnesota Cancer Information Service, 2750 Park Avenue, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55407.

Dear Cancer Answers:

I have several large areas of brown pigmentation — like large freckles — on my abdomen and back. I have heard that this type of pigmentation is related to cancer of the stomach. Is this true? What should I do about it?

Mrs. R.G.

Dear Mrs. R.G.:

There is a disorder, known as acanthosis nigricans, in which areas of dark pigmentation appear on the skin. This condition occasionally occurs with cancer of the stomach, but the association is rare. Most cases of unusual skin pigmentation are not associated with any form of cancer.

You should discuss your concerns with your doctor, if you have not already done so. The doctor will be able to determine the nature of the condition and what, if anything, might have caused it. It may be necessary for you to have some sort of treatment or to check back with the doctor periodically.

Dear Cancer Answers:

My husband is receiving radiation therapy for cancer and doesn't feel like eating most of the time because the treatments make him nauseated. I'm worried because I know he needs to eat more to keep up his strength. Could you give me some suggestions on nutrition for people having radiation therapy? Does he need a special diet while receiving these treatments?

Mrs. W. H.

Dear Mrs. W. H.:

It is important that your husband be well nourished during his course of treatment. He should try to include the following in his daily diet unless otherwise directed by his physician:

—3 or 4 glasses of milk (can substitute cheese),

—1 egg,

—2 generous servings of meat or fish,

—Cereals and breads, as desired,

—Potatoes as desired,

—2 to 4 servings of vegetables, one of which is green or yellow,

—2 servings of fruit, one of which is a citrus fruit.

This diet will be high in protein and carbohydrate and is quite flexible. Your husband may eat any food which he can tolerate. Since he is having nausea, there are several suggestions which can be made for modifying his diet:

—Eliminate as much fat as possible. Use skim milk, very lean meat or fish (chicken and most fish are very lean), dry (unbuttered) toast and crackers, sherbet instead of ice cream, simple puddings made with skim milk, fruits, plain vegetables and eliminate fried food, sauces, gravies or any other fatty substance.

—Carbonated beverages are often very useful for controlling nausea.

—Many patients find that eating several very small meals is better than three large meals. Try eating a small amount every 2 to 3 hours and try separating solid food from liquids. For example, divide a breakfast by having dry toast and a poached egg, and then an hour or two later have fruit juice, some skim milk and coffee.

—Sometimes sucking on a piece of hard candy will be helpful.

—If these measures are not successful, your husband may need to use a liquid diet for a few days. This should include skim milk, fruit juices, tea and coffee, cooked cereal thinned with skim milk so that he can drink it, strained soup, vegetable juices and some simple custards, jello, ice cream or sherbet. Try to drink a quart or more of milk each day.

After your husband's treatment is over, all of the side effects should disappear, and he may return to the general high-protein, high carbohydrate diet. It would be wise to stay on this diet for three months before going back to his normal diet. Of course, you should check with your husband's doctor if this problem continues. He may prescribe medications to help control the nausea.

If you would like additional information, there are publications available that offer further hints as well as menus suggestions and recipes. You can request these publications by calling the Cancer Information Service toll-free in Minnesota, 1-800-582-5262 or by writing the Minnesota Cancer Information Service, 2750 Park Avenue, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55407.

Dear Cancer Answers:

I have been considering the use of an intrauterine device (IUD) to prevent pregnancy and was told by a friend that they can cause cancer. Is this true?

D.C.

Dear D.C.:

No. There is no relationship between the use of an IUD and the development of cancer. For some women, however, the IUD is not recommended. You should discuss this with your physician. An intrauterine device must be inserted by a doctor, and the woman is usually instructed to have checkup examinations at least once a year, while she is using it.

Dear Cancer Answers:

I read recently that nipple discharge can be a breast cancer symptom. Can the discharge be caused by something other than cancer? What is the discharge like? Is there a test that can be performed to check breast discharge for signs of cancer?

Margaret

Dear Margaret:

Breast discharge can be caused by various conditions including pregnancy, infection, benign cysts, and cancer.

A watery, greenish-colored, brownish-colored, or bloody discharge is sometimes a symptom of a benign or malignant lump in the breast. This type of discharge is most likely to be associated with a non-malignant growth called an intraductal papilloma or with benign cystic disease of the breast. However, it is important for a woman to promptly consult her doctor about any breast discharge.

There is a procedure for testing breast discharge for evidence of malignant cells. It involves smearing some of the discharge into a glass slide, applying a stain, and using a microscope to identify the cells. The absence of malignant cells in the breast discharge, however, is not proof that there is no cancer present, and further examination and testing would be necessary for the doctor to determine the cause of this symptom.

Dear Cancer Answers:

What is the most common age for people to get cancer?

Tom

Dear Tom:

Cancer is generally a disease of the old and middle-aged. The highest rate of cancer occurs in people sixty-five and older. The second highest rate is in the age group fifty to sixty-five. Cancer is rare in children and young adults. For example, cancer is the cause of death in one out of every five adults, while there is only one cancer death in every twenty-eight deaths occurring in children under fifteen

Dear Cancer Answers:

I work in a fabric store. We sell a lot of 100 per cent cotton perma press which makes my throat burn. Could the chemicals in this material cause cancer?

Lillian

Dear Lillian:

The chemicals used in the "permanent press" process for treating fabric are currently not known to cause cancer. The burning feeling in your throat may be an irritation caused by these chemicals or some other substance. The store may need better ventilation.

Dear Cancer Answers:

My left breast is larger than my right breast and now it has started to actually be painful. My mother died of cancer so I'm worried, but I'm skeptical of doctors.

Ruth T.

Dear Ruth T:

Despite your skepticism, you should see a doctor. Doctors certainly are human and don't have all the answers — but they do have more medical knowledge than the average person, and the overwhelming majority of them are totally dedicated to helping people with health problems.

Pain is usually not an early symptom of breast cancer. If the pain comes and goes cyclically, it may be related to your menstration pattern. You do not explain if the breast has always been larger than the other. If it has increased in size recently it may be due to a noncancerous cyst.

No woman's breasts are exactly the same size, and this difference in size alone is not a sign of breast cancer.

Clothing Care ALERT!

LOOK AGAIN—IT'S A LEATHER LOOK-ALIKE

The lovely look and feel of leather can be found in beautiful fakes.

Soft, subtle, exciting and elegant, new leather look-alikes surely will be an impressive addition to your fall wardrobe.

On your next shopping spree, you will find the fabrics sculptured into coats and suits, dresses, blazers and jumpers.

Although they have mysterious names—Coltra, Belleseime, Sueded Qiana—comfort is their forte. The nearly-leathers fit as comfortably on your body as they do in your social life. Belleseime, for instance, is a nylon-polyester woven fabric with a delicate nap that gives it a superb suede-like look and an exquisite feel of cashmere. The term "belleseime" means "beautiful suede." Shoppers who have stroked it will nod their heads in agreement.

Being beautiful fakes, these fabrics draw second looks wherever they go—football games, dinner parties, family gatherings, business meetings.

Easy to wear, a joy to own, these new leather-like fabrics deserve tender, loving treatment. Wear them carefully. Store them carefully. Clean them carefully.

A garment made of any of these simulated leather fabrics should be stored on a hanger away from exposure to sun or fluorescent light. The nap should be brushed after each wearing with a clean, stiff brush to maintain its lush feel. When touching up with an iron, use steam on a low temperature setting and protect the material with a pressing cloth. If the material becomes shiny from ironing, just brush it to restore the nap. Your tender care also should include regular drycleaning before the garment becomes too soiled.

When it is time for cleaning, the International Fabricare Institute (IFI), the national association of launderers and drycleaners, suggests your advise your drycleaner that the fabric is a simulated leather to assure the garment receives special treatment.

Leather look-alikes are a new, but permanent, addition to the fashion scene. They can be a long-lasting addition to your wardrobe, ever-ready to wear to your special events if you supply some consistent behind-the-scenes care.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

It's summertime when the livin' used to be easy. Not anymore. Nowadays, the only thing that disappears faster than vacations is the cash we spend on them. But there is a consolation. If having money really is the root of all evil, then Americans should have nothing to worry about — at least in the next world. But right now, we do have a big problem to worry about: Double-digit inflation.

The National Taxpayers Union (NTU), is a nonpartisan Washington - based organization that closely monitors one of the main sources of our inflation - the United States Congress. In its sixth annual Voting Study of Congress, NTU found that despite all their claims of austerity, "... U.S. Congressmen are spending tax dollars at a phenomenal rate." One example: Last year, says NTU, more than one-third of all U.S. Senators voted in favor of essentially every dollar in every single one of the 52 appropriations bills and their amendments that came up for a vote on the Senate floor. How's that for biting the ole bullet?

While this is obviously not a Chamber study, and thus we cannot be responsible for it, NTU believes its spending survey is the most comprehensive and accurate ever prepared. NTU says that's because, unlike so many other surveys that play the rating game by focusing exclusively on certain key issues, its 1978 survey analyzed every vote involving the spending of taxpayers' money. Also, since these votes can vary from less than $1 million to tens of billions of dollars, each vote was weighted by the dollar amount at issue.

NTU rated the Congressmen on a scale of 0 to 100, with 100 indicating a total reluctance to spend money and 0 indicating a willingness to spend every cent possible. So although one would not anticipate extremely high or low scores, the survey's average score for the combined Senate and House was a rather disappointing 22.8. That does not mean that there were no heroes, for there were many high scores. But on the average, NTU found Congressmen were almost four times as likely to spend more tax dollars as they were to conserve tax dollars.

The NTU survey also confirms the strengthening conservative trend around the country by demonstrating that Congressmen who persistently voted to spend more than their peers were more likely to be defeated at the polls. In the 1978 elections, for example, the average score for the defeated senatorial incumbents was a meager 13.6, while the Senate winners averaged 24. In the House, the election losers average 17.9 while the winners matched the Senate score of 24. And on the whole, Democrats voted to outspend Republicans. Democrats in both chambers averaged 19.5 compared to 29.4 for members of the GOP.

Not too long ago, I sat down and did some calculations to illustrate what will happen to America if we don't have the courage to kick our spending habit. I want to pass on those numbers to you because they bring home more vividly the evils of inflation. If our inflation continues around 10 per cent for 20 years, the results will be mind-boggling.

Today, $75 a week barely feeds a family of four. But 20 years of 10 per cent inflation will bring the cost of that food to almost $500 per week.

Today, the average new car costs approximately $5,000. Twenty years from now, adjusting for 10 per cent inflation per year, the cost of that new car will be $33,000.

Today, the average new house costs $59,000. Twenty years from now, that house will cost $397,000. And if that doesn't shock you, the 30-year figure is $1,030,000!

Of course, some people still believe they can lick inflation by trying to inflate their own incomes. Sorry, but the government thinks that's a no-no. It's rigged the tax system so that even when you earn enough money to stay abreast of inflation, you must automatically give back a proportionally greater share in taxes.

Isn't it about time we all stop pleading and start demanding that Congress make fundamental changes in its spending and taxation policies? If we don't we may all become millionaires sooner than we ever dreamed possible. But what fun will it be earning all that money. . .if it still won't pay the monthly bills?

It isn't often I feel justified in praising the Administration and both houses of Congress all in the same column; but this being one of those occasions, let me quickly seize it before it slips away. The Administration has successfully negotiated, and the Congress has just overwhelmingly approved, the largest trade agreement in history — one that will touch the lives of us all from manufacturers and farmers, to retailers, workers and consumers.

The best thing about this trade agreement (the Tokyo Round of the Multilateral Trade Negotiations, or MTN) is that it will be good for America. It could create 100,000 new jobs and generate billions of dollars in foreign orders for our products. And let's face it, we need to get into foreign trade in a big way. We've all been much too complacent about the need to better compete with our trading partners, and about the potential benefits such competition offers our economy.

By some estimates, one out of every eight domestic manufacturing jobs already depends directly on exports, and approximately one out of every three dollars of business profits stems from international trade. In agriculture, the relationship is equally apparent. One out of every four acres of cropland now produces for overseas markets.

So we have an obvious incentive to win new foreign markets. More exports will mean higher profits and new jobs. And that means a higher standard of living, because as other nations seek to purchase a greater share of American products, the value of our dollar will be bid up in relation to other currencies. And with a stronger dollar, our take-home pay will be worth more than before. That's an important point to emphasize in these inflationary times and in this interdependent world where many American industries must depend on foreign raw materials and component parts to manufacture the products they sell.

Our economy operates at a sophisticated level, reflecting our abundance of highly skilled white and blue collar workers. Common sense tells us we should push hard to sell more of our high technology products, and this trade agreement will help us do that in a number of ways.

First, the Tokyo Round agreements will result in an approximate one-third reduction in world tariffs. These are the taxes governments put on imported goods to reduce foreign competition and protect their domestic industries and political constituencies. Actually, this one-third reduction is not as big as it sounds, because current tariff levels average 8-10 per cent in the industrialized countries, and tariffs are no longer the major barrier they once were. They were substantially reduced by the Kennedy Round which preceded the Tokyo Round.

Of greater significance are the new nontariff codes of conduct. They represent understandings on how the rules will be laid out. . .and hopefully be played. In the past, countries have unfairly used these nontariff measures to stack the deck against us. For instance, some industries like steel have been put at an almost hopeless disadvantage by the huge subsidies their foreign competitors receive from their own governments.

A third area of major importance is agriculture. American farmers will be able to sell more overseas than they do now. The concessions on tariffs and quotas represent nearly $4 billion worth of 1976 exports, and that's welcome news.

On paper, this agreement sounds good. In reality, it won't be worth anything unless our government is tough enough to enforce it. That means standing behind American firms and calling the hands of their competitors when they break the rules.

And one final point. If we are to compete more effectively, or even at all, we need the incentives to do so. People work harder and take risks if there is the chance of reward. That's why the Russians, for example, with some of the largest and richest grain tracts in the world, cannot match the productivity of American farmers. Indeed, just think of the possible tragic consequences if we tried to run our farms from Washington as they do theirs from Moscow. For, if that did happen, how would we ever feed the Russian people?

OUR TRADITIONS

For generations, Americans have been proud of themselves, their schools and their gold school rings.

Ever since the United States' first high school opened in Boston in 1820, young people have found their high schools to be places to learn not only about academic or career-oriented subjects but also about themselves. The high school years are a time for growing, for reading independence and autonomy.

One thing many have learned is that whether they're active in school sports or clubs; supporters of school activities; artistic or intellectual; at the hub of the in-crowd or any combination of those things, something that can help symbolize the fun and learning, achieving and growing of those high school years is a karat gold school ring.

A symbol of the pride and accomplishment of the high school student and of his or her passage to adulthood for generations, a gold ring is also valuable in itself. Today's finely crafted karat gold school rings can contain precious stones and other hallmarks of a fine piece of jewelry.

Almost any sort of engraving or symbol can be put on the gold school ring of today, including designs showing the school activity or sport the ring's wearer supports or participates in. A wide variety of stone cuts and colors are available too; many people are buying gold school rings that feature their birthstones.

Many parents, realizing that the high school years are ones their children will want to remember for years to come, are contributing to the purchase of those finely crafted karat gold rings.

It's long been a part of our heritage and can become a precious heirloom in the years to come.

ENERGY ANSWERS

Tips, To Save You Money

What's the cleanest, safest, cheapest energy "source" we have? You, an energy conserver! And you are also the key to saving your money. These suggestions are designed to help you be penny-wise by not being fuel-foolish.

Take an energetic look at your home. You can realize real economies by caulking your windows and weather-stripping your door. Storm windows and doors may be worth their cost in comfort and cash saved. Insulation in attic, exterior walls, floors over unheated or uncooled spaces, air ducts and water pipes helps hold down winter heat loss and summer heat gain.

Cut down on senseless waste: get into the habit of turning off lights, radios, television and other appliances when not in use.

Take showers instead of tub baths. Repair leaky faucets. Lower the thermostat setting on your hot water heater, and use cold water whenever you can. Run full loads in the dishwasher and washing machine, and use heavy appliances early in the morning or late in the evening.

Replace your heater or air conditioner filter as recommended, and use a clock thermostat to turn them down when they're not needed. Don't heat or air-condition unused rooms. And dress for the season—good, warm clothes in the winter; light ones in the summer.

You'll have clearer sailing with energy bills if you plug up your energy leaks.

Get on the right road to saving money by eliminating unnecessary automobile trips and driving at steady moderate speeds. Keep your car well-tuned and the tires properly inflated. When you can, join a carpool, or use public transportation. When you purchase a new car, choose one that's more energy-efficient for your needs.

Can conservation stop the energy crisis? No, but it can slow the fuel drain, providing more time to find more oil and gas, and to seek alternate sources.

These tips and other information about fuels for our future are in the "Energy Book." For your free copy, write: Energy Book, Shell Oil Co., P.O. Box 4315, Dept. N, Houston, Texas 77001.

Safety Hints That May Save A Life

Once the automobile was virtually alone on the road, but today other highway users, such as motorcyclists, are there in ever-increasing numbers, requiring all to share the road safely.

More than five million motorcycles are registered, compared to less than one million 15 years ago.

To help prevent multi-vehicle accidents, which are the car drivers fault 70 percent of the time, motorists can take the following precautions suggested by the Motorcycle Safety Foundation:

1. Be prepared at intersections to yield the right of way to oncoming motorcycles.

2. When being overtaken by a cycle, maintain lane position and speed, allowing the cyclist to complete the pass and assume his proper lane position as quickly as possible.

3. When passing a motorcycle, allow a full lane to the motorcycle rather than crowding in the same lane. Also avoid premature returns to the original lane since a cyclist is extremely vulnerable when an auto forces him to the right or off the road.

4. Proper use of signals is a must. Both motorists and motorcyclists can prevent critical situations from developing by communicating their intentions to other highway users.

5. In developing proper search patterns in traffic, the motorist should always be on the lookout for the unexpected and expect motorcycles to appear in traffic at any time.

These few tips can tip the scales in favor of safety, and perhaps save a life.

Good visual perception and decision making, plays an important part in creating a safe highway environment.

OLGA STORHAUG, 83, moved into the Skylite apartments complex on Labor day weekend of 1969 and is one of 29 apartment dwellers there who have been the only residents of their apartments. She considers herself fortunate in having a number of local relatives who come to visit and is shown with one of the scrapbooks harboring items concerning her grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

ONLY COUPLE to have maintained a residency for 10 years at Skylite apartments, Mr. and Mrs. Thorval Kolden are pioneer residents of the area who reared 12 children here. Now 83 years old, Thorval contemplates another 10 years of residency in the apartment. "You'll be an old man by then," his wife jokes.

Skylite Residents Enjoy 10-Year Occupancy There

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Residents of the Skylite apartments at 415 Arnold av. S. in Thief River Falls seem generally pleased with their quarters and the type of living they provide. There is an opportunity for socializing and craft activities and the center serves as a gathering place and activity hub.

"The construction seems to be holding up real well," states Oscar Mossestad, who has not only been caretaker for all 10 years the housing has been in operation but also was a carpenter on the project when it was being built. "There haven't been any real problems, although we replaced the heating system three years ago to conserve on fuel and there is plenty of grass to mow and snow to move."

Mossestad estimates there are two acres of grass area to cover, and that ties in with the open space plan which was designed into the project. The housing and redevelopment authority wanted open space to be available to the residents.

Each of the 80 apartment units in the complex has a front door which opens into an atrium or center area and a back door which opens to the outside. The rear doors must be kept clear of snow during the winter to allow an emergency exit. "Altogether there must be 100 doors to keep clear," Mossestad said. "After a snow storm it sometimes takes all day to get the job done."

During the first several years the housing project was in operation Mossestad served as mailman in addition to caretaker. A change in the law did not require the post office to make deliveries, so Oscar would pick up the mail for all the residents, sort it and make deliveries to all 80 units. Then mail boxes were established for each of the units and delivery by the post office became available.

For two years Oscar also collected the rent in addition to his other duties. He knows all of the residents personally and can tell how many times most of the units have been occupied and by whom.

Among the items on his daily routine is checking of the 20 furnaces (four in each of the complex's five units), checking the water softeners and pumps, maintaining the laundry equipment and tending to plumbing and electrical problems. He also takes it upon himself to encourage residents to become involved in activities, including flower planting and other outdoor work.

One of the 10-year residents of the complex is Mrs. Lucille Bergeron who moved to the units from Argyle with her husband Sept. 28, 1969. He had had two heart attacks and they wanted to be located closer to medical attention.

Mrs. Bergeron's sister, Mrs. Lilia Dufault, rented another unit in the complex in 1974. Her husband died at Argyle that year, and Mrs. Bergeron's husband also died in 1974. In the past five years

A GAME OF RUMMY helps pass the time for Mrs. Lucille Bergeron (left) and Mrs. Lilia Dufault at the Skylite apartments in Thief River Falls. Mrs. Bergeron moved into the senior citizen housing with her husband in 1969. Her husband died in 1974, the same year that her sister, Mrs. Dufault, lost her husband. She moved into a nearby apartment the same year. They both plan on moving this fall to a new apartment complex in downtown East Grand Forks.

Educational Plan Being Developed

by Adeline Vollan Coordinator
NW Minn. EPTF

Two years ago the Minnesota State Legislature saw introduction of Senate File 156. This bill, if enacted into law, would have reorganized the 438 school districts in the state into 92 districts instead, predominantly along county lines.

It is reported that this proposed legislation generated more mail in both the House and the Senate than any other single past issue. The outcry from every part of the state centered primarily on governance. Communities protested the loss of control at the local level resulting from such mandated reorganization coming from the state level to the local school districts.

Ensuing discussion resulted in eventual passage of legislation felt to be a compromise between the two opposing positions. The Legislature maintained that long-range planning was necessary on the part of the schools in the face of mounting economic difficulties. The local schools maintained that such planning was underway in many districts, and that decisions about something like reorganization could effectively and fairly be made only by the local communities themselves.

While the ventual planning legislation did require certain processes from all local districts, it did leave planning to each district itself. The major requirements were submission of a plan for educational program and financing through 1983 from each local school district by Dec. 1, 1978, and submission of an area plan from each educational cooperative service unit arrea by June 1, 1979. Following review of both the local plans from districts throughout the state, as well as the nine area plans, the Minnesota state department of education delivered these plans to the state legislature on Sept. 1.

The legislation established an educational planning task force (EPTF) in each of the nine ECSU areas in the state. In northwestern Minnesota 12 counties — Kittson, Roseau, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Polk, Pennington, Red Lake, Clearwater, Beltrami, Norman, Mahnomen and Hubbard — took part in the area planning, beginning in September of 1977. The task force membership includes one representative from each of the 52 local school districts, with terms expiring the end of June 1980.

To the present, there has been a long-range plan written in each of the districts, and in May 1979 the entire Northwest Minnesota Educational planning Task Force met to give final approval for transmitting the Northwest Area Educational Plan by June 1.

Copies of the Northwest Area Educational Plan have been distributed in each of the local districts to superintendents and local school board members, to other areas of the state, to local and other key legislators and to

Library Plans Guthrie Trip October 20-21

Northwest Regional Library has announced plans for its first bus trip to Minneapolis the weekend of October 20-21. The trip is open to the public and tickets will be sold on a first-come basis.

A bus will leave Thief River Falls Saturday morning, October 20, and pick up passengers in Warren and Red Lake Falls if requested. Upon arrival in Minneapolis, the group will check into a downtown hotel and individuals will have the opportunity to dine and shop on their own. Transportation will be provided to and from the Guthrie theatre for the performance of "Romeo and Juliet" Saturday evening.

Sunday morning trip plans call for a visit to the Minnesota zoological gardens in Apple Valley before returning to Thief River Falls that afternoon.

A single charge of $55.00 includes transportation costs, the Guthrie theatre performance, admission to the Minnesota zoo and one night's accommodation (based on double occupancy). Tickets should be purchased as seem as possible from the headquarters library at 101 East First Street in Thief River Falls or at any branch or bookmobile of the Northwest regional library.

Senior Housing Project's Open House Set Saturday

Recorder Class Scheduled At Northland CC

A recorder class will be offered by Northland community college this fall as a result of interest expressed after a Renaissance recorder group apprecred at the college a few years ago.

Northland was not in a position at the time to do anything about the interest because instruction in playing a recorder was not available. Recently Anthony J. Ricci indicated that he would organize a recorder group and offer instruction in this ancient musical instrument.

The recorder, which has finger holes, resembles a flute and has been around for centuries. Presently it is experiencing a revival throughout the United States.

The recorder class will be held once a week for eight weeks. First class is scheduled for Tuesday, September 25, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Northland auditorium. Fee of $12 will be charged for the class.

Persons of all ages and with all different degrees of musical skill may enroll. "The class will start at the beginning with the basics — how to hold the instrument, fingering techniques, and how to read notes from music," said Ricci. "After a few sessions the class will divide into ensembles of two, three or four recorders of equal skill so that both the individuals and the ensembles can progress at their own rate of speed."

Northland college will furnish the instrument with everyone provided the opportunity to try the entire family of recorders — soprano, alto, tenor and bass.

Ricci who will direct and instruct the Recorder class received his B.A. degree in 1971 from St. Olaf college. He worked as music instructor in the Thief River Falls and Newfolden public schools. Presently he is teaching guitar at NCC and is pursuing a career in piano tuning and repair.

Epilepsy Meet Slated Friday

"Thoughts on Parenting the Child with Epilepsy" is the topic chosen for a meeting sponsored by the Minnesota epilepsy league at the Thief River Falls public library meeting room for parents, relatives and teachers concerned about epilepsy on Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Films will be shown and coffee and bars will be served, according to Ann Evenson, Red Lake Falls, region one coordinator of the Minnesota epilepsy league.

"KING OF COUNTRY MUSIC," Roy Acuff is scheduled to appear in Thief River Falls Tuesday, September 25, with two of his Smoky Mountain Boys, Bashful Brother Oswald and Charlie Collins. The star of the Grand Ole Opry will perform in the Lincoln high school auditorium beginning at 7:30 p.m. Acuff is the first living musician to be elected to the country music hall of fame. Among the songs he made famous are "Great Speckled Bird" and "Wabash Cannonball." Tickets for the Acuff show are $5 in advance and $6 at the door. They can be purchased at Ekeren Drug and Model Barbershop. The event is sponsored by the Thief River Falls and Nevis chambers of commerce.

CARETAKER at the Skylite apartme.. complex of 80 housing units at 415 Arnold av. S. in Thief River Falls is Oscar Mossestad. Oscar helped raise the first walls of the senior citizen housing project and was a carpenter until the project was completed. He applied for and was accepted as caretaker and has held that position ever since.

Senior citizen housing units at 415 Arnold av. S. in Thief River Falls will be the subject of public interest Saturday when the 10th anniversary of the Skylite apartments complex will be observed. The event will be held from 2 to 4:30 p.m. in the Skylite center with several of the apartments to be open for visitation.

Skylite apartments were first put to use in the fall of 1979 with 80 units available for rental to senior citizens who qualify under low income standards established by the federal government. Construction was financed by the housing assistance administration of the federal department of housing and urban development.

All of the apartments in the complex are ground level with private patios and each is equipped with a range and refrigerator. Laundry facilities are available and the center building includes a large recreation-meeting room, kitchen, craft and activities room and the office area and shop.

The complex is under the supervision of the local housing and redevelopment authority board chaired by Randall Noper and including Mrs. Stan Wilson Sr. and vice president, Larry Belmont as secretary, Orville Hanson and Paul Ihle. Mrs. Beverly Holm is hired as director and Oscar Mossestad has served as caretaker since the units first went into use.

Mrs. Holm is the fourth director of the Skylite units, succeeding Mrs. Arnold (Gladys) Narverud who served in that capacity for six years. Mrs. Holm began work in May of this year. Previous directors were Dr. A. E. Jacobson and William Fahey. Dr. Jacobson was a former mayor and Fahey a former city clerk.

Since the project was built with grant funds, there is no loan repayment and rentals are set to cover operation and maintenance, Mrs. Holm said. Budget for the 1979-80 year which will end July 1, 1980, is only $70,440. Rental rate must be approved by the department of housing and urban development.

To be eligible for living in the units, individuals may have assets no greater than $20,000 in investments or real estate and must be 62 years of age or older. A car does not count in the determination of assets and a number of residents of the housing compelex have their own autos. Their income may not exceed $6,000 annually for an individual or $6,800 for a couple, with income to include social security, retirement benefits, railroad or veteran's

BUSINESS MANAGER for the Skylite apartments complex in Thief River Falls is Beverly Holm. She took over the duties in May of this year, succeeding Mrs. Arnold (Gladys) Narverud who had been in the post for six years. The job involves record keeping, budgeting, rent collection and accounting for the 80-unit senior citizen housing complex.

Plan Battered Women Annual Regional Meet

Persons in Region 1 intesested in the cause of battered women are encouraged to attend the annual regional meeting to be held in the public meeting room at Northwest regional library in Thief River Falls, Tuesday, September 18, at 6:30 p.m. Region 1 includes Norman, Polk, Red Lake, Pennington, Marshall, Kittson and Roseau counties.

Purpose of the meeting is to review the state proposal for dividing the community education and advocacy monies available through June of 1981; to discuss regional priorities for the use of monies allocated directly to this region; to discuss alternatives for the statewide projects; and to select two representatives from region 1 to attend the state task force on battered women meeting scheduled for October 1. At the state meeting, the final allocation of the $350,000 available for community education and advocacy programs will be made.

In 1979, twelve organizations across the state were granted funds for public education. In region 1, the money funded the development of a speakers' bureau, whose members are available without charge to organizations, churches and other groups interested in a program on battered women. Also held were three advocacy training sessions, in Thief River Falls, Ada and Crookston for the purpose of providing participants with background information on the problem of battering; an explanation of victim services

Public Invited To Old Mill Park Meeting

Department of Natural Resources has invited the public to attend a meeting to discuss some alternative management and development plans for Old Mill state park.

The park is located in northwestern Minnesota near Newfolden in Marshall county.

The meeting — called a "workshop" by DNR park planners — will be held Tues., Sept. 25, in the Newfolden community center starting at 7:30 p.m.

Plan Energy Workshop At Best Western

Representatives of local utilities, state government and private industry will discuss various energy conservation methods for commercial and institutional buildings during a one-day energy saving workshop September 18 at the Best Western motel in Thief River Falls.

Representatives will cover a variety of energy fields, including minimization of building heat loss, optimal maintenance of climate control systems and electrical load management. They will also discuss the projected outlook for natural gas supplies.

Workshop is designed to provide participants with a practical—"hands on" approach to the various aspects of energy management in institutional or commercial buildings.

Participation is open to plant operating personnel, public officials, building managers, energy managers, hospital engineers, boiler operators, energy coordinators, building owners and hotel-motel managers. All costs are included in a $20 fee.

The workshop is a cooperative effort by the Minnesota state department of education, Northern Natural gas company, Northern States power company and the Thief River Falls area vocational technical institute.

Additional information can be obtained by contacting the appropriate school adult extension coordinator.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Eveland and Saint Vows Spoken In Newfolden

Miss Karla Eveland and Philip Saint, both of Zion, Ill., exchanged marriage vows recently at an afternoon ceremony at the Evangelical Free church in Newfolden.

The bride is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Earl Eveland, Newfolden. Parents of the groom are Dr. Abe and Marj VanDerPuy of Quito, Ecuador and the late Nate Saint.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony were the fathers of the couple. Bev Landstrom, a friend of the bride's family, was the organist, playing, "Trumpet Voluntary," for the processional. Bonnie Hanson, a friend of the bride, accompanied Lois Spragg, Wakarusa, Ind., sister of the groom, as she sang, "My Tribute," and "He Has Chosen You for Me." The bride and groom joined in singing "All Our Lives."

Candelabras with greenery and yellow daisies graced the chancel. The front pews were marked with yellow and blue bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in her mother's lace over satin wedding gown featuring a cathedral-length train. The fitted bodice with a V-waistline and long, fitted sleeves, featured a scooped neckline bordered with lace petals embroidered with seed pearls. A matching headpiece held her veil of bridal illusion. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses, yellow and white carnations and stephanotis.

Kathy Drown, Siguatepeque, Honduras, a sister of the groom, was the bride's personal attendant. Maid of honor was Cheryl Eveland, Bemidji, a sister of the bride. She wore a pink gown with a rounded scooped neckline, puffy sleeves, and a ruffled hemline.

Similar gown in blue and yellow were worn by the bridesmaids: Paula Eveland, sister of the bride, and Joydell Skjerven, a friend. To complete their attire, all wore hats to match their gowns, and carried colonial styled bouquets of pink carnations, yellow roses, white daisies and stephanotis, backed by netting, corresponding to the color of their gowns.

Serving as flower girls was Hilary Spragg, Elkhart, Ind., a niece of the groom. Her green floor-length dress featured ruffles around the sleeves, neckline and hemline. She wore a matching bonnet and carried a basket filled with daisies.

The rings were carried on a white Bible by Shaun Saint, Willmar, nephew of the groom. Like the men of the wedding party, he wore a three-piece, light-blue suit and a yellow silk rose boutonniere.

Attending the groom as best man was Steve Saint, Willmar, a brother. Other attendants were Joel VanDerPuy, West Chicago, Ill., another brother, and Allan Eveland, Newfolden, brother of the bride. Ushers were John Korpi, Zion, Ill., and Ken Valentino, Highland Park, Ill., friends of the groom.

The mother of the bride wore a yellow gown with a floor-length tiered skirt. The groom's mother wore a light blue floral print gown topped by a light blue cape. Their identical corsages were of yellow minature roses and white daisies. During the ceremony, each was presented with a long-stemmed yellow rose. With the exception of the bride's flowers and those on the candelabra, all the flowers were silk.

A reception followed the Larry and Margie Bjorness, friends of the bride's family, as host and hostess. Peggy Hage, St. Paul, a friend of the groom, registered the guests as Ginnie Hagenbeck and Wanda Olsen, friends of the bride, served the punch.

The three-tiered wedding cake was iced in yellow and decorated with white daisies and scalloped trim. Fresh daisies and a triple wedding bell ornament graced the top. At the base were two round cakes, also iced in yellow and decorated with white daisies.

The cake was cut and served by Carol Eveland, St. Paul, aunt of the bride, and Ginny Saint, Willmar, sister-in-law of the groom. Pouring coffee were Gladys Johnson, Backus, aunt of the bride, and Kathy Drown, sister of the groom.

Waitresses were Dawne Eveland, Richfield, cousin of the bride, Gloria Cofell, Finley, N.D., Lynnae Halverson and Linda Bjornrud, friends of the bride. Assisting in the kitchen were Mrs. Arnold Skjerven, Mrs. John Roseland, Mrs. Lowell Hogberg, Mrs. Gena Gunderson and Mrs. Euenie Waterworth. Making the cake and partially catering the reception were Janice Olson and her daughters, Denise and Debbie. Slides of the wedding were taken by Lowell Hogberg.

For traveling on a wedding trip to the Itasca state park, the bride wore a multi-colored wrap-around skirt with a deep pink blouse. Later the couple visited at Zion, Ill., where both taught school for the past two years. While there, they were honor guests at the reception with apprxoimately 150 friends attending. Among them were 14 from Ecudor, where the groom was raised, and was graduated in 1973 from the Alliance Academy at Quito.

The bride is a 1973 graduate of Marshall County central high school, Newfolden, and together with the groom, was graduated from Trinity college in 1977. She is currently substitute teaching in the Willmar school district. The groom is fourth and fifth grade teacher in the Community Christian school at Willmar. The couple is at home at 613 Southwest avenue, Willmar. Photo R.L. Nieland, Thief River Falls

Muriel Olin is Guest Speaker at Newcomers Club

Meeting of the Thief River Falls Newcomers club was held Tuesday at the Fay Bolin home with Muriel Olin as guest speaker. Mrs. Olin gave information on the United Way, listing organizations that are participating. She stated that the main reason for the united drive was to eliminate separate drives.

During the business session, several events were discussed and planned. Included were a coffee party September 20 at 10 a.m., at the Janet Olson home, 315 Cardinal drive; a quilt workshop September 26 at 7 p.m. at the Kathy Turner home, 111 Kenwood court; a potluck dinner at the Elks club October 9 for all alumni, and a progressive ethnic dinner October 13 with reservations due by October 9. Tickets for the dinner will be $10 per couple.

The social hour featured a caramel fondue party.

Seven members attended the meeting. Also present were two guests: Sandy Shobergs and Jan Woodward. Jan Quinlivan won the door prize.

Fawn Peters Is Honored at Bridal Shower

Miss Fawn Peters, fiancee of Arnold Willett, was honored at a bridal shower recently at the St. Vincent de Paul Catholic church at Plummer.

Upon her arrival, the honored guest was presented with a corsage of daisies and stephanotis. A similar corsage was given to her mother, who together with the bride-elect's sister, Kim, assisted in the opening of the gifts.

Lunch served by the hostesses included a decorated cake.

Hostesses were Joyce Magers, Sue LaCoursiere, Kim Peters and Colleen Bergeron.

Terry Brown-Keith Olson Exchange Marriage Vows

Marriage vows were exchanged recently at the Evangelical Free church in this city by Terry Lee Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Brown, Jr., and Keith Lloyd Olson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd V. Olson, all of Thief River Falls.

Rev. Curtis D. Anderson officiated at the double ring ceremony. For the processional and recessional, the organist, Mrs. Ron Trontvet, a friend of the couple, played Bach's "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," and Lohengrin's "Bridal Chorus." During the ceremony, Kevin Kompelien sang, "Wedding Song," and "If." He was jointed by Grace Hanson and together they sang "Devoted To You."

Forming a background for the wedding party were candelabra graced with greenery and large yellow bows. The pews were marked with yellow rose buds tied with blue and yellow ribbon.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a gown of white organza with Chantilly lace, accented by iridescents and seed pearls, outlining the sheer yoke and forming the mandarin collar. Lace appliques enhanced the shadow-styled bishop sleeves, and matching lace edged her full, circular skirt that flowed into a chapel-length train. Her finger-tip veil, also edged with lace, was held by a lace headpiece trimmed with seed pearls. She carried a small white Bible, a gift from the groom's mother. Topping the Bible was a cascade of yellow roses, blue carnations and daisies, accented with fresh ivy, babies' breath and white ribbon streamers. She also carried a lace-edged handkerchief which her mother had carried at her wedding. The bride's gold heart-shaped locket, centered with a small diamond, was a gift from the groom.

Personal attendant was Mrs. Kurt Christensen, a friend of the bride.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Debbie Olson, a sister of the groom. Other attendants were Tami Hedlund and Tracy Brown, sisters of the bride, and Becky Aamot of Egan, a sister of the groom. The maid of honor and Tami Hedlund wore light blue polyester gowns and others wore yellow. All gowns were of similar styling featuring puffy sleeves, lace-edged square necklines, and gathered skirts accented at the waistline by wide white ribbon. In their hair, they wore two white daisies. They carried colonial bouquets featuring yellow roses, blue carnations, and babies' breath with blue and yellow ribbon streamers. Their bell necklaces with cultured pearl clappers were gifts from the bride.

Flower girl was Wendy Aamot of Egan, a niece of the groom. Her gown, made by her mother, was styled similar to the bride's. She carried a white basket filled with daisies and yellow roses, and like the bridesmaids, she had a white daisy tucked in her hair. Her gold necklace was a gift from the bride.

Trudi Brown and Kristi Olson, sisters of the bride and groom, distributed the wedding scrolls as the guests entered the church. Their identical, peach-colored gowns were complemented by daisy corsages. Their necklaces were gifts from the bride.

Jeff Pyle of Newfolden, a friend of the couple, served as best man. Groomsmen were Mike Aamot, Egan, brother-in-law of the groom; Bruce Brown, brother of the bride, and Gary Hedlund, a brother-in-law of the bride. The ushers were Roger Eriksson and Steve Mehus, friends of the couple. They wore light blue tuxedos with dark blue trousers, white ruffled shirts and yellow rosebud boutonnieres. The groom's attire was in light blue.

The mother of the bride wore a pale pink double knit gown with a stretchlace bodice topped by a long-sleeved jacket. The groom's mother was attired in a dusty green crepe gown with blouson top and full, elbow-length slit sleeves. Their corsages were of pink roses.

Special guests at the ceremony, attended by approximately 200 guests, were Mrs. Maude Brown, Brainerd, George T. Stroming, Pillager, grandparents of the bride; Mrs. Lydia Olsen, Thief River Falls, grandmother of the groom, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Keehr, of Hillman, the bride's godparents.

Host and hostess at the reception that followed in the church parlors were Mr. and Mrs. Gary Hanson. Mr. and Mrs. Kent Christensen registered the guests, Darlene Tommervik and Colleen Bruggeman served the punch. Kathy Stark and Becky Jones served as waitresses and Colleen Bruggeman presided at the gift table.

Highlighting the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake, iced in pale yellow and decorated with white cascading daisies. Between the tall pillars that supported the upper tier were cupids and a vase of fresh daisies. Topping the cake was a double wedding bell ornament with cascading daisies. The cake was baked and decorated by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Passa, friends of the couple. It was cut and served by Renae Jensen and Janice Nelson, relatives of the groom. Barbara Holt, a friend of the bride, and Janice Olson, aunt of the groom poured the coffee.

Following a wedding trip to Brainerd resort area, the couple is now at home in Thief River Falls at Basswood Trailer court. Both are graduates of Lincoln high school and attended the local area vocational-technical institute. The groom also attended Northland Community college and is employed by Forsberg's. The bride is employed by Model Laundry. Photo, Jim Solsten, Thief River Falls.

Spice Carrot Cake

- 2 cups sifted flour
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 cups sugar
- 1 cup salad oil
- 4 eggs
- 2 cups finely shredded carrots
- 1 cup chopped pecans

Method: Sift flour and dry ingredients in large bowl. Beat sugar and oil together for 2 minutes. Add eggs, one at a time and beat after each. Add flour mixture and just blend in. Add carrots and nuts and beat by hand. Pour in a greased 9x13 inch cake pan and bake 35 to 40 minutes at 350 degrees.

The frosting mixture includes one 8 oz. package cream cheese, one 16 oz. bag powdered sugar, 1½ teaspoons vanilla, 1 cup chopped pecans. Frost when cake is cool.

Local Women Attend Legion Auxiliary School

Several members of the Ecklund-Holmstrom unit 117, of the American Legion auxiliary attended the president and secretary school of instruction held Sunday afternoon, September 9, at Crookston. Presiding at the meeting was Ninth District President JoAnn Reeve of Thief River Falls.

Others from the local unit attending were Mrs. Jim Cuppett, Ninth District secretary; Mrs. Ed Haraldson, unit secretary; Mrs. Web Maves, membership secretary, and Mrs. Jerry Odegaard, membership chairman.

Guest speakers were Department President Betty Radake of Red Lake Falls and Department Secretary Eleanor Johnson of Minneapolis.

Membership, including gaining and retaining members, was discussed. Units were urged to stress surpassing quotas and turning in memberships before the Fall Conference November 2. Also discussed were the new programs for the year which were based mainly on helping the Veteran and his family. The new program, "Energy," was introduced.

Projects for the years were also revealed. Department President Radake stated that her project for the year will be establishing a picnic area and patio at the Fargo VA hospital. She said that 31 per cent of the patients at that hospital are from Minnesota. District President JoAnn Reeve announced that her project will be the purchasing of a new dryer and mixer for the Legionville camp at Brainerd. All donations, including those from units, members and non-members will be accepted.

Attending the Legion sessions, which were held simultaneously, were Department Vice Commander, Jim Cuppett, Post District Commander, Bob Reeve; post commander Larry Odegaard, Post Adjutant Ed Haraldson and Ike Hoglin.

Martin Rux 50th Anniversary Noted In Grand Forks

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Rux, 1803 North Fourth Street, Grand Forks, N.D., were honored on their 50th wedding anniversary on Sunday, August 26, at an open house celebration at St. Mark's Lutheran church in that city.

The couple, Alice Bengston and Martin Rux, were married in Thief River Falls on Aug. 28, 1909. Their attendants were Reuben Rux, now deceased, and Ruth Rux Erickson, who is now residing at Newton, Ia. Mrs. Erickson was present for the anniversary celebration.

Hosting the event were the couple's children, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Rux, Grand Forks, and Mr. and Mrs. Gladwin Jenson, Park River, N.D.

The celebration began with a brief program. Rev. D. Gannon gave the pastoral meditation; Mrs. Alden Burke, Rux's cousin, a reading; Jeannie Rux Scofield, a granddaughter, read the history of the couple; and Tammy Nelson, a niece, and god-child of the couple, provided piano music throughout the afternoon.

During the reception, Mrs. Russel Nelson, Stephen, and Mrs. Donald Turney, Grand Forks, sisters of Mrs. Rux, poured the coffee. The anniversary cake was cut by Mrs. Nig Demarais and Mrs. Dale Hanson, cousins of Mr. and Mrs. Rux, respectively.

Grandchildren also assisted at the reception. Jeannie Rux Scofield ladled the punch, Mark Jenson distributed the thank-you scrolls, and Randy Jenson, Kevin Jenson, Mike Rux and Danny Rux presided at the guest book.

The ladies aid served the lunch.

A family gathering and supper followed at the Larry Rux home.

Grant Program Set October 2 At Moorhead

Communities throughout the Seventh district will have the opportunity to learn how to apply for federal grants and loans during a grant workshop on October 2, sponsored by Congressman Arlan Stangeland in association with Minnesota North Country, Inc.

"I have noted during my travels throughout the district that there is a lack of proper information for officials and their staffs in the preparation of loans and grants for their communities. It is for this reason that the grant workshop is being held," Stangeland said.

The workshop is designed to aid communities in deciding whether to participate in federally-funded programs; how to research, write and apply for grants; and how to monitor federally funded programs.

It will be held on Tuesday, October 2 at the Ramada Inn in Moorhead. Further information is available by calling the Congressman's district office in Moorhead at (218) 233-8631 or 1-800-432-3770.

North Safety Conference Set September 20

Northern Minnesota safety conference will be held September 20 at the St. Louis county heritage and arts center in Duluth, according to the Minnesota safety council, sponsor of the annual event.

Highlight of the conference will be a day-long seminar on prevention and control of back injuries. Session leader is international expert Leonard Ring of New Zealand, who was featured in the widely-acclaimed film on back safety, "Bend Your Knees".

Occupational safety session swill include safety considerations for younger workers, safety adjustments to employing older workers, legal and medical considerations of employing the safest workers, planning ahead for safety in the changing work force, and a workers compensation update.

A one-day multimedia first aid course will train supervisors and others in the basics of emergency first aid. The course satisfies Minnesota occupational safety and health act requirements for employees trained in first aid in the workforce. A nine-hour cardiopulmonary resuscitation course will also be conducted.

Special traffic safety session will look at curbing traffic accidents from the view of enforcement, judiciary, legislation and public support. Fire safety topics will include planning for home fire prevention, home ventilation, fire safety programming for industry, schools and communities and a fire safety film festival.

People planning for the hunting seasons won't want to miss a session on recreational vehicle safety just for hunters, and an in-pool water safety demonstration on cold water rescue.

Eight-hour defensive driving course will be offered to train licensed drivers to drive so as to avoid accidents in spite of adverse conditions or the incorrect actions of other drivers.

In addition, the conference will feature an exposition of safety products and services. A special feature of the exposition is a demonstration of air bags in autos by the national highway traffic safety administration.

Registration for the conference is open to the public conference programs and registration forms are available from the Minnesota safety council at 145 Hamm building, St. Paul, 55102; or its northern area service office at 318 Missabe building, Duluth 55802.

Health Dep't. Corrects Error In Release

Minnesota department of health's recent news release concerning the registration of environmental health specialist/sanitarians by the Minnesota department of health, erroneously stated that such registration would henceforth be mandatory.

Registration of environmental health specialist/sanitarians is not and will not be mandatory. Although the deparment strongly encourages eligible environmental health workers to apply for registration, the registration process is completely voluntary and optional. It is offered as a mechanism by which individuals working in the environmental health field can demonstrate their competence.

Unemployment Rate 3.6 Per Cent In July

Minnesota's unemployment rate in July was 3.6 per cent, down .2 of one per cent from June but the same as July, 1978, Rolf Middleton, commissioner of the Minnesota department of economic security, announced recently.

Comparable national unemployment rate for July was 5.8 per cent. State civilian labor force in July was 2,093,300; employment was 2,018,600; and the number of unemployed was 74,700. The civilian labor force in June was 2,113,500; employment was 2,033,000; and unemployment was 80,500.

In July a year ago, the civilian labor force was 2,057,400; employment was 1,982,600; and the number of unemployed was 74,800.

Production workers in manufacturing were paid average weekly earnings of $274.82 in July for working an average of 39.6 hours at $6.94 per hour. In July last year, production workers averaged 39.7 hours at $6.39 per hour for average weekly earnings of $253.68.

NEW JOHN DEERE EQUIPMENT
JOHN DEERE
220 LEVEL-ACTION™ DISK 2-section flexibility with hydraulic fold

Simply move one tractor hydraulic lever to fold the wing section on this 220 Disk for secure transport. The wing folds over center to rest on the main frame. It can't unfold without hydraulic pressure.
Choose 17- or 18½-foot working widths with 105 to 115 pounds per blade.
Level-Action Disk benefits abound too. You get overlapping front gangs that cut away center ridges, offset rear gangs that pull in the same amount of soil front gangs move out, and a self-leveling hitch that puts up to 100 percent working weight on every disk blade when cutting at full depth.
Expanding? We've got John Deere's light-draft 3600 Plow — up to 16 bottoms in tandem Want an in-furrow plow that can switch to an on-land hitch fast and easy? Get John Deere's new 3600 Drawn Plow to meet your expectations — now and in the future.

Need to expand? Add another great 3600 Plow in tandem to double your productivity. Great light-draft characteristics that let you plow more ground in the same amount of time. New safety-trip standards reset without backing. Spring-reset standards that hold down in hard ground, yet slide up and over obstructions or trip to clear ledge rocks ... then reset on the go. We can meet your plowing needs with new drawn models in 4- to 16-bottom sizes.

Local Marthon For Non-Public Education Set

"Walk and Beautify" is the theme for this year's fourth annual marathon for non-public education to be held Saturday, September 29. Organizers of the marathon are the Thief River Falls Knights of Columbus.

"We hope to make the marathon more attractive for the public sponsors by cleaning up the ditches while we walk," a spokesman for the KC's said. "We anticipate being able to clean at least 30 miles of ditch along airport and Smiley roads. In past years, we have heard some complaints about the fact that the participants only walked. This year each participant will not walk as far but will be responsible for cleaning, the ditch in the section he or she walks."

Because of the new emphasis on cleaning the roadside, the public will be asked to pledge so much for the cleaning of the 30 miles of ditches. In the past, sponsors have been encouraged to pledge a minimum of 10 cents per mile for each mile walked. This year they will be encouraged to consider pledging at least 10 cents per mile of road ditch cleaned by the entire group. With a goal of 30 miles, this is a $3 contribution.

Officials from local non-public schools report that funds raised have been very helpful in providing athletic and playground equipment as well as teaching aids for classroom use. It is hoped that the marathon will help area schools raise $3,000 for their educational programs.

Anyone who is not contacted by a student but wishes to pledge is asked to contact Jim Kremer at 681-2946. Any non-public educational program or facility which wishes to participate in the marathon is also asked to contact Kremer.

pension or interest on investments.

Persons interested in residency are asked to complete an application and the applications are put on file. At the present time there are 30 applications on file for single units and seven for couples. Turn-over is not rapid and occurs only when residents elect to move to other quarters, a death occurs or a resident is no longer able to care for himself or herself and must move to where care is available.

"When we consider accepting residents," Mrs. Holm said, "we are compelled to consider only those who will be able to care for themselves and their facilities. Our units are residency units only and we offer no nursing care or other attention. Residents are provided with heat, lights, garbage collection and maintenance when needed but must pay for their own telephone and cable television hook-up."

Twenty-eight of the units have had only one occupant since opening in 1969. An unofficial tally kept by one of the residents indicates that 57 residents have died during the past 10 years and a number of others moved from the units for one reason or another.

Those who have been 10-year tenants include Olga Olson, Serena Wasley, Anna King, Lydia Lubitz, Emma Erickson, Hilma Stromberg, Julia Hoppe, Mary Johnson, Olga Melvie, Oscar Mossestad, Florence Dahlin, Mary Ueland, Amanda Kezar, Mr. and Mrs. Thorval Kolden, Thilda Olson, Mildred Nelson, Lucille Bergeron, Ella Connelly, Julia and Oliver Rye (mother and son), Olga Storhaug, Blanche Hovden, Clara Ranum, Lilly Olson, Martha Knauf, Cerise Knutson and Amanda Langaas.

"We encourage the public to come and visit us on Saturday and enjoy a cup of coffee and cookie or bar with some of the residents," Mrs. Holm said.

Residents Of Skylite Apts. Enjoy Quarters

the sisters have been together almost daily, doing each other's hair, playing cards, hosting birthday parties, taking the senior bus downtown and going to church.

They have been generally satisfied with the facilities, but have had a problem recently with the senior bus schedule change. Both are diabetics and must have meals on a rigid schedule. The bus time change would find them downtown at noon when they should be home for their noon meal. As a result, they don't use it as often as they previously did.

Later this fall both will be moving to East Grand Forks where they will become residents of Town Square apartments, a downtown housing development. "It is right across from the Sacred Heart church," Mrs. Dufault said, "so we can go to church without having to depend on somebody for a ride or paying cab fare. When you pay cab fare, you don't have any money to give at the church."

Only couple to be residents of the complex for the 10 years since it began operation is Mr. and Mrs. Thorval Kolden. Thorval came to this part of the state in 1903 with his parents. Thief River Falls was the end of the railroad at that time and his parents homesteaded in the Randen ridge area when Thorval was six years old. They later farmed in the Mud Lake area, then at Holt, Newfolden and St. Hilaire.

While at Holt and St. Hilaire they kept dairy cows and sold bottled milk to stores and individuals in the nearby towns. "We had Guernsey cattle and they had very rich milk," Mrs. Kolden said. "When it settled in the bottles the top half was cream. We used a separator to fill the bottles, filling the bowl and using the spigot to fill the bottles one at a time."

Thorval delivered about 50 quarts of milk a day at 13 cents a quart, he recalls, serving two stores and several homes in St. Hilaire. He also sold goat milk to a few customers, receiving a premium price of 25 cents a quart for that.

In later years he and his wife operated a truck garden on the farm, selling raspberries, strawberries, squash, potatoes, sweet corn, tomatoes, parsnips and other produce. Thorval worked for Land O'Lakes feed department for 10 years prior to retirement, loading and unloading feed during the night shift.

He finally sold his farm to his youngest son Kendall (the Koldens had 12 children) and moved into the Skylite units. The only other Kolden children in this area now are Roger of Thief River Falls and Mrs. Robert (Thelma) Toren of Middle River.

"We liked the looks of the apartments and we haven't been disappointed," Kolden said. "It's comfortable and I still have my own car. I can get uptown when I want to and we visit with the neighbors, too."

Do they plan on staying for the next 10 years as well? "We were just talking about that," Mrs. Kolden said. "I told Thorval that in another 10 years he would be an old man. He's only 83 now."

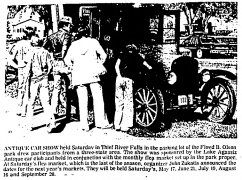
Another 10-year resident is Mrs. Olga Storhaug, a widow who sold her 10-room house and moved into apartment 68 on Labor day weekend of 1969. "My husband had been a plasterer and died seven and a half years before," she said. "The house was big and I had been in an upstairs apartment. I wanted something on the ground floor, so I applied here and was accepted."

Mrs. Storhaug has been impressed by the friendly people living in the apartments and she is one of the residents most actively promoting craft and activities projects. Most of the people in her section of the complex have been there since it opened and they do a lot of socializing.

A native of the Grygla area, she came to Thief River Falls around 1920, working for the Tri-State Telephone company which later became Northwest Bell. She was a telephone operator when people called more often by name than by number and if the operator couldn't find a person he probably wasn't in town. The operators worked an eight-hour shift and there were five or six operators on duty at a time. They even provided wake-up service, calling certain people who were otherwise in the habit of oversleeping.

"Gordon LaBree was one of those," Mrs. Storhaug said. "He would tell us, 'Just let it ring twice and I'll be awake'."

Mrs. Storhaug didn't necessarily plan to be here for the 10th anniversary of the units, but she did know when she moved in that it was the last place she intended to stay. "I knew I wasn't going to live anyplace else," she said. "And if I had to move I don't know where I would go. There isn't any place I would like any better."



ANTIQUE CAR SHOW held Saturday in Thief River Falls in the parking lot of the Floyd B. Olson park drew participants from a three-state area. The show was sponsored by the Lake Agassiz Antique car club and held in conjunction with the monthly flea market set up in the park proper. At Saturday's flea market, which is the last of the season, organizer John Zukatis announced the dates for the next year's markets. They will be held Saturday's, May 17, June 21, July 19, August 16 and September 20.

CHECKING THE LIST of residents to determine which have been the only residents of the apartments they occupy are Skylite apartments business manager Beverly Holm and caretaker Oscar Mossestad. Oscar helped build the units and has been the only caretaker in 10 years since the units were built. There are 27 residents who have lived at the complex for the entire 10 years it has been available.

public libraries throughout the area. The copies of the area plan in local public libraries give further access to its contents to interested citizens.

Major emphasis of this area plan is on legislation as it affects the operation of the schools, and it mentions that "local districts appear interested in developing the framework which permits them to engage in cooperative efforts on an identified need basis while retaining their own local representation and autonomy in relationship to their community schools."

Friends Of The Library Plan Annual Meeting

"Friends of the Library" organization will hold its annual meeting at the library at 7:30 p.m. September 24.

Friends of the Library was organized in 1961 and over the years has initiated many services that the library today considers integral to its program. The group has promoted the library's services and has raised money to purchase equipment and materials for the library.

Recently the membership has dwindled and projects have been few. The group looks to 1980 as an appropriate time to actively recruit new members and leaders and to initiate some new projects.

For more information about the meeting please call Julie Chase at 681-4325.

Bert Walker Rites Today At Red Lake Falls

Bert Walker, 72, of Red Lake Falls died Tuesday at Northwestern hospital.

Mass of the Resurrection for Bert Walker will be offered today (Monday) at 2 p.m., at St. Joseph Catholic church in Red Lake Falls. Rev. Jerome Felion will be the celebrant. Interment will be in the St. Vincent de Paul Catholic cemetery at Plummer with the Petterson Funeral home, Red Lake Falls, in charge of arrangements.

Bert Wakler was born Aug. 31, 1907 in Equality township, Red Lake county, to Mr. nd Mrs. James Walker. He was a lifelong resident of Red Lake county.

He was married on Nov. 26, 1931 at St. Joseph Catholic church, Red Lake Falls to Rena Hance. Following their marriage, the couple lived in Oklee. Since 1946, they have made their home in Red Lake Falls.

Walker was a power patrol operator for 32 years for the Red Lake county highway department, working first in the Oklee area and later in the Red Lake Falls area.

He is survived by his wife, six sons: James Walker, Roy, Utah; Larry and Terry, both of St. Hilaire; Bruce, Los Angeles, Calif.; Douglas, stationed at the U.S. Naval Air station in Corpus Christi, Tex.; and Timothy of Duluth; 18 grandchildren and two great-granchildren.

Also surviving are a sister, Mrs. William (Dolly) Malwitz, Red Lake Falls; and five brothers: Martin E. Walker, Oklee; George and Rex, rural Oklee; Patrick, Pengilly; and Leslie, Fargo, N.D.

He was preceded in death by his parents, one son, Bud, and two brothers.

Graveside Rites Held Today For Ruth Barnette

Mrs. Harry (Ruth) Barnette, 72, of Minneapolis, and formerly of Newfolden, died Wednesday in North Memorial hospital at Robinsdale.

Funeral services for Mrs. Harry Barnette were held Saturday at Christ English Lutheran church in Minneapolis. Graveside services were held today (Monday) at 10 a.m., at the Oak Grove cemetery at Newfolden with Rev. Hans Floan officiating. The Green Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Barnette, the former Ruth Hanson, was born Jan. 9, 1907 in Marshall county, Marsh Grove township, to Herman and Marie Hanson. She attended school and grew to womanhood in that community.

On Feb. 23, 1930, she was married in Minneapolis to Harry Barnette. Since then, she had made her home there. She was a beautician and for several years owned and operated a shop in downtown Minneapolis.

Surviving are her husband, a son and daughter-in-law, Harry Jr., and Romona Barnette of Austin; a daughter and son-in-law, Faye and Roger Femrite, Minneapolis; one grandson, two brothers: Hans Hanson, Newfolden and Albert Hanson, Middle River; a sister, Mrs. Conrad (Inga) Melo, of Newfolden, and several nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her parents, her twin sister, Mae Belle Leidgen, another sister who died in infancy, and one brother.

Services Held For Minnie Glewwe, 88

Funeral services for Mrs. Minnie Glewwe, 88, a former resident of Thief River Falls, were held Saturday at 2 p.m., at the Green Funeral chapel in this city. Mrs. Glewwe died Sunday at the Seatoma Convalescent center in Seattle, Wash.

Rev. Jonathan Law, pastor at the United Methodist church, officiated at the services. Organist and soloist was Mrs. Sherman Idso. Interment was in Greenwood cemetery.

Pallbearers were Milan Borsheim, Otto Stenberg, Jesse Vedum, Ward Votova, Gay Wanecke and Laurel Schuster.

Mrs. Glewwe, the former Minnie Bergh, was born March 28, 1891 at Gary to Martin and Anna Bergh. As a child, she moved with her family to Garnes township, Red Lake county. There she attended school and grew to womanhood.

On Nov. 11, 1914, she was married at Plummer to August Glewwe. The couple lived at Plummer until 1930, when they moved to Thief River Falls. Following the death of her husband in 1961, Mrs. Glewwe continued to live in Thief River Falls until 1966, when she moved to the Seattle area. She had since resided there.

Her only survivors are a number of nieces and nephews.

In addition to her husband and parents, she was preceded in death by six sisters and five brothers.

Don't overlook survivors' insurance payments under Federal Social Security. This may be an important source of income to your family, and it is not subject to federal income tax. You must apply to the Social Security office to receive payment. We can suggest the proof they will require of you.

Hanson Gives His Views On Road Problems

State Senator Marv Hanson, District 1, scored recent remarks by Republican caucus leader Gerald Knickenbroker and Rep. Myron Nysether, IR, District 1A. "They say they don't want the matter to be partisan and then go on to do just that," Hanson said.

"Let's get the record straight first," Hanson continued. "The house tax division 1 with a Republican majority and chaired by Republican Robert Searles had three proposals before it this past session.

"The first was sponsored by IR Rep. Redalen that tied gas tax increases to the consumer price index and was Governor Quie's proposal. It's ironic that the IRs were trying to put automatic tax increases into the gas tax when we were trying to take those same kinds of automatic increases out of the state income tax.

"For fiscal year 1980 this measure would have increased the gas tax about one cent. A penny in gas tax is estimated to raise about $24 million. The shortfall estimated by the department of transportation for the upcoming year is $122.5 million. What was the action of the division? It referred the measure to the full tax committee without recommendation, neither approving it nor rejecting it.

"The second proposal was also authored by Rep. Redalen which would have raised the gas tax one cent for fiscal year '80 and another one cent in '81. The division took no action on this proposal," Sen. Hanson said.

"The third proposal was presented by Rep. McEachern, DFL, transfering the sales tax on motor vehicles to the highway fund. This would have provided about $91 million in fiscal year '80 and $103 million in fiscal year '81. It now appears that this measure would have more closely matched what now is required and without an increase in taxes.

"What happened? Rep. Prahl, DFL, moved it be referred to the full committee and be passed. That motion failed. Rep. Rothenberg, Republican from St. Louis Park, then moved that it be laid on the table (or killed for the session for most part). That passed," the senator added.

"Later in the session, Rep. Brinkman, DFL, got the measure taken from the table for reconsideration. It then was referred to the full house tax committee without recommendation.

"What occurred then," Hanson said, "was that Rep. Siebeh, DFL, chairman of the house tax committee, offered to hold a hearing on all of these proposals. Both Republican chairman of the two house tax divisions told him that they did not care for the tax committee to hold such a hearing at that time of the session."

Hanson further stated, "If the Republicans are so concerned about the road cutbacks, why didn't they see that the criteria adopted by our Republican appointed commissioner of transportation to determine which projects were cut did not penalize rural Minnesota? Apparently the commissioner doesn't recognize the importance of a good road system to our agricultural industry and farmers in the state.

"It does not help to try and make a political football out of this, especially so for northwestern Minnesota. We have to maintain and enhance our road systems to move our agricultural products and to attract additional manufacturing. The commissioner of transportation should recognize that a 10-ton road system is a priority for rural Minnesota."

Hanson concluded by saying that he hoped partisanship would end on the matter. "We have to work together to get the criteria changed and new priorities established. Additional funding has to be found in the upcoming 1980 session of the legislature. Let's get on with the task of providing for the roads, and end the accusations."

SOUND LEVEL is the name of the new music shop located in the Falls Mall and operated by Rick and Kathy Nelson, both Thief River Falls natives. Rick also operates a dental lab in this city. Visiting the Nelsons to present a first dollar of profit plaque recently were Bob Kosel (left) and Bill Hogan of the local chamber of commerce ambassadors group.

Motor Vehicle Problems Head Complaint List

Consumers complain loudest and longest about problems with their motor vehicles, according to a report released by the Minnesota office of consumer services. Almost 30 per cent of the complaints listed in the report relate to motor vehicles. The report is a statistical analysis of the written complaints received by the office between January and June of this year.

Motor vehicle complaints have always topped the list, and there has been a 76 per cent increase in the number of complaints since 1976. About half of the 453 motor vehicle complaints relate to new cars still under warranty. This is also up substantially from 1976.

Director of consumer services, Kris Sanda, said efforts now are "in the direction of getting a handle on motor vehicle complaints. We are working to establish guidelines for handling these complaints and encouraging automobile dealerships to comply voluntarily".

Sanda also said that future complaint statistics will be handled by computer. "In the past we have done all our tabulations by hand. After we complete the transfer to a computer system we will be able to retrieve more complete and specific data about the various categories of complaints".

The list showed 29.19 per cent of the complaints concerned motor vehicles followed by mail order firms at 11.92 per cent, housing at 9.28 per cent, publications at 5.73 per cent, health at 3.67 per cent, clothing and accessories at 3.22 per cent and landlord-tenant at 2.96 per cent. Other complaints of a smaller percentage were registered in a number of other areas.

RN Openings Announced By Nurse Corps

Army nurse corps recently announced that it has immediate openings for RN's in Alaska, Korea and Europe. To qualify for these assignments a nurse must have a minimum of a bachelors degree in nursing, must be less than 40 years old, and must meet the other criteria for a commission in the army nurse corps.

"This is an unusual situation," stated Captain Mary Uttech, army nurse counselor for Minnesota, "Usually nurses have to wait for a year before they can get these assignments."

Nurses are commissioned as a lieutenant, captain or major, depending on experience. Transportation of nurses and their families, as well as shipment of household goods and car, are paid for by the army.

For more details, interested nurses may call collect to Capt. Uttech at 612-725-6141.

Electric And Hybrid Car Use Requested

Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) could be using electic cars next year under a proposal submitted to the U.S. department of energy (DOE), according to Richard Braun, commissioner, Mn-Dot.

Mn-Dot has applied for participation in the Doe's electric and hybrid vehicle demonstration project, Braun said.

Under the proposal submitted, Mn-DOT would purchase 10 vehicles, eight electric and two hybrid (using both electric and conventional gas engines). These would be distributed to Mn-DOT locations throughout the state to gain maximum exposure to the vehicles and to test them under a range of climatic conditions.

"If Minnesota's proposal is accepted by DOE, over three million people in Minnesota could be exposed to alternative transportation technology through this project," Braun said. "We think the demonstration could greatly increase public acceptance of electric vehicles and alternative transportation forms."

Inflation And Productivity

Following editorial is from the Morris Tribune:

Government statistics released Tuesday show that hourly compensation of American workers rose at an annual rate of 7.9 per cent in the second quarter of this year. Meanwhile, consumer prices are going up at an annual rate of at least 13 per cent. In other words, if inflation continues at its present rate, American workers will lose about 5 per cent of their purchasing power in the next year. This is the largest recorded drop in real hourly wages since the government began reporting these statistics in 1958.

In addition to the dramatic drop in purchasing power, the recently compiled government statistics reveal a significant drop in productivity, a sharp contrast to the rest of the industrialized world, where productivity is on the rise. This lag will almost certainly produce more inflation as industrial output will not be able to offset increased costs of production, resulting in higher prices. And our high rate of inflation discourages the personal savings and capital for mation that are necessary if we are to invest in the technological improvements which can increase productivity.

Thus, high inflation and law productivity fuel each other in a manner which is extremely destructive to our standard of living and our economic future. These new government reports indicate that the current recession could become much worse that Mr. Carter and his aides have predicted. And unless these trends are reversed, America's ability to compete in world markets could be seriously jeopardized.

It is clear that controlling inflation should be the overriding concern of President Carter and the United States Congress. A massive cut in federal spending is the first and most obvious step to be taken, for huge budget deficits are certainly the biggest single cause of the inflation we are experiencing. Fortunately we are experiencing. Fortunately, the expression of popular sentiment against government waste has been growing since the victory of California's Proposition 13. This increased public awareness of the problem could have a great effect on the character of the Congress to be elected in 1980.

A Time To Be Heard

Northern Minnesota residents concerned with the local highway situation as a result of cut-backs announced for the highway program will have no better opportunity than on Wednesday evening to bring their concerns and comments to the attention of state officials.

Richard Braun, commissioner of the Minnesota department of transportation, is scheduled to be at Northland community college at 7:30 p.m. to meet with all persons affected by the movement of grain and timber and to discuss the department's policy in regard to 10-ton routes in northwestern Minnesota. It isn't often than Mohammad comes to the mountain, so to speak, so this will be the time to try out the big gun in the Mn-DOT arsenal.

Northwestern Minnesota is no different than any other part of the state in the opinion that it isn't getting all it is entitled to in the way of highway projects. It is easy to look at any project elsewhere and wonder why the same thing couldn't be done here, just as it is easy to overlook what has been done in our area.

Most irksome to us northern folk (the metroites like to call us "outstate") are such seemingly nonsensical projects as "sound barriers" along the freeways in the Twin Cities area while our farm to market roads go to hell in a handbasket. Certainly we recognize that there are limits to dollars to be spent, but we think the spending could be a little more judicious. Other "outstate" areas feel the same about their local situations.

We do concede that the state transportation department is now impaled on the horns of a dilemma. While encouraging motoring practices which reduce gasoline consumption, the department is cutting off its lifeblood — the taxes paid by motorists for each gallon of gasoline they buy. The natural reaction is to take the obvious route — increase the tax per gallon to compensate (and then some) for the reduced number of gallons purchased.

It is a foregone conclusion that the fuel-purchasing public will scream in agony over an added cent or two or three to the gas tax. After all, it is a revered American tradition to complain about taxes and almost un-American not to. It's the accepted thing to do. And among those likely to protest the loudest are the truckers, those knights of the road who require a vast number of gallons of fuel and — not incidentally — also beat to a pulp the highways which they use.

It is a paradox that motorists almost placidly accept the monumental rise in the cost of motor fuel to double and triple its former prices, but rise in righteous wrath over a few pennies more to keep the roads they use driveable.

Suppose it was publicized that the state was going to raise the gas tax from 12 to 15 cents. "Twelve cents is enough!" the public would cry. "We can live with 12 cents but 15 cents is excessive!" And the public would accept a 12-cent tax. It wouldn't seem like such an impossible figure.

Do you know what the state gas tax on fuel used in registered motor vehicles is now? We'd bet a fill of nonleaded that at least nine out of 10 drivers pulling up to the pumps wouldn't know. We didn't know until we asked, and the two places we asked — the state highway construction office and a good-sized service station — didn't know for sure and had to look it up.

It's just under nine cents a gallon — .0891 cents, to be exact. Would a boost to 12 cents be excessive? Twelve cents didn't sound so bad when we were talking about 15.

We're not advocating a specific gas tax increase nor any other program to provide more highway funds, although we believe additional funds are necessary and we want to see some of them spent in this area. The points we want to make are these:

(1) People should take a realistic look at taxes and what can be accomplished with their use; and

(2) If you have any strong feelings on gas taxes, highway conditions or state highway programs, get youself over to the Wednesday night meeting and tell the commissioner what's on your mind.

Who Does The Ripping?

In his "High Finance" column in Minneapolis "Skyway News", columnist Ralph Mason shares a letter regarding rising fuel prices and who benefits from the increase. The column follows:

In my mail is a letter from George A. Clowes, Mt. Prospect, Ill., who is worried about the energy crisis and the erosion of justice and individual freedom that is accompanying it. Clowes said that because President Carter criticized the oil companies "for ripping off the American public, I felt it was my civic duty to find out more about these companies and their apparently excessive profits. I found that a ripoff was indeed occurring."

Using figures from the Value Line investment survey of July 20, 1979, Clowes said, "I found that in 1978 the oil industry made gross profits of $20 billion on sales of $420 billion. In other words, out of every dollar of sales, the oil companies made a little less than a nickel. However, of the $20 billion gross profit, the oil companies keep only $4 billion. The rest went to shareholders' dividends ($3 billion) and to the government ($13 billion in taxes).

"Thus, the government takes 65 cents of every dollar of profit earned by the oil companies, shareholders get only 20 per cent ($3 billion) and the government gets 80 per cent ($13 billion), just enough to pay for the department of energy bureaucracy.

"The American public is being ripped off, all right, but by the government, not by the oil companies. The government is making three times more money out of higher gasoline prices than the oil companies."

Referring to Carter's energy speech in which the president said there was "a growing disrespect for government," Clowes said, "This disrespect is well-founded. When the government takes a massive 80 per cent of an industry's distributed profits, berates the public for its self-indulgence and consumption, and then has the nerve to ask for even more taxes, something is seriously wrong with government."

Borrowed Nonsense:

Actively atune to the world around him, five-year-old Price was taken to a new Sunday school class by his grandmother. When the class was asked if anyone knew a memory verse, he quickly raised his hand. Called upon by the teacher, he stood solemnly and recited, "You can take this job and shove it!"

As the strikingly beautiful woman passed the businessmen's luncheon table, several of the men expressed approval. "Fantastic," one of the men admired. "Five kids," said another. "You mean to say she has five kids?" the first exclaimed. "No," replied the second, "but you do."

BEGINNING PRACTICE as dentist and dental hygienist in Thief River Falls September 24 will be Nathan Jorgenson, DDS, and his wife Teresa. They will be located in the new dental offices off Third street on Red Lake boulevard. Jorgenson is a native of Jackson, graduated from Concordia college and the University of Minnesota school of dentistry and is entering his first practice. Teresa taught dental hygiene at the dental school.

Senator Seeks Action On Fuel For Home Heat

Senator Dave Durenberger says thousands of Minnesotans will face home heating bills they can't pay unless immediate action is taken by congress on an energy crisis intervention program.

"The senate has already approved the program," said Durenberger. "Now we have to approve the House-Senate conference report. I've asked senate majority leader Robert Byrd to schedule this on the agenda as soon as possible so the people of Minnesota will have the assistance available in time for winter."

Durenberger said the community service administration (CSA) has already scheduled training sessions September 20 and 21 to instruct representatives of state agencies on the crisis intervention program. According to CSA officials, the states should receive the money for distribution to citizens by November 1.

"The CSA has the mechanics in place; now othey need congress to finalize the bill," said the senator.

In his letter to Byrd, Durenberger said, "The energy crisis intervention program is the only program the government has to help the poor and needy to stay warm during the long and severe winters that we face in Minnesota. Since Minnesota experiences an early winter any delay in the allocation of the funds to the state may result in thousands of unheated households this fall and winter."

Durenberg, who returned to Washington last week after spending August travelling throughout Minnesota, said the need for assistance with high fuel bills was one of the most common concerns people shared with him.

"The poor, the near-poor and those on fixed incomes are scared that they'll be left with heating bills they can't afford and no one will be there to help them. Unless we pass the energy crisis intervention funds their worst fears may be reality," Durenberger said.

Agencies Seek Involvement In Planning

Minnesota's soil and water conservation agencies would like a cross section of 140,000 citizens to help them plan the future of conservation programs by participating in the Minnesota congress on soil and water management.

Governor Quie and television and film actor Eddie Albert are helping extend that invitation on behalf of Minnesota's soil and water conservation board and soil and water conservation districts, and USDA's soil conservation service. Albert is featured in a brochure and radio and television announcements promoting the project.

Goals of the soil and water management congress are to tank resource problems according to severity and to assure that conservation programs are focused on the most serious problems.

People can participate during September by completing a response sheet provided by the Minnesota congress on soil and water management. The sheet asks people to comment on a proposal for future soil and water conservation efforts in their area.

The response sheet is being mailed with a brochure to about 110,000 persons who represent varying interests and occupations. Another 30,000 are available from local soil and water conservation district offices, the Minnesota soil and water conservation board, or the soil conservation service.

Wholesaling Rises 93.3 Per Cent In 1972-77

Data from the 1977 census of wholesale trade shows that 8,625 wholesale establishments had sales totaling $29.1 billion, an increase of 93.3 per cent over sales reported in 1972 when the last such census was taken, according to the Bureau of the census, U.S. department of commerce.

Among the kinds of business for which data is presented for the state, the percentage change in sales ranged from an increase of 150.1 per cent for machinery, equipment and supplies wholesalers to an increase of 13.5 per cent for beer, wines and distilled alcoholic beverages wholesalers.

Measured in dollar volume of sales, farm-product raw materials wholesalers were the largest wholesalers in the state with 1977 sales of $5.2 billion, followed by machinery, equipment and supplies wholesalers with $4.9 billion. These two kinds of business accounted for 34.8 per cent of the state's total sales by wholesalers.

1977 payroll of wholesale establishments in the state amounted to $1.3 billion, up 63.4 per cent from 1972. Chemicals and allied products wholesalers showed the largest increase in payroll, with an increase of 94.5 per cent.

There were 94,320 paid employees (full - and part-time) engaged in wholesale trade in the state as of mid-March 1977. Machinery, equipment, and supplies wholesalers were the largest employers with 23,803 employees, followed by groceries and related products wholesalers with 11,661 employees.

Hennepin county led the counties in the state, accounting for 53.8 per cent of total sales by wholesalers. Minneapolis had the largest sales among the cities in the state, accounting for 18.6 per cent.

Statistics in this release come from the Minnesota geographic area statistics report, WC77-A-24, 1977 census of wholesale trade. The complete report, to be issued shortly in microfiche and paperback versions, will present wholesale totals for all counties and data for 20 major kind-of-business groups for counties with 200 establishments or more in the state. More detailed kind-of-business information will be presented for major areas — the state, standard metropolitan statistical areas (SMSA's), and counties and cities with 500 establishments or more. The amount of kind-of-business detail will vary according to the number of establishments in an area. (The geographic area reports will be issued for each state, the District of Columbia, and the United States.)

Announcements containing descriptions and publication dates of the various publications in the 1977 census of wholesale trade, and an order form for purchasing them, can be obtained from the subscriber services section (Publications), bureau of the census, Washington, D. C. 20233.

Cattlemen To Meet Sept. 29 At Fosston

Minnesota state cattlemen's association will host a cow-calf seminar on September 29 at the Fosston civic center. The program from 3 to 5 p.m. will close with a complimentary chuck wagon meal.

The event is sponsored by the Minnesota state cattlemen's association, University of Minnesota extension service, Merck & Co. animal health division, and International Minerals and Chemicals corporation.

Guests will be welcomed by Dr. Harvey Peterson of Northwestern stockmen's association. Paul Iverson with I.M.C. will discuss proper implanting and Ed Lovitt, Merck & Co. will give a presentation on roundworm control in beef cows.

Dr. Charles Christians, University of Minnesota extension animal scientist, will talk on selecting replacement heifers and preparing the cow herd for winter. Dr. Robert Becker, state membership chairman of the state association, will close the afternoon session with a talk on the cattlemen's association working for beef producers.

All cattlemen are invited to attend.

Pedestrians Urged To Wear Light Clothing

Minnesota department of public safety is asking all nighttime pedestrians to wear light, bright or white clothing or use reflective tape in order to reduce the number of pedestrian injuries and fatalities on Minnesota roads.

Statistics released by the department show that, in 1978, 76 per cent of all pedestrian deaths could have been avoided if the pedestrian had been seen by the motorist," said public safety commissioner John P. Sopsic.

He said that the surest way to be seen, when walking or running on or near the road, is to wear reflective tape on outer-garments or a reflectorized arm band. Reflective material also can be attached to shoes or worn as a dangle tag.

Reflective material, which contains tiny beads, sends light back to its source and shines against the headlights of a car.

"Fall and winter with shorter days and more hours of darkness mean greater danger to pedestrians," Sopsic said. "Motorists should be on the alert for school children and joggers. And all pedestrians should make themselves as visible as possible on the road."

Hearings On Health Service Plans Slated

Proposed 1980-81 community health services plan for Quin county (Kittson, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake and Roseau counties) has been available for public review in county auditors' offices and nursing service offices at county seats.

There will be public meetings to review the plan for Pennington County September 18, at 9:30 a.m. at the Thief River Falls courthouse in the first floor meeting room, and for Marshall county September 17 at 7 p.m. at the Warren courthouse in the courtroom.

Inflation price you out of a new building? Take a look at Stran.
And reconsider.
As your Authorized Stran Builder, we're very much aware of how inflation has affected the cost of building new facilities.
Costs have risen dramatically for both materials and construction labor. That's why it makes good building sense to take a look at Stran's building systems approach. Why?
- Most of the building is fabricated in a modern manufacturing plant to take advantage of automation and more productive man-hour utilization.
- The system is designed and produced to go together fast at your job site. Saving valuable man-hours in on-site construction costs.
So before calling off your plans for a new building, call us and let's see how we can help you deflate inflation. We may have you breaking ground after all.

COUNTY BOARD PROCEEDINGS

September 17, 1979
Official Proceedings
Board of County Commissioners
Pennington County, Minnesota
September 4, 1979

Pursuant to adjournment the County Board met in the Commissioners' Room in the Courthouse in Thief River Falls at 9:00 A.M., Sept. 4, 1979.

Members present: Hoffman, Grabanski, Koop, Stenberg and Tasa.

The minutes of the meeting of August 7 were read and approved as read.

[illegible] see the Goodridge City Council about the matter.

Application for adjustment in the valuation of a Mobile Home was approved for Donovan Verbout on Mobile Home in Countryside Trailer Court. Valued as a 1976 Model while it is actually a 1972 Model. Adjustment of $23.81.

A delegation from Norden Township and the area adjacent to County Road 64 as it runs West from TH 32 appeared with request for repair of the 1 mile or so of CR 64 where gravel trucks have been running and have the road in bad repair. The Engineer stated that the Contractor had agreed to maintain the road while hauling. It is apparent that they stopped hauling for a time and did not tell the Highway Dept. The road is in need of being rebuilt so that it can be maintained properly. The Engineer is to check and correct the problem.

A group from St. Hilaire appeared and asked about the progress of the program for construction of the bridge that is programmed to be replaced at the south edge of the City. The Engineer reviewed the procedures required for replacing the bridge and the many Agencies that had to be cleared for approval. The final approval date is nearly here and a hearing has been set for anyone that wants to be heard.

Commissioner Koop introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

BE IT RESOLVED By the Board of Commissioners of Pennington County, Minnesota as follows:

1. It is hereby determined: (a) That contracts have been entered into by the County for the construction, extension or improvement of county ditches (The Improvements) and that the cost of such work has been determined and that assessments have been or will be levied in the amounts as follows:

Project Designation & Description
Judicial Ditch No. 13 — $33,000;
Judicial Ditch No. 15 — $10,000;
Judicial Ditch No. 18 — $88,000;
Judicial Ditch No. 30 — $31,000;
County Ditch No. 21 — $18,000;
County Ditch No. 41 — $12,000;
County Ditch No. 46 — $8,000 for a Total of $200,000., (b) that it is necessary and expedient to the sound financial management of the affairs of the County to issue $200,000 General Obligation Drainage Bonds of 1979, (the "Bonds") to provide financing for the improvements.

2. In order to provide financing for the improvements, the County shall therefore issue and sell Bonds in the amount of $200,000. The Bonds shall be issued and sold in accordance with the terms of the following Official Terms of Bond Sale:

Official Terms of Bond Sale
$200,000
Pennington County, Minnesota
General Obligation
Drainage Bonds of 1979

These Bonds (the "Obligation") will be offered for sale on sealed bids on Tuesday, October 23, 1979. Bids will be opened and acted upon at 1:30 P.M., at the Courthouse in Thief River Falls, Minnesota. The obligations will be offered upon the following terms:

Details of the Obligations

The Obligations will be dated November 1, 1979, and will bear interest payable on each February 1, and August 1 to maturity, commencing August 1, 1980. The Obligations will be general obligations to the Issuer for which its full faith and credit and unlimited taxing powers will be pledged in addition to liens filed against the benefited properties. The Obligations will be non-registrable in bearer form with interest coupons attached, and will be of the denomination of $5,000 each unless other denominations are requested by the Purchaser within 48 hours after the award. The proceeds will be used to finance the construction and improvement of various ditches within the County.

The Obligations will mature February 1, in the amounts and years as follows: $20,000 in each of the years 1981-1990, both inclusive. The bonds will be issued without option of prior redemption.

Type of Bid

A sealed bid enclosed in a sealed envelope marked "Bid for $200,000 General Obligation Drainage Bonds of 1979" for not less than par and accrued interest on the total principal amount of the obligations, and a certified check, cashier's check or bank draft in the amount of $4,000 payable to the order of the issuer must be filed with the undersigned prior to the time of sale; no bid will be considered for which said check has not been filed. The check of the Purchaser will be retained by the issuer as liquidated damages in the event the Purchaser fails to comply with the accepted bid. Oral auction bids will not be received.

Rates

Bidders may specify rates each of which must be in an integral multiple of 4-100 of 1 per cent not exceeding 7 per cent per annum. All Obligations of the same maturity must bear a single rate from the date of issue to maturity. No rate may exceed the rate specified for any subsequent maturity by more than 1.20 per cent per annum. Additional coupons may not be used. The net effective average rate of the issue may not exceed 7 per cent per annum. No B. coupons.

Award

Award will be made on the basis of the lowest dollar interest cost determined by the deduction of any premium from the total interest on all Obligations from their date to their stated maturity. The issuer reserves the right to reject any and all bids, to waive informalities and to adjourn the sale.

Paying Agent

Principal and interest will be made payable at a suitable bank recommended by the purchaser and approved by the Board, and the County will pay customary charges for this service provided that such recommendation is received within 48 hours after the sale and the Board will select the paying agent if the recommendation is not approved.

Cusip Numbers

The issuer will assume no obligation for the assignment or printing of CUSIP numbers on the bonds or for the correctness of any numbers printed thereon, but will permit such printing to be done at the expense of the purchaser, if the purchaser waives any extension of the time of delivery caused thereby.

Settlement

The Obligations will be delivered without cost to the Purchaser anywhere in the United States within 40 days following the date of their award. Delivery will be subject to receipt by the Purchaser of an approving legal opinion of LeFevere, Lefler, Pearson, O'Brien & Drawz of Minneapolis, Minnesota, which opinion will be printed upon the Obligations, and of customary closing papers, including a no-litigation certificate. On the date of settlement payment for the Obligations by the Purchaser must be made in immediately available funds. BY ORDER OF THE BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS.

3. The County Auditor is authorized and directed to advertise the Bonds for sale in accordance with the foregoing Official Terms of Bond Sale and to cause the abbreviated notice of sale attached hereto as Exhibit "A", to be published in the manner required by law. The County Board shall meet on Tuesday, October 23, 1979, at 1:30 o'clock p.m. for the purpose of considering sealed bids on the Bonds and taking any other appropriate action.

The motion for the adoption of the foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Tasa and upon vote being taken thereon, the following voted in favor of the motion: Hoffman, Grabanski, Koop, Stenberg and Tasa and following voted against: None whereupon said resolution was declared duly passed and adopted.

Moved by Grabanski seconded by Stenberg that the sum of $840.61 be appropriated and paid to the Pennington County Highway Department from the General Revenue Fund to reimburse the Highway Department for expenses related to the maintenance of Snowmobile Trails over the last two years. Motion declared unanimously carried.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Tasa that the Road Committee and the Bridges and Culvert Committee inspect roads, bridges and culverts at 9:00 A.M., Sept. 21, 1979. Motion carried.

At 2:00 P.M. the Board proceeded to open bids for purchase of a new Motor Grader Shed at Goodridge as duly advertised and called for: The following bids were opened and read aloud: Fahrlander Const. Co., Bagley, $25,524.64; Prichard Bros., Thief River Falls, $32,900.00; Foley Const. Co., Thief River Falls, $46,618.68. Moved by Tasa seconded by Stenberg that the bid of Fahrlander Const. Co. be accepted as the lowest and best bid in the amount of $25,524.64 and the Chairman and Auditor are authorized and instructed to enter into Contract with said low bidder. Motion declared unanimously carried.

Viola Rud, Director of the Quin County Nursing Services was present to advise the Board of an adjustment in the subsidy funds for the last half of 1979 and ask for direction as to the distribution of the same. Commissioner Stenberg introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

BE IT RESOLVED, that distribution of the adjustment in the subsidy for Community Health Services be allocated to all services participating in the subsidy.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Grabanski and declared unanimously adopted.

A Plat was approved as presented by Don Magner covering 7.5 Acres in Govt. Lot 8 in Section 9 T153N, R 43W, Rocksbury Township to be known as Magner's First Subdivision.

Commissioner Tasa introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

BE IT RESOLVED, that the Resolution adopted August 7, 1979 setting forth a date for an Election on the adoption of a State Building Code be reconsidered and the date for said Election be rescheduled to be held October 30, 1979.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Koop and declared unanimously adopted.

Prowlers Improve Play

That was a vastly improved Lincoln high school football team that beat Crosby-Ironton 26-14 Friday with a performance that finally matched the high preseason expectations of the Lincoln coaching staff.

It was no secret that Thief River Falls football followers were expecting the Prowlers to carry a 3-1, or maybe even a 4-0 record into the annual suicide match against Moorhead, scheduled to be played here Fri., Sept. 28. Wins should come, it was suggested, over Mid-State Conference foes Detroit Lakes, Crosby-Ironton and Staples. A victory over Grand Forks Red River in a tough season opener wasn't out of the picture, either.

But Red River beat Thief River Falls in a game that was actually closer than the 30-8 final would appear, and then came a mistake-ridden 13-6 loss to Detroit Lakes that many called the worst performance by the Prowlers in recent memory.

Coaches finally told the players they had to perform or plan to watch the games from the bench. It was harsh and embarrassing criticism, but the coaches knew their team had more talent than it had showed in losing twice.

And the Prowlers responded to the challenge with their finest showing of the year, both offensively and defensively, against a Crosby-Ironton team that is much better than the Detroit Lakes squad that beat Thief River Falls a week earlier. Particularly improved was the Thief River Falls offense which more than doubled its combined output from the Red River and Detroit Lakes games.

Thief River Falls will be favored to beat a winless Staples team on the road Friday. But then comes the meat of the Prowlers' 1979 schedule — Moorhead, Bemidji, Fergus Falls, East Grand Forks and Crookston. At this point the Prowlers will be decided underdogs in all five of those starts. The Spuds and Lumberjacks are both 3-0, while the Otters, Green Wave and Pirates all carry 2-1 records.

It'll take an outstanding Thief River Falls performance to beat any of those teams. But whatever the outcome, the games should provide fans with some fine football viewing. And three of those contests will be played in Thief River Falls: September 28 vs. Moorhead, October 5 vs. Bemidji and October 26 vs. Crookston.

Northland Defense Improved

On the surface a 0-2 start does not indicate that the current Northland community college football team will be any better off than its three predecessors that managed to win just four times in 20 games.

Many felt that Northland, following a strong recruiting effort by head coach Irv Smith, could become instant contenders in the Minnesota junior college athletic association Northern Division pennant race. But season-opening losses to Mesabi 20-6 and Vermilion 10-0 have quieted those thoughts.

But despite the setbacks, Northland's play has improved considerably. . .on defense. The Northmen trailed Mesabi only 13-6 until the game's final minute and then held Vermilion to three points for 3½ quarters before giving up a 52-yard punt return for a touchdown.

Those two teams have feasted on Northland in the past. A year ago the Northmen lost to Mesabi 46-7 and fell to Vermilion 26-0. In 1977 it was a 62-0 loss to Mesabi and a 28-0 loss to Vermilion. In 1976 Mesabi won 30-7 and Vermilion won 48-0.

The Northland improvement on defense is obvious through those numbers. It's the offense that has to come around for the Northmen to be a factor in the Northern Division where it's going to be tough to overcome a 0-2 start.

Miscellaneous

+Lincoln high school graduates now members of women's collegiate sports teams include sophomore Marchell Cuppett and freshman Lori Ulferts, playing field Hockey at the University of North Dakota; freshman Shari Idso, a member of the UND tennis team; and senior Sandy Schob, playing volleyball at Moorhead State University. Cuppett returns as the Sioux goalie after posting a 1.71 goals against average in 21 games as a freshman, finishing with a 7-11 record.

+Ada school board reinstated the golf and baseball programs that were cut during a financial bind last winter, reports the Norman County Index in Ada. The Ada Sports Booster Club has donated some $3,200 to help cover the cost of the sports, estimated to be approximately $2,500 per year.

+Rules examinations for football and volleyball coaches and officials will be given in Thief River Falls this week. The football exam will be given tonight (Monday), followed by the volleyball exam on Wednesday. Both tests will be given at 8 p.m. in the Lincoln high school cafeteria.

VERMILION RUNNINGBACK Terry Kearney followed the blocking of guard Mark Dorholt for a short gain before being brought down by the Northland defense, which included Kelly Turgeon (79), Tom Buel (99) and Jon Sipe (55), during Saturday's MJCAA Northern Division football game played in Thief River Falls. Kearney carried the ball 19 times, but netted only 28 yards in the hard-hitting defensive battle won by the Ironmen 10-0.

Prowlers Break Out Of Slump With 26-14 Win Over Rangers

If Friday's football game matching Thief River Falls and Crosby-Ironton was a personnel test for the struggling Prowlers that Lincoln high school coaches made it out to be earlier in the week, then give them all passing grades following their confidence-building 26-14 victory over the visiting Rangers.

Winless in two starts and coming off a horrible performance in a 13-6 loss to Detroit Lakes, all 22 Thief River Falls starters had received ultimatums during the week of practice: produce or else. And it was the mistake-ridden Thief River Falls offense that had been put under the heaviest fire after producing a mere 169 yards and 14 points in two games.

Critics were silenced Friday when Thief River Falls rolled up 354 yards with an offensive attack that featured senior captain Bill Jury who rushed for 197 yards on just seven carries, caught two passes for 84 yards and scored two touchdowns. He also returned a punt 23 yards, meaning he averaged 21.4 yards everytime he touched the football.

"We were pleased, very pleased," smiled Thief River Falls coach Gene Jurgens after the game. "The offense finally got a few yards for us. "We still had mistakes that kept the score close, but we're really happy with the win."

It was a shaky start, though, as Crosby-Ironton scored on the game's first snap from scrimmage. A short kickoff had given the Rangers field position at the Crosby-Ironton 43 and the situation quickly turned in a 57-yard touchdown when quarterback Scott Stanfield laid a soft pass into the hands of end Tom Zima who was left unattended in the Thief River Falls secondary. Zima's conversion kick was short, but the Rangers had a 6-0 edge with just 30 seconds elapsed.

Thief River Falls' first offensive possission produced only five yards and a Tom Bjorkman punt. But that punt was a blessing in disguise as Craig Huxford fumbled the ball away after being hit hard at the Crosby-Ironton 38.

Two plays later it was a 6-6 game as Dave Odegaard covered those 38 yards down the right sidelines. The option pitch on the two-point conversion try was thrown away.

The Crosby-Ironto specialty teams immediately turned the ball over again when Kevin Grochow's short kickoff bounced around until Odegaard fell on the ball at the Rangers 27 yard line.

Fullback John Dillon went straight ahead for six yards before Jury found a hole on the right side and went 21 yards for a 12-6 lead. Jeff Ulrich's conversion pass was batted down, but three touchdowns in the game's first five minutes had the fans buzzing.

Those two scoring plays provided the Prowlers with the momentum and they controlled play troughout the rest of the first half, only to go into intermission trailing 14-12.

Jim Sandberg, an offensive guard, put the Rangers on top by rambling 37 yards with a fumble recovery with just 1:32 remaining the the half. Sandberg watched as Jeff Ulrich's poorly-executed pitch to Odegaard went behind the Thief River Falls runningback. With enough presence of mind to pick the ball up and run instead of merely falling on it, Sandberg was home free for the score. Jeff Becknal found the end zone on the conversion try.

Once the second half got underway it didn't take the Prowlers long to once again establish their dominance. Jury, on the first play from scrimmage, burst through the left side, put a fkae on a linebacker, slipped out of the grasp of a defensive back and sprinted 62 yards to the Crosby-Ironton seven.

Odegaard scored on the next play, going in untouched around the left side. Odegaard, in addition to his two touchdowns, averaged 6.6 yards on eight carries and sould have had a three-touchdown, 115-yard rushing night if a third quarter 62-yard touchdown run hadn't been nullified by a holding call — away from the play.

Thief River Falls turned that 18-14 lead into a 10-point cushion midway through the third quarter when Ulrich tossed a simple swing pass to Jury on left side that was turned into a 78-yard touchdown pass. Jury, after catching the ball, cut back to his right to get behind his blockers and covered the distance easily. The Prowlers were again unsuccessful on the conversion try, but they were happy with a 24-14 lead.

Crosby-Ironton's offense never mounted a serious scoring threst in the second half, and in fact gave up the game's final two points when Stanfield was tackled in the end zone by defensive end Mitch Muzzy for a two-point safety with 4:11 remaining.

"We were a little worried about mistakes at the start," admitted Jurgens. "But we told the guys at halftime that if they would just go out and eliminate those mistakes we'd win. And that's what we did."

Jurgens was elated with the Thief River Falls defensive play that held Crosby-Ironton to just 55 yards on the ground and 157 total yards — 57 of which came on that game-opening touchdown pass.

"Our defense was just great," praised Jurgens. "Other than that first play, they really did the job. We're very pleased with our defense."

Thief River Falls, 1-2 for the year, will be at Staples Friday. Crosby-Ironton, 0-3, will host Paynesville that night.

SENT SAILING THROUGH the air after being tripped up by Thief River Falls defensive back Jeff Ulrich, Crosby-Ironton runningback Jeff Becknal ended up with a five yard gain and a first down in the fourth quarter of Friday's high school football game played in Thief River Falls. The Prowlers' Dave Odegaard (22) and Jim Thompson (40) trailed the play. Thief River Falls was a 26-14 winner in the battle of winless teams.

NWAC Teams Sweep 4 Mid-State Opponents

Northwest Athletic Conference football teams made it a clean sweep over Mid-State Conference opposition Friday as East Grand Forks bombed Staples 39-6, Crookston doubled Park Rapids 14-7, Bemidji out-scored Detroit Lakes 46-20 and Thief River Falls handled Crosby-Ironton 26-14.

Fergus Falls of the NWAC made it a 5-0 week for the league with a 21-18 win over Montevideo.

First Northwest Athletic Conference game of the year will be played Friday when Crookston travels to Fergus Falls. Elsewhere, East Grand Forks will be at Detroit Lakes, Bemidji at Park Rapids and Thief River Falls at Staples in another round of NWAC vs. Mid-State matches.

Crookston — Park Rapids

Jerry Persson provided the scoring punch on runs of 93 and three yards as Crookston pleased a large homecoming crowd with a 14-7 win over Mid-State Conference favorite Park Rapids.

The final score belied the offensive show the two teams put on that produced some 627 yards — 338 for the Panthers and 289 for the Pirates.

After a first quarter Park Rapids drive stalled at the Crookston three, Persson burst through the middle on a 93-yard touchdown sprint that

Ironmen Beat Northmen 10-0

In most cases you'll win football games when your defense does not give up a touchdown; recovers every fumble by the opposition; and surrenders only 152 yards total offense, which includes a mere 2.5-yard average on 45 running plays.

Well, an aggressive, hard-hitting Northland community college defense did all that Saturday afternoon and still came out a 10-0 loser to Vermilion in the 1979 MJCAA Northern Division home opener for the Northmen.

That's because Vermilion's equally tough defense did not give up a touchdown; recovered every Northland fumble; gave up just 128 yards total offense, which included an even lower 1.8-yard average on 39 carries; and kept Northland off the scoreboard altogether.

Those numbers, while signaling fine defensive play on both sides, do not speak highly of the offense shown by either team. Northland, in point of fact, did not cross midfield in the second half. The "deepest" pentration by the Northmen was the Vermilion 33-yard line on their first series of the game.

"We've got trouble in the offensive line," said Northland coach Irv Smith after his team lost for the second time in two starts. "I thought we were going to be decent there (offensive line), but obviously we're not. We looked good on defense, but we can't move the football, and most of it was caused by poor line play. We'll have to fine some offensive linemen who can block."

Vermilion coach Rudy Semeja said part of his team's offensive woes could be traced to the loss of star running back Tim Bosiacki who suffered a badly bruised sternum in the first quarter and did not return to the game. "That really hurt. "He's our best back," said Semeja who praised the work of his defense which features nine freshmen who recorded their second shutout victory of the season.

"We ranked sixth in the nation against the run last year," pointed out Semaja. "But we lost nine of those 11 starters. Even so, we've been very, very impressive on defense. It's a well-blended unit."

A scoreless tie was finally broken when Bob DeMaris kicked a 23-yard field goal with 2:43 remaining in the third quarter. That came six plays after Vermilion safety Todd Bergstedt recovered a fumble by Northland halfback Mike Cowart at the Northland 22. The Ironmen, who picked up one first down on the short drive, were ready to try a field goal from the 18 on a fourth and six when a Northland offside penalty moved the ball within one yard of a first down. Semeja then sent his offensive unit back onto the field to go for the first down, but had second thoughts, called time out and sent in DeMaris who made the kick easily.

Only other scoring was done by Ken Ilse who fielded picked Duane Kjono punt at the Vermilion 48, picked his way through a maze of players and broke a couple of tackles en route to a 52-yard touchdown jaunt. DeMaris' kick made it 10-0 with 9:43 left in the game.

"We played well on defense all day," commented Smith, "but our offense put our backs to the ball most of the time. Vermilion improved a lot in one week. They looked twice the team they did when I saw them beat Itasca 7-0."

Northland goes for win number one Saturday when Hibbing arrives in Thief River Falls for a 1:30 p.m. Northern Division game. Vermilion hosts the Bemidji State University junior varsity Sunday in nonconference play.

Crookston Is 30-12 Winner Over Freshmen

Crookston broke open a close game in the second half for a 30-12 freshman high school football win over Thief River Falls Thursday.

It was an 8-6 football game at halftime, but by the end of the third quarter it was 22-12 and the visitors tacked on another eight points in the final quarter.

Thief River Falls scored in the second quarter on a 37-yard Kerry Wollin to Darren Wiskow pass and in the third quarter on a 47-yard Tron Olson run.

It was the 1979 season opener for Thief River Falls, scheduled to host Grand Forks Schroeder junior high Thursday at 4 p.m.

Cards Rally, Beat Climax 2-0 Thursday

Plummer, rallying from a 13-1 first game deficit, defeated Climax 2-0 Thursday in a volleyball match played in the Pershing high school gym.

The Cardinals pulled out a remarkable 21-19 first game victory when junior Kathy Skjerven served the final three points and then walked away with an 18-8 second game decision.

"We just didn't have our heads in the first game at the beginning," explained Plummer coach Dean Miller. "There was no reaction to the serves. But they finally put things together and really took off."

Miller cited the play of junior Diane Zimpel who finished the night with 12 service points as the Cardinals improved their record to 2-1.

Plummer will host Erskine Tuesday.

Grygla — LOW

Grygla was an easy 2-0 victor over Lake of the Woods Thursday, winning 18-7, 18-11 at Baudette.

"We played a good game," mentioned Grygla coach Pam Worth who gave special praise to setters Cindy Moe and Sherri Anderson. "They did a good job at the net for us."

Grygla, 2-3, will be at Warroad Tuesday before hosting Lake of the Woods Thursday.

Goodridge — MSB

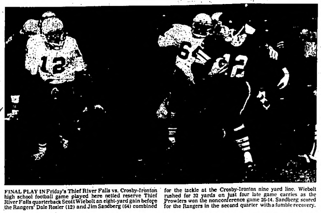
A first game Goodridge rally came up short Thursday and the Huskies lost their 1979 season and home opener to Mount St. Benedict 2-0.

Down 14-2 at the start, Goodridge forced overtime before losing a 20-18 first game decision. The Blue Wave rolled to an 18-2 second game victory.

"If we could have kept their spirits up we could have had them," said Goodridge coach Susan Saurdiff. "Maybe with a little more experience and a little more enthusiasm. . ."

Senior Renae Hanson "had some nice spikes" and freshman Sheri Swanson "had some nice sets," said Saurdiff.

Goodridge hosts Argyle Tuesday.



FINAL PLAY IN Friday's Thief River Falls vs. Crosby-Ironton high school football game played here netted reserve Thief River Falls quarterback Scott Wiebolt an eight-yard gain before the Rangers' Dale Rosier (12) and Jim Sandberg (64) combined for the tackle at the Crosby-Ironton nine yard line. Wiebolt rushed for 32 yards on just four late game carries as the Prowlers won the nonconference game 26-14. Sandberg scored for the Rangers in the second quarter with a fumble recovery.

Ness, McKeever Lead Skippers To 44-14 Win Over Cardinals

Delray Ness and Scott McKeever, taking turns at quarterback, threw for 110 yards and four touchdowns Friday afternoon as Middle River beat Plummer 44-14 in a North Tri County Conference football game played at Middle River.

Ness, a senior and the regular signal caller, completed four of 10 pass attempts for 45 yards and tossed two touchdown passes as the Skippers rolled to a 26-6 halftime lead. McKeever, a junior and normally an end but frequently a quarterback, had even more impressive figures with a 4-for-4 passing day that produced 66 yards and two touchdowns. He also scored twice himself.

"I felt our offense controlled the line of scrimmage most of the time," explained Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "We were able to run the ball on them, and then we surprised them by throwing the ball when it wasn't really a passing situation."

Two of those passes in the final four minutes of the first half broke the game open as Ness hit McKeever with a 48 yard scoring pass and McKeever tossed 27 yards to Mike Peterson who finished the day with three touchdown passes.

An inexperienced secondary caused Plummer problems, noted Cardinals coach Gary Brantl. "On defense we had one mistake after another," he explained.

The Skippers, as Sparby said, had plenty of success running the ball, racking up 236 yards on the ground as part of a 346-yard offensive show. Tailback Monty Peterson carried the ball 17 times for 117 yards.

Plummer accumulated 102 yards on the ground, 45 of those yards supplied by Blair Gustafson who scored once on his 17 carries. The Cardinals passing game produced just two completions and three interceptions in 14 attempts.

Brantl, despite the defensive problems, priased the play of Kevin Malwitz who was credited with 20 solo tackles while playing both at linebacker and defensive back.

Middle River, 2-1 for the year, hosts Erskine Friday. Plummer, 0-3, will be at Oklee that night.

Warroad . . . . 22 Marshall Co. Central 0

Warroad quarterback Ed Christian passed for three touchdowns and two sets of two-point conversions Friday was Warroad defeated error-plagued Marshall County Central 22-0 in a Top of the State Conference game at Newfolden.

"Our defense was tough, really tough, except for those few pass plays," noted Marshall County Central coach Sam Gebhart. "We just did not pick up our coverage on those plays."

Christian, who threw touchdown passes to Tom Roberts, 27 yards in the second quarter; Scott Nordquist, 16 yards in the third quarter; and Roger Christian, nine yards in the fourth quarter; finished with eight completions in 18 attempts for 87 yards. Roberts gained 72 of the Warriors' 122 rushing yards.

Marshall County Central continues to struggle offensively, losing five fumbles, throwing three interepetions and accumulating 12 penalties Friday.

"The only thing that stopped our offense was our mistakes," said Gebhart. "You can't win ball games that way."

Despite the setbacks, the Nordics managed to gain 222 yards on offense, 101 passing and 121 on the ground where Jeff Johnson rushed for 72 yards.

"Dan Maki played a good game on defense," mentioned Gebhart, "so did Dan Engen and Scott Peters."

Marshall County Central, after opening the year with three straight home field losses, will travel to Hallock Friday.

Oklee . . . . 32 Goodridge 0

Oklee runningbacks Darrell Sandeen, John Dulka and Mike Kurkpatrick combined for 270 yards rushing Friday to lead the Bobcats to a 32-0 homecoming win over Goodridge.

The almost identical rushing totals saw Sandeen gain 91 yards on 12 carries; Dulka 90 yards on 14 trips; and Kirkpatrick 89 yards on 16 tries for the bulk of the Bobcats' 306 offensive yards.

"Overall we played pretty well," said Oklee Coach Dale Svaren. "We scored two quick ones and then bogged down, but I was happy with our overall performance; and you've got to be satisfied with a shutout."

Oklee scored in a hurry when Kirkpatrick went 14 yards and Sandeen broke a 45 yarder early in the opening quarter. A pair of two-point conversions made it 16-0, a score that stood until the third quarter.

Brad Gunderson was the Oklee defensive leader with five unassisted stops and five assisted tackles from his end position. Others playing key roles in the shutout were linebackers Pat Paquin and Sandeen, tackle Joel Stolaas and defensive back Wes Magnell.

Oklee will host Plummer Friday owning a 2-1 record. Goodridge will be looking for its first win that same day at Clearbrook.

Grygla . . . . 36 Mentor 14

A 14-point third quarter output snapped a 6-6 tie Friday afternoon as Grygla broke into the win column with a 36-14 North Tri County Conference victory over Mentor.

Gerald Verbout, who scored twice, broke the tie with a 40-yard touchdown dash in the third quarter. Quarterback John Nordby, who hit Dale Lillevold with a two-point conversion pass after the Verbout score, widened the gap to 20-6 on a five-yard run later that same period.

Nordby directed the Grygla offense to a 269-yard output that included 174 yards on the ground and 95 more in the air as the Eagles improved their record to 1-2.

Greyhounds Rally Twice In 2-0 Volleyball Win Over Prowlers

Thief River Falls leads — seven points in the first game and nine points in the second game — disappeared Thursday as the Lincoln high school volleyball team lost to Fosston 2-0. The Greyhounds went home with 18-11, 18-14 wins, dropping the Prowlers to 3-2 for the year.

"We had 'em," sighed Thief River Falls coach Sharon Stauss, "but we couldn't get our serves over. Still, we played a good match. Fosston is always tough and we stayed with them."

Serving wasn't a problem at the start as Marlys Huot, Chris Lawrenz and Paula Kertz service points provided a quick 7-0 first game lead. Those first seven points came in a hurry, but things slowed considerably as both teams failed to maintain service.

Fosston chipped away at the Thief River Falls lead until a Stacy Ehrenstrom spike broke the Greyhounds serve and enabled the Prowlers to hold onto an 11-9 edge.

But that was all the scoring for the Prowlers as Heather Hagen and Janice Woods served nine unanswered game-winning points.

"We went through five service rotations with just one point in that first game," mentioned Stauss. "That's what beat us."

Nancy Noreen served two aces and Huot came up with several of key plays at the net as Thief River Falls broke away to a 14-5 second game lead.

But again the Greyhounds came back, scoring 14 straight points for the win, tying it at 14-14 on four service points by Hagen and winning it on four more service points from Woods, an impressive-looking 5-11 sophomore.

"Marlys, at the net, had a really good game," praised Stauss. "She had a lot of nice saves for us."

It was also a 2-0 victory for Fosston in the junior varsity match, 18-5, 18-12 as the Lincoln B squad record matched the varsity.

Thief River Falls will be busy this week, hosting East Grand Forks Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., driving to Moorhead Thursday for an 8:30 p.m. match and participating in a four-team tournament at Roseau Saturday beginning at 1 p.m.

FOSSTON DEFENDERS Heather Hagen (45) and Pam Juve (15) combined on a block Thursday against Thief River Falls' Stacy Ehrenstrom in the first game of the high school volleyball match played in the Lincoln gym. The Greyhounds beat the Prowlers 2-0.

Tennis Team Drops 3-2 Match At EGF

A sweep in doubles, including a third set tie breaker at number two, gave East Grand Forks a closely contested 3-2 high school tennis victory over Thief River Falls Thursday.

"It was a very close match," confirmed Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson, showing figures that gave the Green Wave with a mere 63-62 edge in total games.

Pam Tack and Carolyn Johnson of East Grand Forks cemeted the victory with a 4-6, 7-5, 7-6 decision at second doubles over first time Thief River Falls partners Nancy Swanson, a sophomore, and Michelle Olson, a seventh grader.

The Prowlers, 2-2 for the year, will host Detroit Lakes Tuesday at 3:15 p.m. and will face Bemidji and Roseau in a 2 p.m. triangular Thursday in Thief River Falls.

WINNERS IN the special 20-gauge trap league at the Marshallton Gun Club were Sandy Wilson (left) and Bill Moreau who finished with a 25-bird margin over the runner-up tandem of Bruce Johnson and Pat Fischer. The nine-week competition, which featured singles, doubles and handicap shooting, was completed Wednesday. Wilson and Moreau finished with an aggregate 374, followed by Johnson and Fischer 349; Stan Sjoberg and Jim Heckroth 345; Jim Bass and Fran Johnson 344; Dunne Holland and Ike Illingson 308.

Prowlers Will Run At Bemidji, Detroit Lakes

Meets at Bemidji Tuesday and at Detroit Lakes Thursday will keep the Thief River Falls cross country teams busy this week. But both meets, while featuring varsity, junior varsity and junior high school competition, will include boys only. The Thief River Falls girls won't run again until September 25 at Bagley.

All four Thief River Falls teams ran in the Grand Forks invitational Thursday where Moorhead ran off with most of the prizes.

The Spuds won the feature boys varsity race with 56 points, followed by West Fargo 60, Grand Forks Central 66, Grand Forks Red River 97, East Grand Forks 106, Thief River Falls 163, Grafton 180 and Devils Lake 182.

For the Prowlers, Bruce Johnson placed 18th in the 65-runner field with a 17:11 three-mile run and Greg Ness was 21st in 17:19.

Moorhead also won the girls varsity race with 20 points, followed by East Grand Forks 77, Grand Forks Central 89 and Thief River Falls 121. LeeAnn Peterson of the Prowlers was a ribbon winner with a 14:55 two-mile run that placed her tenth in the field of 34.

A third title went to Moorhead in the boys junior varsity race where Jeff Mongoven of Thief River Falls placed 16th in a field of 65 with an 18:43 over the three-mile course.

No team score was kept in the boys freshman race where Thief River Falls' Chuck Lowell ran a 12:01 two-mile to place second.

Grand Forks Schroeder won the boys junior high race with 24 points, followed by Thief River Falls 60 and Grand Forks Twiney 97. Three Thief River Falls runners earned ribbons as Mike Boreen placed third with a 9:22 in the 1½-mile race, Kevin Kevar was fifth with a 9:24 and Jeff Matson was 13th in 10:06.

PAT FISCHER was the feature Class AA titlist in the 1979 Thief River Fall Trap League city class championship shoot with a perfect 50-straight in the recent post-season competition at the Marshallton Gun Club.

Twins Sponsor Appreciation Night Sept. 28

On Friday night, September 28, the Minnesota Twins will say "thank you!" to baseball fans of the upper midwest by hosting fan appreciation night, in conjunction with the Twins-Milwaukee game at 7:30 p.m.

When the Twins played Texas at the Met on Saturday, September 8, home attendance went over the one-million mark for the season, the 12th time in the Twins' nineteen year history that that barrier has been surpassed.

To express their thanks, the Twins will give away a bevy of beautiful prizes. . .some of the best ever put up for this event. . .to several lucky fans. At the top of the list is the 1979 Chevrolet Citation which has been showcased at all Twins' home games this season.

Drawing for the prizes will take place on the field immediately following the conclusion of the game.

In addition, there will be something for everyone coming into the park that evening, a token of appreciation for making 1979 one of the most exciting in Twins' history.

With the Twins only four games behind West Division leader California and still battling to make a strong finish in the close division race, this weekend series could well affect the final standings.

Sioux To Play 37 Games In 1979-80 Season

A 37-game 1979-80 schedule for the University of North Dakota hockey team has been approved by the UND athletic board of control, according to athletic director Carl R. Miller.

The schedule includes single home games against the American, Canadian and Japanese Olympic teams plus 28 games against Western Collegiate Hockey Association contests, 14 of which are at home, and six non-WCHA games against NCAA Division I opponents, four of which are at home.

UND will open its season at home Oct. 16 against the Canadian Olympic team. The Fighting Sioux host the U.S. Olympic six Jan. 28 and entertain the Japan Olympic team Feb. 6.

Two new collegiate foes also are scheduled. UND has two-game home series against St. Lawrence University of Canton, N.Y. Nov. 16-17 and Ohio State Dec. 20-21. The Sioux will play a Jan. 4-5 non-WCHA road series at Northern Michigan University at Marquette, Mich.

Fans will have an opportunity to see two UND stars of last season performing with the American and Canadian Olympic teams. Dave Christian of Warroad, who would have been a Sioux junior center, is a member of the U.S. Olympic team and Kevin Maxwell of Chilliwack, B.C., who would have been a sophomore center and who was named to the All American team last season, is a member of the Canadian Olympic sextet. Both Olympic teams currently are on a European tour.

UND has two-game, home-and-home series with University of Minnesota, University of Denver, Michigan Tech, Colorado College and Minnesota-Duluth and meets Notre Dame and University of Michigan here in two-game WCHA series only and must travel to Michigan State and University of Wisconsin for two-game road only series.

North Dakota is the defending WCHA champion. The Sioux had a 30-11-1 record last season and finished second in the NCAA Division I tournament at Detroit.

Advance sale of tickets for the season-opening game Oct. 16 between the University of North Dakota hockey team and the Canadian National (Olympic) team at the UND Winter Sports Center in Grand Forks will begin Oct. 4, according to UND athletic business manager Jerry Kvidt.

Kvidt emphasized the UND-Canadian Olympic game here Oct. 16 is not on the UND season ticket plan.

He said UND season ticket holders and UND students will have from Oct. 4 through Oct. 12 to claim advance tickets.

Ticket prices are $6 for reserved seats to season ticket holders and $3 to UND students for assured seating in UND student sections.

After Oct. 12 unsold tickets will be on a first come, first served basis.

Tickets may be purchased at the UND fieldhouse ticket office, which is open daily from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Complete 1979-80 UND hockey schedule: Oct. 16 Canadian Olympic team; Oct. 20 at Minnesota-Duluth; Oct. 26-27 Colorado College; Nov. 2-3 Michigan Tech.; Nov. 9-10 at Denver; Nov. 16-17 St. Lawrence University; Nov. 23-24 at Michigan State; Nov. 30-Dec. 1 Minnesota; Dec. 7-8 at Minnesota-Duluth; Dec. 20-21 Ohio State; Jan 4-5 at Northern Michigan; Jan 11-12 Notre Dame; Jan. 18-19 Minnesota-Duluth; Jan. 25-26 at Colorado College; Jan. 28 U.S. Olympic team; Feb. 1-2 at Michigan Tech; Feb. 6 Japan Olympic team; Feb. 8-9 Denver; Feb. 15-16 at Minnesota; Feb. 22-23 Michigan; Feb. 29-Mar. 1 at Wisconsin.

OBVIOUSLY NOT WEARING a tear-away jersey, Vermilion quarterback Kent Roman was pulled down by a Northland defender after a short game Saturday afternoon on the Thief River Falls athletic field. The Ironmen beat the Northmen 10-0 in the MJCAA Northern Division football game.

THREE NORTHLAND DEFENDERS closed in on a Vermilion fumble in the first quarter of Saturday's college football game played here. Paul Wilcox (far right) made the recovery, with Tom Buel (99) and Luis Delahoz (21) also in the position, along with Mark Dorholt of Vermilion. The Ironmen won the game 10-0.

NORTHLAND COMMUNITY COLLEGE defensive back Paul Wilcox (20) broke up a pass play intended for Vermilion half-back Paul Ilse Saturday during the 1979 Northland football season home opener. The Ironmen returned to Ely with a 10-0 victory.

Ducks Unlimited Habitat Program Is Progressing Throughout Canada

Good weather throughout the summer, successful conclusions to negotiations with various government agencies and a series of production meetings with the new Federal Minister of the environment and several eastern Canadian provincial ministers of lands, forests and natural resources all point to a banner year for Ducks Unlimited (Canada) as it heads into the final stretch of its 1979 $14.6 million waterfowl habitat enhancement program.

Just back from a four-province swing through eastern Canada, DU (Canada) executive vice-president D. Stewart Morrison reports that relations between DU (Canada) and the departments responsible for wildlife are excellent. "Our five-year marshlands development plan proposal for Nova Scotia was well received by the provincial minister; we've been asked to prepare a similar plan for New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, and the Newfoundland government has invited us to investigate the projects in the western portion of the Island.

A meeting with John Fraser, Canada's new Minister of the Environment, resulted in a commitment by the minister to work "hand-in-hand to preserve waterfowl habitat across Canada".

Morrison reports that activities in western Canada look equally promising with the Manitoba government recently giving approval for construction to begin on the 35,000-acre Summerberry Marsh project near The Pas in northern Manitoba. At present, work is underway and on schedule on more than 80,000 acres of waterfowl habitat. And DU (Canada) biologists who recently toured the massive 320,000-acre Cumberland project in north-central Saskatchewan report that bird populations there are "phenomenally high" even though the project was completed only three months ago.

Indicative of federal government concern for the waterfowl resource is the recent announcement by the Minister of the Environment of a renewed waterfowl depredation plan, a decision that will be welcomed by farmers. "This announcement for waterfowl depredation will go a long way in helping us get the co-operation we need from farmers to keep our habitat program growing," Morrison says.

And there's increasing grassroots interest in DU from a contributor standpoint in Canada too. During the last month, a new DU chapter was established in Winnipeg which brings to six the number in Canada.

NWAC Teams Sweep Four

was followed seven plays later by Bruce Blachard's seven-yard Park Rapids touchdown run. Rich Nimnes put the Panthers ahead with the conversion kick.

Persson, who gained 146 yards on just 10 carries, capped an eight-play, 48-yard second quarter drive with a game-winning three-yard touchdown run.

Dave Schmitz of Park Rapids rushed for 161 yards on 26 carries.

East Grand Forks — Staples

East Grand Forks defense shut down Staples for an easy 39-6 victory.

Staples, scoring on a 94-yard first quarter run by Neil Jennison, accumulated only nine additional yards.

East Grand Forks was led by Todd Selk's two touchdowns and John Roche's 79 yards rushing. Craig Baglien and Dave Swanberg also scored for the Green Wave which ran up 275 yards worth of offense.

Bemidji — Detroit Lakes

Explosive Dale Leonard scored three touchdowns and Craig Erhart scored twice as Bemidji's offense riddled Detroit Lakes 46-20.

Leonard, who rushed for 123 yards, scored on runs of 27 and 70 yards and hauled in a 66-yard touchdown pass. Erhart scored on runs of 13 and 17 yards while Nelson Rotto chipped in with 105 yards on 16 carries.

Fergus Falls — Montevideo

Fergus Falls rallied from an 18-7 fourth quarter deficit to overcome Montevideo 21-18.

The Mohawks collected two safeties in the first quarter on errant centering in punting situations. But Brian Wentworth's one-yard touchdown plunge narrowed the gap to 18-13 midway through the fourth quarter and Phil Hatchner hit Brian Carlson with a 50-yard pass to set up a two-yard Wentworth touchdown run with 1:02 remaining.

The Otters, who dominated play much of the second half, had an early 7-0 lead when Jeff Siems picked up a Montevideo fumble and returned it 25 yards for a touchdown.

Public Notices

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank my friends, neighbors and relatives who remembered me so generously with cards, letters, gifts and phone calls after my accident and stay in Fairview hospital. A special thank you to Bertha Hastad for delaying her trip and standing by so faithfully. The short prayer "Lord help me" seems to take care of me quickly and efficiently.

Mrs. Tillie Waale

Card of Thanks

We would like to say a sincere thank you to the doctors and nurses at Northwestern hospital who cared for our loved one. Special thanks to Pastor Randall for prayers, visits and comforting words; to the pallbearers, ladies aid who served dinner at the church following the funeral; to Mrs. Vigstol for playing; also to Mrs. Hammer for singing; for all who gave flowers and memorials and to anyone who helped in any way. God bless you all.

Rev. Wickman Retires From Church Ministry

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

"I'm not retiring. . . I'm refiring!"

This is Rev. Marden Wickman's explanation of his resignation from the pastorate of the Evangelical Covenant church in Thief River Falls. He plans to devote about half of his time to evangelistic work which has been one of his favorite activities throughout his ministry.

In recognition of Rev. Wickman's decision to leave the active church ministry, the congregation of his Thief River Falls church will hold a special farewell service in his honor Sunday. A program will begin at 4 p.m. in the church and will be followed by lunch and fellowship. All friends of the Wickman's are invited to join the congregation at the event.

For Rev. Wickman, who has pastored the Covenant church here since Oct. 1, 1973, the ministry was always on his mind but didn't come in an orderly, progressive fashion. He had been a lay preacher and studying at several schools before going into the seminary and had been married to the former Ruth Lundgren of Columbia Heights for four years before entering the pastorate.

His first call was to the Corliss Named To Committee Of State Ass'n.

Dr. William Corliss of Thief River Falls, superintendent of School District 564, has been appointed a member of the vocational committee of the Minnesota association of school administrators for the next two years.

Dr. Corliss served as program chairman for the state organization in 1977 and as a member of the state research committee for the 1978-79 term.

Supt. Gene Busch of Newfolden has been named to the professional committee of the organization, Supt. Keith Kapphahn of Greenbush to the vocational committee.

Seven Attend State I-R Meet

Seven delegates from Pennington county attended the state Independent-Republican convention held last weekend at Alexandria.

Attending were Bob Stroble, Ev Ault, Gladys Barron, Dr. and Mrs. Arnold Berg of Thief River Falls, Dr. David Brown and Sharon Howard of Goodridge.

Council Delays Decision On Revenue Bonds

A motion to approve the issuance of commercial revenue bonds for Wagner Corporation failed in a four to four vote at a special meeting held by the Thief River Falls city council last night.

Approximately 20 persons were in attendance at a hearing on the proposed issuance of just under $1 million worth of commercial revenue bonds for Wagner Corporation. The corporation is attempting to bond for the construction of a Red Owl store and approximately 98,000 additional square feet of retail space along highway 59 south near the Dow Key building.

Both a representative for Wagner and the attorney for the corporation were in attendance along with many local businessmen. Opposition to the proposed bond issuance felt the city should not be involved in any type of endorsement of private enterprise while proponents saw the bond issuance by the city as just a legal tool. Concern was also raised about expanding the commercial space in Thief River Falls.

Offering the resolution to approve the issuance of the bonds was alderman Milan Borsheim with alderman Bill Penning offering a second to the motion. Also favoring the motion were aldermen Ole Engelstad and Ambrose Wysoski. Opposed were Mayor Bob Carlson, and aldermen Don Goodrich, Milton Reierson and Clayton Restad. With the four to four vote, the motion failed.

A second motion to meet with the planning commission about the issue and put it on the agenda for the September 25 council meeting passed and the proposed bond issuance will be taken up again during that regular meeting of the city council.

Roll Dryers Disappear At Tennis Courts

Tennis players who use the courts at Northland community college are asked to notify athletic director Al Adams at the college if they have any information on the whereabouts of roll dryers which have been left at the courts for public use.

Adams said he has obtained new rollers for the equipment but the handles and spindles for the rollers have disappeared. "We would like to be able to leave the rollers at the court for the convenience of the players who use it," Adams said, "but if they continue to disappear we will not be able to provide that service."

4-H Dog Show

Northwoods 4-H club of Bemidji will present its annual fun dog show September 30 at the curling arena in Bemidji. Obedience classes, open to everyone, will begin at 10 a.m.

"A WOMAN THAT IS BEING BEATEN feels pretty much immobilized," says Kathleen Kolden (left) of St. Hilaire who serves as secretary for the Martha Rogers Ripley Alliance for battered women. "She feels like she has no control over her life and has to stay in this situation." Kolden, who says she experienced battering in her first marriage, is one of approximately 10 to 15 women who meet weekly in a battered women's support group organized by the alliance. Gayle Larson, who got involved in the Ripley alliance to work with educational programs among health care professionals, says, "There would be a lot more women coming, but they are scared to come out. They are scared of their husbands."

Plan Shelter For Battered Women

by Kim Blaeser
Times Reporter

"A woman that is being beaten feels pretty much immobilized," Kathleen Kolden of St. Hilaire who experienced battering in her first marriage. "She feels like she has no control over her life and that she has to stay in this situation. By having a shelter where she can come with her children, what we hope to accomplish is to help this woman realize she can make decisions on her own; she doesn't have to stay there.

"The other thing the shelter will do," she says, "is to put pressure on the batterer. The woman has finally left and it's out in the open now that he is a batterer so hopefully he will take some action on his own behalf, get counseling or start to realize that he has the problem and not her."

Kolden is secretary of the Martha Rogers Ripley Alliance for battered women which is attempting to locate a regional shelter for battered women in Thief River Falls. A house at 201 Crocker av. S. has been proposed as the site and a hearing on a special use permit for the shelter is scheduled for 7 p.m. October 1 in the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

Rev. Lloyd Heroff of St. Hilaire is working with the alliance in its efforts to acquire the shelter and says that opposition to the proposal has arisen among persons in the neighborhood. Their stock questions, according to Heroff are, " 'Aren't there going to be cars racing around all hours of the night? Aren't we going to be bothered by loud, obscene language from drunken men hanging around corners? Aren't we going to be bothered by a yard full of rebellious screaming children?' My response," says Rev. Heroff, "is that these things haven't been true of the 'safe homes' and in places where they have already established shelters."

Julie Chase, alliance board member, is also reassuring about possible negative effects on any neighborhood where the shelter is located. "Sensationalism really doesn't happen after the shelter has opened. Neighbors have real genuine fears and apprehensions about what it is going to mean in their neighborhood, but where the shelters have existed for anywhere from two to 10 years, most of these fears and reservations have diminished and property owners have come to support the shelters."

Among the cities which presently have shelters are Wilmar, St. Cloud, Minneapolis and Brainerd. "We will be prepared to present affidavits at the hearing from other shelters stating that there have been no negative effects," states Chase. "The sensationalism takes place in the private homes, not the shelter. If it did, it would have made the headlines. In Minneapolis the Harriet Tubman shelter existed for two years before anyone in the neighborhood even knew it was there. That is how dull it is to have one in your neighborhood."

When asked about the possibility of husbands attempting to break into a shelter, two area women who have lived in a battered situation commented, "They won't because it is too threatening to them. The only place they have any guts is at home where they won't get caught."

Rev. Heroff also states, "I don't believe that any of these men would be violent anywhere outside of their own home and with members of their own family. . .Statistics suggest that by and large these people have a record of only being violent with a particular member or members of their own family. That is why friends and relatives find it hard to believe because, they say, 'he is just

Career Fair September 27 At Northland

"If you're a high school senior, just beginning your last year, maybe you haven't yet considered plans for after high school. Maybe you should start considering them right now — it's never too soon," states Bill Kottke, dean of instruction at Northland community college.

A good place to get a lot of very basic information would be at the post high school planning program at Northland Thursday, September 27 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 6:30 to 8 p.m.

Seniors will be able to talk to as many as 60 representatives of post secondary schools — vocational, college and trade — as well as representatives of the military services at this career fair program. They can also get information on financial assistance available.

"We suggest that seniors talk this over with their high school counselors who'll have the details on the program," Kottke said.

Steel Shot Discussed At Waterfowl Workshop

How to call ducks and geese within shooting range and how to kill them for the table with steel shot rather than waste them due to lead poisoning were discussed at a waterfowl workshop held Monday evening at the Franklin middle school cafeteria in Thief River Falls. Sixty-five persons were in attendance at the session.

The waterfowl workshop was a preliminary event to the hunder education course which will begin Wednesday, October 3, at 7:30 p.m. in Room 109 at the area vocational-technical institute in Thief River Falls. The six-week course, including two-hour sessions each Wednesday night, is free of charge and sponsored by the regional environmental education council and the state department of natural resources.

Judy Alderson, assistant manager at Agassiz national wildlife refuge, said that the course will be free of charge and is open to hunters of all ages. Persons under 15 years of age should have their firearms safety permits and any children under 12 should be accompanied by an adult. Persons completing the course will receive an engraved card, patch and limited edition waterfowl print by Les Kouba.

First session will deal with hunting ethics, stages of hunting, introduction to the course and registration. Later sessions will cover a number of areas relative to hunting, woodsmanship, landowner relations and trespass law, orienteering and other topics.

Primary speaker at Monday's waterfowl workshop was Tom Roster, ballistics specialist for the U.S. fish and wildlife service of the interior department, Washington, D.C. He is on assignment to Tulelake national wildlife refuge in Oregon and has done extensive research on the development and use of steel shot.

It was pointed out at the workshop that an estimated two million ducks die in the United States each year from lead poisoning that results when the birds swallow spent shotgun pellets while feeding in fields and on marsh-bottoms.

Efforts to find a replacement for lead shot in shotgun shells has resulted in development of the current steel shot loads manufactured by several major ammunition companies. Development of improved-plastic shot cups and a softer steel shot have significantly reduced potential damage to shotgun

TOM ROSTER, ballistics specialist for the U.S. fish and wildlife service, answered questions on steel shot for waterfowl hunting at the waterfowl workshop held at Franklin middle school in Thief River Falls Monday evening.

DICK ANDERSON of Fergus Falls, hunter education program coordinator for the Minnesota department of natural resources, participated in the waterfowl workshop held Monday evening at Franklin middle school in Thief River Falls.

JIM STREGGE of Minneapolis, employed by one of the state's largest sporting goods distributors, demonstrated duck and goose calling and gave tips on calling at the waterfowl workshop held Monday evening at Franklin middle school.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Paulette Parkins and Steven Taie Speak Vows

Miss Paulette Parkins of Mission, Tex., and Steven Taie of Almo, Tex., exchanged marriage vows recently at the Evangelical Free church in Newfolden.

The bride is the daughter of former Thief River Falls residents, Mr. and Mrs. James F. Parkins, who are now residing at Mission, Tex. Mrs. Marcella Taie of Newfolden is the mother of the groom.

Rev. Earl Eveland officiated at the double ring ceremony. At the organ was Mrs. Steve Hanson, a cousin of the groom. She played the traditional wedding marches and also accompanied Michelle Kaspari, a friend of the bride, as she sang "Colour My World," "The Lord's Prayer," and "The Wedding Song."

Arrangements of white roses and blue snapdragons, accented with blue ribbon bows, graced the altar, the seven-branch candelabra and the pews along the center aisle. All the flowers were from Mission, Tex.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attired in a gown of Chantilly lace featuring a high neckline accented with sequins and pearls. Her Mary Stuart sleeves came to a point over her wrists and her softly draped skirt flowed into a brush train. A pearl beaded crown held her fingertip veil of bridal illusion. She carried a white Bible tipped with a white orchid with ribbon streamers.

Miss Joanne Parkins, Mission, Tex., attended her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmatron was Pam Ingeman, Kennedy, a sister of the groom. They wore light blue floor-length gowns in a floral print with white lace cape-styled sleeves. To complement their gowns, they wore white garden hats and carried pastel carnations, matching the flowers in their gowns.

Best man was Randy A. Taie, Newfolden, brother of the groom. Arvin Brekkestran of Middle River, a friend of the couple, was groomsman; and Donald Kranig, Maddock, N.D., uncle of the bride, and Tom Fillmore, Middle River, a friend of the couple, were ushers. The groom was attired in a light blue tuxedo with tails. His boutonniere was a light blue rose. The other men of the wedding party wore regular blue tuxedos with yellow carnations pinned on their lapels.

The mother of the bride was attired in an off-white gown with purple orchid corsage surrounded by white baby carnations. A similar corsage was worn by the groom's mother who wore a pink floor-length gown complemented at the neckline by a string of pearls.

Honor guests at the wedding were the bride's grandparents: Mr. and Mrs. James M. Parkins, Mentor, and Mrs. Alida Kranig, Cando, N.D.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors for about 80 relatives and friends. Mrs. Janice Olson catered the reception, Gayle Espeseth registered the guests and Mrs. Tom Srnsky served the punch.

The three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with blue flowers and topped with a minature bride and groom, was cut and served by Mrs. Martin Nelson and Mrs. Sheldon Mortrud, aunts of the groom. Ione Fillmore, friend of the couple, and Leona Hanson, a cousin of the groom, poured the coffee.

For traveling on a brief wedding trip and later on their return trip to Alamo, Tex., the bride wore a green pantsuit with white accessories.

The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school and is employed by Boggus Motor Sales at McAllen, Tex. The groom, a graduate of Middle River high school, is employed by Magnolia, mobile home park and sales, at Donna, Tex.

The couple will be making their home at Almo, Tex., Rt. 1, Box 33BB.

Filpula and Erdmann Wedding Vows Spoken

Oak Ridge Lutheran church, rural Thief River Falls, was the scene of the recent wedding of Miss Bonnie Filpula, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Filpula, rural Thief River Falls, and Vernon Erdmann, son of Mrs. Violet Erdmann of St. Cloud.

Rev. David Gabrielson officiated at the double ring ceremony. Music was provided by Mrs. Martin Solseng, Jr., who played the traditional wedding marches, and Miss Valerie Larson, a friend of the bride, who sang, "Follow Me," "Wedding Song," and "Evergreen."

To correspond with the bride's chosen colors of yellow and white, the altar was graced with arrangements of white daisies and yellow carnations and gladioli. Yellow bows marked the reserved pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a white floor-length gown with a sheer overlay. The fitted bodice featured a stand-up collar and a lace yoke, outlined by ruffled lace. Matching lace trimmed her bishop sleeves and edged her walking-length veil held by a profile headpiece. She carried a colonial bouquet of assorted garden flowers accented with red roses, white carnations and babies' breath.

Mrs. Kendall (Renae) Jensen, a sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaid was Miss Connie Koebernick, Rogers, N.D., a cousin of the bride. Their identical, spaghetti-strapped yellow gowns with accordion pleated skirts were topped by coordinating sheer capes. They carried nosegays of white carnations, yellow buttercups and pink daisies with babies' breath.

Attending the groom as best man was his uncle, Ron Kenston of Zimmerman. Don Harron of St. Francis, a cousin, was best man. The ushers were Richard Filpula, a brother of the bride, and Randy Erdmann, St. Cloud, a brother of the groom. The groom wore a light blue tuxedo with deep blue trim and a red rose boutonniere. His attendants were attired in deep blue tuxedos with white carnation boutonnieres.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Filpula selected a baby-blue gown featuring a gathered bodice with a rounded neckline and cap sleeves. The groom's mother was attired in a pale green, floral prinbed gown styled with a U neckline and cap sleeves. Topping the gown was a long-sleeved jacket of matching sheer. Their corsages were of two red roses with white ribbon accents.

Honor guests at the wedding were Mrs. Sophia Laidley and Mrs. Lydia Olson, grandmothers of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Leland Nelson, godparents of the bride.

A reception for approximately 100 guests followed in the church parlors. Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Olson, uncle and aunt of the bride. Aleta McCrary and Kaylynn Swenson, friends of the bride, served the punch.

Highlighting the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with yellow daisies. A miniature bride and groom graced the upper tier and wedding bells were tucked between the pillars that supported the tiers. The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Leland Nelson, godmother and aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Ron Kenston, aunt of the groom. Pouring coffee were the bride's aunts, Mrs. Maynard Laidley and Mrs. William Koebernick.

Waitresses were Terry Larson, cousin of the bride, Kathy Dyrdal, and Clara Green, friends of the bride. Susan Olson, a cousin of the bride, was in charge of the gift table. Members of the Oak Ridge ladies aid were in charge of the serving.

Following a wedding trip to Shakopee and the Valley Fair, the couple is now at home in this city at 410½ South Kendall. The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school and is currently employed by Big Tee. The groom is employed by Arctic Enterprises, Inc. Photo, James Solsten, Thief River Falls

Five Area Units Represented at REAM Workshop

Northern division of Retired Educators Association of Minnesota (REAM) workshop was held in Thief River Falls on Wednesday, September 12. The workshop was held at the Rex Cafe with five units represented and a total of 18 retired educators in attendance.

Units represented, together with their presidents were: Agassiz, Olga Engevik; Northland, Ellen Peterson; Northwest, Martha Lindholm; Paul Bunyan, Electa Thoren; and the Northern district, Ellen Peterson. Two officers and three committee members from each unit were invited to attend.

Boris Steiman, area representative and staff member of the National Retired Teachers Association (NRTA) and the American Association of Retired People (AARP) was in charge of the meeting. He was introduced by State Director Myrtle Berggren, who assisted in displaying materials. In explaining the comprehensive program offered by REAM for members and community, Steiman stressed the importance of strong units and making effective use of the informative and protective services available. He stated that members are to assist in various phases by providing information, whether it be by publications, films or personal contact. The unit's goal is to correspond with the NRTA motto, "To serve and not to be served." To be effective, each member has an obligation to the unit by means of attendance and participation. He concluded by saying, "The unit's obligations are to provide good programs, officers, a meeting place, and opportunities to serve."

Others participating in the workshop, in addition to Steiman and Berggren, were Christine Bratrud, Milton Bratrud, Edna Casey, Olga Engevik, Bertha Hastad, Vi Koglin, Gladys Larson, Dorothy Lawrence, Martha Lindholm, Frances Meland, Myrtle Myrin, Ellen Peterson, Mildred Sutton, Electa Thoren, Celaine Votava and Anna Waale.

The workshop began at 9 a.m., with registration, coffee and rolls. A dinner was served at noon; and coffee at 3 p.m., concluded the meeting.

Garfve and Ryden Vows Exchanged at Kennedy

The Maria Lutheran church in Kennedy was the scene of a 7 p.m. wedding when Mary Louise Garfve became the bride of Ronald Keith Ryden. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Garfve of Newfolden. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ryden, Kennedy.

The double ring candlelight ceremony was performed by Rev. Wallace Leno, Kennedy, assisted by Rev. Earl Eveland of Newfolden.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a white sand crepe gown with A-line skirt and detachable train. The tie-back dress had long sleeves and a lace yoke, matching the lace on the crown of her finger-tip veil, edged in pearls. She wore a Jade necklace, a gift from the groom, and carried a bouquet of three red roses accented with green, pink and yellow carnations.

Her gown was made by her mother and sister, Mrs. Larry Nelson of Stephen and her veil was fashioned by her sister, Mrs. Richard Gutterud of Holt.

Mrs. Pam Ingeman, friend of the bride, served as matron of honor. Other attendants were Mrs. Sue Winger of Kennedy, friend of the bride; Mrs. Patty Tullum, Newfolden, niece of the bride; and Miss Beth Ryden, Kennedy, sister of the groom. They wore short-sleeved gingham gowns in pastel shades of green, blue, pink, and yellow. All of the dresses were styled similar to the bride's gown, with yokes edged in lace. Each carried three long-stemmed roses.

Diana Kazmierczak, Moorhead, friend of the bride, was the bride's personal attendant.

Attending his brother as best man was Dana Ryden of Kennedy. His boutonniere was a single red rose. Groomsmen were Wayne and Bob Hanson of Donaldson, and Robert Pearson, Kennedy, friends of the groom.

The groom was attired in a white tuxedo with matching shirt. He wore a red rose boutonniere. The attendants wore black tuxedos with shirts matching those of the bridesmaids colors. All had carnation boutonnieres in pastel colors.

The mother of the bride was attired in a floor length light blue gown and the groom's mother wore a blue floor-length gown. Their identical corsages were of three red roses and a white carnation.

Ushers and candlelighters were Dave Tullum of Newfolden, nephew of the bride and Greg Nybery of St. Thomas, N.D., friend of the groom.

The church altar and aisles were decorated with greens, tied with white ribbon streamers. Mrs. Harriet Docken of Northcote served as organist. She accompanied Miss Jeanie Anderson, Kennedy, as she sang "For Baby" (For Bobbie) before the processional, and "The Lord's Prayer" as the couple knelt at the altar.

A reception for 225 guests followed in the church parlors. It was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Larry Nelson, Stephen, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, and Mrs. Marilyn Peterson, Grand Forks, and Bob Ryden, Kennedy, aunt and uncle of the groom.

Groom's cake and scrolls were distributed by Denise and Denelle Nelson, Stephen, nieces of the bride.

Mrs. Arlene Hansen and Lorraine Efteland, Minneapolis, sisters of the bride, cut and served the wedding cake. Pouring coffee were Mrs. Muriel Weslowski, Stephen, friend of the bride, and Mrs. Maxine Empson, Morris, Manitoba, friend of the couple. Ladling punch to the guests were Erin and Noami Younggren, Hallock, cousins of the groom. Mrs. Chris Swenson, Kennedy, friend of the couple, registered the guests and the gifts were opened and displayed by Abbra Pinnock, Kennedy, cousin of the groom and Debra Ryden, sister of the groom.

Following a wedding trip to Detroit Lakes the couple is now at home in Kennedy.

The bride is a 1976 graduate of the Marshall county central high school, Newfolden, and is employed by Arctic Enterprises at Karlstad. The groom, a 1976 graduate of Kennedy high school, is presently employed by the GTA elevator in Kennedy.

Roland Johnson Services Set At Strandquist

L. Roland Johnson, 61, of Kennedy died Sunday afternoon at the Karlstad Memorial hospital. He had been in failing health for several years and since July of this year had been a resident of the Karlstad Memorial Nursing center.

Funeral services for L. Roland Johnson will be held Thursday at 2 p.m., at the Bethesda Lutheran church at Strandquist. Officiating will be Rev. Donald Peterson and Rev. John A. Riveness. Mrs. Edwin Lefrooth and Mrs. Donald Lefrooth will be the vocalists and Mrs. Wayne Jacobson, the organist. Interment will be in the church cemetery with military honors accorded by the Kennedy VFW post. The Collins Funeral home, Karlstad, is in charge of arrangements.

Pallbearers will be John Lofstrom, Jerry Rux, Neil Anderson, John Bodell, Ronnie Rud and Larry Johnson.

Lawrence Roland Johnson, a son of the late John and Ragna Johnson, was born Nov. 8, 1917 in West Valley township, Marshall county, near Strandquist. He attended school and grew to manhood in the West Valley community.

He was a veteran of World War Two, serving in the U.S. Army in the Aleutian Islands. Following his discharge in March of 1946, he began his employment with the Kiene Farms, near Kennedy. There he remained until ill health forced his retirement in 1973.

Surviving are two brothers: Helmer Johnson, Strandquist, and Wilfred of Cedarburg, Wis.; four sisters: Mrs. Edmund (Maxine) Kostrzewski, Mrs. Louis (Eunice) Lofstrom, and Mrs. Calmer (Gladys) Rud, all of Strandquist, and Mrs. Mabel Olson of Kennedy.

Three brothers preceded him in death.

Anna Lane, 81, Once of Smiley, Dies In Calif.

Mrs. Floyd (Anna) Lane, 81, a former resident of Smiley and an aunt of Mrs. Bud Schuster of Thief River Falls, died August 12 in Sylmar, Calif.

Mrs. Lane, a daughter of the late Anfin and Karen Brekke, was born March 15, 1898.

Surviving are two sons: Lawrence Lane, San Diego, Calif., and Bobbie, San Leandro, Calif.; five daughters: Mrs. Martin (Lila) Jorde, Salem, Ore.; Mrs. Dick (Dorothy) Riley, Chatsworth, Calif.; Mrs. Harry (Eleanor) Miller, Bayville, N.Y.; Mrs. Joyce Murphree, Sylmar, Calif., and Mrs. Bob (Audrey) Johnson, Ardmore, Okla; 19 grandchildren, 29 great-grandchildren, one great-great-grandchild; a brother, Ben Brekke of Kingston, N.Y.

She was preceded in death by her husband, who died in 1965, three brothers and two sisters.

Services Set In Crookston For A. Capistran

Albany Joseph Capistran, 68, of rural Crookston, former director of the Red River Valley Historical Society, died Monday evening in a Fargo hospital.

Mass of the Christian Burial for Albany Capistran will be offered Friday at 10 a.m., at the Cathedral of Immaculate Conception at Crookston with Rev. Donald Krebs as celebrant. Interment will be in Calvary cemetery.

The body will repose at the Stenshoel Funeral home, Crookston, from 3 to 9 p.m., Thursday. Knights of Columbus rosary will be held at the funeral chapel at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, followed at eight o'clock by a Bible Vigil prayer service.

Albany Joseph Capistran was born in Crookston on Feb. 28, 1911 to Albeny and Annie Conneran Capistran. He attended school at Crookston, graduating from Central high school in 1930.

On June 18, 1941, he was married to Rana Gullingsrud at Crookston. The couple farmed in Lowell township, Polk county until 1920, when they moved to their present farm in Gentilly township.

Capistran was a member of the Cathedral of Immaculate Conception, a 50-year member of the Knights of Columbus, a Fourth Degree Knight, and an active member of the Polk County Historical society, serving as the society's historian.

He is survived by his wife, two sons: Wayne Capistran, Crookston, and James of Denver, Colo; one daughter, Mrs. Roger (Rita) Amoit, Grafton, N.D.; frou grandchildren, a brother, Virgil Capistran, Crookston; and three sisters: Mrs. Ella Derouin and Mrs. Aurora Derouin, both of Torrance, Calif., and Mrs. Rosaire (Alive) Boucher of Crookston.

North Dakota VA Notes Anniversary

Veterans administration in North Dakota is celebrating its 50th birthday this week (September 16-21).

Irvin D. Noll, director of the VA medical and regional office center in Fargo, said his office is celebrating the 50th anniversary of the VA as a federal agency, as well as the 50th anniversay of the VA medical center in Fargo. Also, the VA will hold a dedication ceremony for its recently-moved regional office facility in downtown Fargo.

An "open house" is planned between 2 and 4 p.m. Thursday, September 20 at the VA medical center at 21st Avenue and Elm street. Volunteers will serve coffee and birthday cake in the auditorium on the third floor of Building 1. Tours will be available to the public.

Friday, September 21, VA will hold a dedication — including a ribbon cutting and open house — for its recently-moved regional office in the old Post Office building at 655 First Avenue North in Fargo.

VA regional office in Fargo provides a wide range of services for veterans in North Dakota and 15 northwest counties in Minnesota, an estimated 95,000 veterans, plus their dependents and-or survivors. During fiscal year 1978, the VA disbursed $52.4 million in North Dakota. The largest portion, almost $21 million, represented disability compensation and pension checks to veterans, their dependents and survivors.

For fiscal year 1979, the VA medical center and regional office in Fargo received a budget totaling $16.9 million. Noll said the medical center will have treated an estimated 4,500 veteran inpatients this fiscal year, as well as caring for an estaimted 22,000 outpatient staff visits. VA employees in both the medical center and regional office total 562, and the medical center enjoys the services of approximately 175 volunteers.

Fargo Veterans administration medical and regional office was established as a Veterans bureau office in October 1921.

Veterans bureau office had jurisdiction over North Dakota, 13 counties in Minnesota and three counties in Montana. The Fargo facility became a regional office Nov. 1, 1924. Formerly, the station had been a sub-district office of the Minneapolis district.

In February 1925 a committee of Fargo men including William Stern, L.B. Hanna and N.B. Black traveled to Washington, D.C., to meet with the director of the U.S. Veterans bureau, Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines. Fargo was recommended as the site of a new hospital. Formal approval came in December 1925, when the federal board of hospitalization adopted a resolution recommending the expenditure of $200,000 for construction. Congressional approval followed and a 50-acre site was purchased.

Ground was broken for the 57-bed infirmary on July 2, 1928, and construction was completed by the Madsen company of Minneapolis February 19, 1929. What is now referred to as Building No. 1 originally cost $233,972. The first veteran patient was admitted June 10, 1929. He was Ernest Russell Forster. He was born August 24, 1896, and died April 15, 1970.

Two hundred sixty-seven patients were treated in the first six months of operation and 533 more the following year. Construction of the nurses quarters were started in October 1929 and completed in February 1930 for $30,148.

A contract for construction of a 43-bed addition was awarded in October 1932 at a cost of $50,960 increasing the capacity to 100 beds. A contract for construction of a 76-bed addition was awarded to T.E. Powers company of Fargo in August 1932, to be completed in mid-1939 at $07,000. This increased the capacity to 176 beds.

A new hospital building was authorized in 1945 and Building No. 9 was completed and occupied in 1947. This increased the capacity of the hospital to 400 beds. In 1954 former bed space in Building No. 1 was converted into office space.

The opening of a 24-bed nursing home care unit occurred on June 1, 1964. This was the first nursing home care unit open at any veterans administration field station. On Dec. 18, 1965, 26 additional nursing home care beds were added.

The center became affiliated with the University of North Dakota's newly-established four-year medical school in 1974. In 1978 the medical school dedicated its new educational building on the center grounds.

In 1979, DVB activities again relocated into a newly-remodeled downtown Federal building. This relocation provided new and enlarged facilities for the regional office. Concurrently, space has been vacated within the hospital building for the center's increased roles in patient care, research and education.

Irvin D. Noll, director, said the center has become a complex organization consisting of a modern 224-bed general medical and surgical hospital, a 50-bed nursing home care unit and a Veterans benefits regional office. The mission of the Center continues to be providing "the best possible care and service to the veteran population it serves."

Dr. Corliss At Conference On Administration

Dr. William Corliss, superintendent of the Thief River Falls school district, took part in a three-day conference sponsored by the Minnesota association of school administrators (MASA), September 16-18 at Brainerd.

Titled "Delivery of Instruction in the 1980's", the conference focused on managing the delivery of instruction to benefit students. The conference provided administrators with information and skills to help them improve the quality and diversity of public school education.

The Conference featured several small group seminars on such topics as "Reviewing Your Current Instructional System," "Evaluating and Improving Teacher Performance", "Mainstreaming — Does It Make a Positive Difference?", "Staff Renewal: What Can Be Done?", and "Can Vocational Education Remain a K-14 System?"

Senior Citizen Open House At Library Slated

Annual fall open house for senior citizens will be held at the Northwest regional library in Thief River Falls on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, September 25, 26 and 27 from 2 to 4 p.m.

Sponsored by the library, the program serves to introduce library services and materials to seniors as well as to provide information and entertainment of particular interest to older adults. Because of the program's popularity it is being offered three consecutive days this year.

The program will feature the movie "Senior Power," followed by a discussion of consumer rights, a celebration of George Gershwin's birthday complete with music and birthday refreshments. Talented artists and crafts people, many of them seniors themselves, will be on hand to demonstrate and display their work.

In addition, library materials will be on display throughout the library for visitors to examine or take home. The afternoon will conclude with live entertainment and a drawing for a free door prize.

The paratransit bus will add a stop at the library to its regular schedule at approximately 2:05 and 4:10 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday. On Wednesday, the bus is available for special pickups and nursing home residents. For more information on bus availability, call Paratransit at 681-6760. For more information on the open house, call 681-4325.

NEW MANAGER of Tradehome shoe store in Thief River Falls is Dave Cunningham, graduate of the retail management program at the Willmar vocational technical institute and assistant manager of the Tradehome store at Fergus Falls for the past year. He succeeds Ron Hanson as manager of the local store. His wife Jayne is employed in the bookkeeping department of First Northwestern state bank.

The first pension was established by the Plymouth colony for disabled soldiers, according to the U.S. Labor Department booklet "Labor Firsts In America".

Rev. Wickman Retires From TRF Pastorate

Lewis Lake Covenant church, a rural parish near Ogilvie, which he served from 1941 through 1951. His second pastorate was a nine-year stint at Salem Covenant church of Pennock, near Willmar.

In 1960 he accepted a call to Elim Covenant church in St. Paul where he served for seven and one-half years before moving to Gresham, Ore., where he pastored the Powell Valley Mission Covenant church for five and one-half years.

Throughout his pastoral service he has requested and received permission from the boards of his churches to participate in evangelistic work several times a year. He has been a speaker and singer at Bible conferences, prophetic services, deeper life conferences and other events throughout the Northwestern states. He and his wife have sung together for 44 years.

In his "re-firement" he plans to spend five to six months of the year traveling in evangelistic service and the remainder at a lake home he has built over the years on Bay Lake near Brainerd.

"Parsonages have been a problem in the churches," he said. "They have been wonderful conveniences for pastors, but they have not permitted pastors to build up an equity in a place to live. When the time comes to leave the ministry, the home goes with the job. We have built our lake home when we could and as we could to allow us to establish some equity."

Rev. Wickman views his ministry as an effort at "teaching Christians how to live". His affinity for the evengelistic field does not make him a socalled "fire and brimstone" orator — although he certainly subscribes to the Biblical writings. Rather he chooses to share Biblical interpretations and applications of those interpretations to everyday life.

"I tend to think of myself as a conservative," he said. "My goal has been to be redemptive and keep my eye on the Lord — and that is the advice I will freely give to everyone. It was a great joy for me to see our local ministerial association become one united group again, and I will hope it is a great force for good in this community."

During his pastoral service, Rev. Wickman has developed a routine of sorts, albeit an interruptible one when duties require. He attempts to use his mornings for study (often arising at 5:30 or 6 a.m.) and his afternoons for pastoral work — reserving parts of a couple of days each week for administrative and office work.

He works on his sermons days and weeks ahead of time, makes often extensive outlines and — although he keeps his sermons on file — seldom repeats a prior sermon.

The ministry is constantly requiring a greater amount of counseling, Rev. Wickman says, with marital problems, drug addiction including alcoholism, depression and anxieties seemingly increasing. "I have seen my share of grief, heartaches and burdens in these 38 years," he said, "but I have had my mountain top experiences as well."

Mobility of people today makes it more difficult to really know your congregation, he agrees, and familiarity is an advantage in times of personal need or crisis. Rev. Wickman has long been a person who attempts to earn friendships among a number of people whether they are members of his parish or not. The most difficult part of the ministry, he contends, is to motivate members to do their own contact and visit work among the unchurched.

Last year the local Evangelical Covenant congregation paid for a trip to allow Rev. Wickman and his wife to visit the Holy Land, an experience he says he will never forget.

While Rev. Wickman admits to a closeness in this community not evident in all places he has served, his wife has perhaps felt it more. She asked if she could write a letter to the community and I suggested it be made a part of this article, unknown to her husband. This is what she wrote:

"Thanks, city of Thief River Falls. I will miss you!

"When my husband and I arrived here from Gresham, Ore., six years ago this month, the farthest thing from my thoughts was that I would ever miss this city when it came time to leave. On the contrary, I felt the time couldn't come too soon.

"As I write these lines to you it is not without tears — they are falling. In addition to my church family here, it has been my joy for the past three years to learn about you — the city that has become mine — the people I've met on the streets, those in the post office each day, in the banks, those with whom we've done business, those with whom I've worked and the multitudes of folks I've met and learned to know as they have visited my place of employment.

"As I have walked down the streets I've had a song in my heart; this was my city. I bragged about you as I wrote to friends far away, saying: 'It's a beautiful city, so clean, with friendly people, lovely homes, older homes so well kept with such pride in their upkeep, many nice stores and a lovely airport. It's true I seem so far away, in fact, like I'm in another country, but it's home now and it grows on me each day.'

"Some of these friends have visited us and we have driven them to each area in the city as well as the outskirts, and it amuses me now as I think of my husband saying to them, 'Look at these houses. . .did you see this?. . .isn't this lovely for such a small town?' And then he'd tell them all he knew about the Red Lake river and the Thief river. Even now I detect the pride in his voice as he spoke about the city to our visiting friends.

"Often at the close of the day he'd relate to me the good time and reception he had as he visited regularly at Valley home, Oakland Park home, the hospital and as he met friends on the street. Even though they were not always the sheep of his own pasture, they would often say, 'Come pastor, have a cup of coffee with me.'

"Although my husband will not know that I've written these lines until he reads them in this issue, I know he joins me in saying, 'Thanks, city of Thief River Falls; we'll miss you and miss you much.' "

Gov. Quie Opens Residence For Refugee Family

Carriage house at the governor's residence on Summit avenue in St. Paul no longer stands empty.

This weekend marks the end of a one-month resettling period for Vietnamese refugees Dong Trinh, his wife Yen Nguyen and three-year old daughter Uyen — who were reunited after a bizarre, nine-month separation following their escape from Vietnam.

Governor and Mrs. Al Quie, with the help of Lutheran social services and St. Mark's Lutheran church in White Bear Lake, opened the carriage house to the refugee family in mid-August, ending their lengthy and anxious search for a home in the U.S. Quies said they hope to encourage other Minnesota residents and churches to sponsor refugee families by welcoming the Trinh family to the residence.

"Minnesota has always had a big heart and open arms for refugees," Mrs. Quie noted. "That has been the history of our state as well as our country." Although adjustment periods are sometimes difficult for both refugee families and residents of "adopting" states, the Quies said, both mutually benefit from the learning process involved with the assimilation of refugee families into sponsoring communities.

Events leading to the Trinh's resettlement in Minnesota were trying for the family. Yen Nguyen and daughter Uyen left Vietnam in late fall of 1978, residing on an overcrowded island near Malaysia. Dong escaped from a concentration farming camp in Cu Chi in December to a similarly-crowded island near his wife and daughter. Both Dong and Yen were unaware of each other's safety and whereabouts for approximately the next nine months.

Although both Dong and Yen said they were interviewed by the same interviewing officer of the American delegation as he traveled between the two islands, both were unaware of their close proximity to each other. Dong's persistent search for his wife and daughter through various agencies in Malaysia proved fruitless.

While the Quies were exploring the possibilities of opening the residence carriage house to a refugee family, Yen and Dong prayed for sponsorship in the Unived States.

"I was really worried because I didn't have anyone to sponsor us," Yen said later. As months passed, she became more desperate. "I thought, 'Maybe nobody will take us!' I came back to the hut and I cried."

Both Dong and Yen received confirmation of sponsorship separately in early August, and were notified of the time and place they were to take the flight to the United States. As they were standing in line to get their tickets, Yen saw Dong for the first time in nearly a year.

"I took the baby and ran to where he was standing," Yen said. The two were joyfully reunited — placed on the identical flight on the same day to the same destination.

The family has now spent a month in the four-room carriage house apartment, which was painted and redecorated by members of the sponsoring St. Mark's Lutheran church.

The Quies hope that other Minnesotans will continue the tradition of welcoming those in need to their homes.

"Our country has a history of hospitality towards people who have been displaced by war and oppression," Mrs. Quie said. "I hope we will continue to extend that hospitality."

Randy Lambert Visits Port In New Zealand

Navy hull maintenance technician 2nd Class Randy H. Lambert, son of Harold A. and Mildred A. Lambert of Thief River Falls, recently visited Wellington, the capital city of New Zealand.

Lambert is a crewmember aboard the fast combat support ship USS Camden, homeported in Bremerton, Wash.

During the visit, Camden was open to the public for three afternoons. Well over 2,000 people came aboard the largest naval vessel to visit Wellington in 12 years. A large number of the crew was hosted by various organizations and families, and in turn, many local personnel and armed services representatives were hosted by Camden at receptions aborad the ship.

Camden is currently on a deployment in the Western Pacific and will soon participate in the joint New Zealand, United Kingdom, Australian, U.S. naval exercise "Tasmanex-79" in the Tasman sea.

Displacing 53,600 tons, 793 feet long and carrying a crew of 600 officers and enlisted men, the ship is designed to provide rapid replenishment of petroleum, munitions, provisions and supplies for other fleet ships while at sea.

A 1974 graduate of Lincoln senior high school, Lambert joined the navy in August of 1974.

Conference On Environment At Cass Lake

Fifteenth annual midwest environmental education conference will be September 27-29 at the Bald Eagle outdoor learning center near Cass Lake. Theme of the conference will be "Changing Environments: There Are Options."

Highlights of the conference include programs on international environmental education problems, dramatizing environmental education materials with theatrics, puppetry, and magic, industry views on using energy, hunter education and survival, and on nationally-validated environmental education programs for schools.

Bald Eagle outdoor learning center staff will conduct additional programs. Field trips in Chippewa national forest and to the Mississippi river headwaters in Itasca state park are planned.

Hosting the conference will be state environmental education associations from Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Minnesota organizations sponsoring the conference are the Minnesota environmental education board, Bemidji state university, the Minnesota department of natural resources, and the Minnesota state department of education.

For more information, contact: Dr. Ray A. Nelson, Conference Coordinator, P.O. Box 187, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601. Phone: (218) 755-2850.

Funds Provided By MN. To Stop Tree Diseases

Applications received from 455 Minnesota cities and counties have committed most of the $13.5 million in state aid earmarked by the legislature for shade tree disease control and urban reforestation this year, agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin said recently.

Grants to be disbursed to the eligible local governments later this year for 1979 program achievements will provide state reimbursement for 50 per cent of the costs in outstate communities and for 41 per cent of the costs documented in the seven-county metropolitan area.

This is the third year of an emergency program mandated by the legislature which provides financial incentives to local governments that establish and maintain effective programs for combatting two diseases — Dutch elm and oak wilt — which continue to destroy this state's valuable shade trees.

Jane Meyer, administrator for the special Minnesota department of agriculture shade tree disease control program, said that the rates of reimbursement to local government this year are up slightly from 1978 because local programs are working more efficiently and thus holding down costs. She cautioned that costs and tree losses can increase if cities and counties relax their control programs.

State grant-in-aid program provides financial incentives and up to 50 per cent cost sharing with local governments for approved programs of tree inspection, early identification and removal of diseased trees, other practices to prevent the spread of the disease, and to plant replacement and new trees on public property for urban reforestation.

CONSERVATION DAY was held recenly at Northland community college with sixth graders from area schools participating in the event. They were given information on a number of conservation areas, including wildlife, soil, plants and water. The activity was held in the nature studies area of the college along the Red Lake river.

Conservation Education Day At Northland

Conservation education day was held Friday at the ecology area of Northland community college in Thief River Falls and 230 sixth graders from the county participated.

Classes included forestry by Bill Sliney of Bemidji, bird-watching by Shelly Steva of Thief River Falls, trapping by Jim Courneya of Thief River Falls, waterfowl management by Brun Phalygraff of Thief Lake wildlife refuge, wild edible plants by Mrs. Conrad Olson of Crookston, entomology by Jerry Heaps of University of Minnesota, upland game management by Frank Sivendsen of Thief Lake refuge, soils by Al Gustafson of the SCS, and powerline, pipeline and drainage ditches by Marlene Skrove of the University of Minnesota in St. Paul.

Students got to taste acorns, see how a fox trap is set, collect insects, take a soil sample, handle skulls and wings of waterfow, go on a hike through the woods, plan and develop land use in a township and identify some trees.

Students came with sack lunches and ate under the trees. Apples were provided by Hartz wholesale and milk by Bridgeman Creameries. Conservation education day is sponsored annually for county sixth graders by the Pennington county extension service in cooperation with Northland community college and the participating agencies.

Arts, Crafts Fair At EGF

Seventh annual East Grand Forks arts and crafts fair will be Saturday, October 6 from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Sunday, October 7, from 12 noon to 6 p.m. at the East Grand civic center on Highway 220 north.

There are 125 exhibitors selling and demonstrating both days. Many kinds of arts and crafts will be exhibited.

New Building Occupied By MN. Ag. Dep't.

This weekend is moving time for a substantial portion of the staff and divisions of the Minnesota department of agriculture into a new state leased office building erected this summer in St. Paul, south of the Mississippi river.

Effective next Monday, September 24, the new address for the department will be 90 West Plato boulevard (one block west of Wabasha), St. Paul, Minnesota 55107. Most current telephone listings for the agency will remain unchanged.

The new location is about one and one-half miles south of the present office space in the state office building, adjacent to the state capitol.

The department's office manager, Margaret Savard, charged with coordinating the move, said that careful advanced planning of the move that will consolidate the department's many activities should help minimize most disruptions of service.

This weekend's move will involve approximately 150 personnel in the administration, agronomy, family farm security, field accounting and statistics, accounting and licensing, food, meat and poultry inspection, dairy industries, dairy practices, marketing services, personnel and office management, plant industry, planning and shade tree divisions. These will occupy the completed three story west wing of the new building.

Scheduled to move later when the two story east wing is completed with its specialized laboratory facilities are the 60 personnel in three other divisions: grain warehousing, laboratory services, and the Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service. When the consolidation is completed, approximately 210 of the agency's 500 employees will be housed at the new building.

Two divisions, grain inspection and livestock licensing and weighing will remain in their present field service offices, the grain unit in the grain exchange building in Minneapolis and the livestock unit in the South St. Paul livestock exchange. The department also will continue to maintain field offices in Duluth, Glenwood, Mankato, Red Wing and Willmar, besides individual field inspector home offices throughout the state.

Show Brazil Mission Slides

Rev. Eugene Enderlein will show slides from his recent trip to the mission fields in Brazil for the family night service Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at the Reiner Free Lutheran church on highway 1, seven miles east of the Goodridge corner. Public is invited and lunch will be served after the slides.

TO KNOW THE RIGHT GOD
"For as I passed by, and beheld your devotions, I found an altar with this inscription, to the unknown God." —Acts 17:23.
Let's consider for a minute the plight of many people today who worship a god, but they have no real understanding of the god they worship. They are like the people of Athens, who were wholly given to idolatry, having many gods and a great curiosity for strange things and new gods. Yet from the bottom of their souls they seemed to be crying out to another God that was greater than all they had known, but one about whom they knew nothing. And they didn't realize that they didn't know the real God.
Oh how sad that so many people do not know the true God. The Bible often speaks of their sad state. Jeremiah 5:4 states, "Surely these are poor, they are foolish, for they know not the way of the Lord . . ." What should we do about these people? Shall we avoid them? No! Rather, we are to go to them with the Blessed Gospel of Jesus Christ which alone can open their eyes and dispel the blindness of their hearts. Paul says, "Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, him declare I unto you." Let us determine to do all in our power to remove this ignorance from the minds of so many about us. Romans 10:13 says, "For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved."

New Chemicals To Cut Loss Of Elm Trees

Two additional control tools have been authorized by the Minnesota department of agriculture for use in the campaign to reduce the loss of valuable shade trees in this state to Dutch elm disease.

State agency has issued special local need registration permits for the use of two insecticides recommended by the University of Minnesota agricultural extension service for controlling overwintering native elm bark beetles.

These registrations permit Dursban 2E and Dursban 4E, both manufactured by Dow chemical company, agriculture products department, Midland, Michigan, to be used according to label instructions and university research tested recommendations. Chemicals are applied as a spray on elm trees to control the bark beetles that are the carriers for the fatal shade tree disease.

Use of the designated chemicals is expected to be primarily by licensed and state regulated custom pesticide applicators, as these chemicals are commercially available only in containers of five or more gallons and not in household consumer size packages.

Issuance of the local need registration permits is subject to public review and comment in writing prior to October 17, 1979, in petition form signed by 500 or more citizens of legal voting age and who list their legal Minnesota addresses. Comment also is invited from local, federal, and other state government agencies.

Minnesota laws and rules regulating the sale and use of pesticides provide for special local need registrations and the companion public comment process when a use other than those stipulated on the product label is deemed justified and the potential for unreasonable environmental impact is absent.

In addition to its own research justifying the recommendation, the University of Minnesota agricultural extension service also review the research experience of other states and Canada in native elm bark beetle control using these two chemicals.

Senator Suggests Back-Up Plan For West-East Pipeline

Calling for quick action to avert a potential disaster, Senator Dave Durenberger Saturday outlined a plan for building an oil pipeline for the northern tier states.

Speaking at a news conference in Minneapolis, Durenberger said he has sent a letter to President Carter detailing his requests on the necessary action to be taken on oil pipelines.

"The President, by October 15, must designate one of the four west-to-east pipelines being proposed. The designated pipeline will have the necessary permits expedited. I support that process, but I'm urging the President to prepare back-up plans in case the designated line can't complete contracts with refineries. If that happened, there would be insufficient demand for the pipeline to pay operating costs and retire capital debts.

"If the President designates one pipeline and takes no other action he's giving that one line a license to go hunting for contracts. And that license wouldn't even have an expiration date. The designated pipeline could be struggling along while Minnesota and other northern states go without oil," said Durenberger.

The senator said the need for quick action on construction of a pipeline became critical this week. Canada announced a plan to change licensing, with a view toward ending exports entirely during the next few months.

In his letter to the President, Durenberger asked Carter to designate Northern Tier pipeline. "But, he must go beyond that one act. 'I've asked Carter to request the State of Washington and Canada to evaluate the Trans-Mountain pipeline. In that way, Northern Tier can begin to seek commitments with some assurance that construction could begin at an early date, while Trans-Mountain would remain available as an alternative until Northern Tier was certain."

Durenberger said the Sohio pipeline should be "a lesson to us." The Sohio pipeline had received 728 of the necessary 729 permits before it defaulted. It became apparent that an insufficient amount of surplus crude oil existed on the West Coast to make the line economical.

"We must have insurance against a repeat of the situation and the disaster it would cause for our northern states," said Durenberger. "I've asked the President to set March 15, 1980, as a deadline for Northern Tier. If it does not have the necessary contracts by then, we can proceed with the Trans-Mountain pipeline."

He recommended the final and non-extendable deadline of March 15, he said, because extension beyond that would harm Trans-Mountain's ability to continue as an option.

"President Carter should continue talking with the Canadian government about our strong interest in Trans-Mountain, so that if Northern Tier should fail to make adequate financial progress, the designation of that pipeline could be cancelled and negotiations with Canada for early construction of Trans-Mountain could be intensified."

Durenberger said the four refineries on which Minnesota depends have been heavily dependent on Canadian crude oil. "In 1977, these refineries accounted for two-thirds of the petroleum products required by Minnesotans.

"Since the Mississippi River is not passable by barge during the winter months, a pipeline replacement for Canadian supply is absolutely essential," he said.

The United States Department of the Interior is conducting a review to provide information on the four crude oil transportation system proposals which were submitted. As part of this review eight federal agencies examined the proposals and prapared recommehdations. The four proposals under consideration are Northern Tier, Trans-Mountain, Kitimat and Foothills.

In addition to the four west-to-east routes, a supply route from the south, Northern Pipeline, is under consideration. Durenberger said action on this pipeline also was essential to meeting the supply problem of the northern states.

"This pipeline is as essential as the one from the West Coast," said Durenberger. "These two lines are co-equal and complelmentary solutions to our supply problem.

"Without Northern, Minnesota cannot patiently await a west-to-east pipeline. We would have to reconsider our support for any west-to-east pipeline and seek other supply alternatives if Northern isn't biult."

Of the four west-to-east route proposals, Durenberger said Northern Tier has the most support among government agencies and departments. Each of the four would bring surplus Aaskan crude oil from the West Coast to northern states. Northern Tier would begin in Washington, travel through the northern states and end in Clearbrook, Minnesota. Trans-Mountain would run from Washington to existing pipelines in Alberta, Canada, and then to Minnesota. Kitimat and Foothills are proposed to run from the West Coast of Canada to the pipelines in Alberta.

The Environmental Protection Agency found Kitimat and Foothills to be unacceptable. Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland recommended Northern Tier because the net national economic benefit is higher and it has the highest potential capacity of the four. The Department of Energy also endorsed Northern Tier because it has "the least amount of regulatory risk."

The Department of Transportation noted in its report that it does not believe that a sufficient surplus of curde oil on the West Coast will be available to support any of the pipelines, and would prefer consideration of other alternatives. DOT recommdned Trans-Mountain and Kitimat as the most effecient.

Trans-Mountain could be built in a shorter amount of time and would cost less than Northern Tier because it utilizes some pipelines that are already in existence.

Minnesota's Hearing Examiner recommdned Northern Tier when issuing a certificate of need on Aug. 31.

Northern Tier Pipeline Co. is a U.S. corporation which is a joint venture of eight companies: Farmers Union Central Exchange, Inc. (CENEX); Westinghouse Electric Co.; MAPCO, Inc.; U.S. Steel Pipeline Co.; Curran Oil Co.; Butler Associates, Inc., Glacier Park Co. (a subsidiary of Burlington Northern Railroad); and the estate of Patrick J. McDonough, private investor.

Trans-Mountain is a Delaware corporation and a wholly-wored subsidiary of the Transmountain Pipe Line Company, Ltd., of Vancouver, B.C., Canada, a Canadian corporation.

WALLACE WISKOW of Thief River Falls (left) recently attended a sunflower field tour at sunflower demonstration plots in Chokio and Wheaton where the group analyzed the major sunflower hybrids currently on the market and evaluated some of the experimental varieties soon to be released. Disease and insect problems were discussed and research director Steve Shein (right) also gave tips for selecting the right variety for the right area.

Steel Shot Discussed At Meet Monday

barrels, Roster said, and have improved performance of the loads.

Purpose of finding a replacement of lead shot is to eliminate the deposit of lead shot pellets in areas where ducks customarily feed. One pellet in the gizzard of a duck feeding on hard seeds or grain is sufficient to cause death.

Lead is converted in the gizzard to soluable form and absorbed by the bloodstream, causing a reduction in oxygen supply to the tissues. It impairs body functions in a number of ways and the birds lose weight, refuse to eat, seek isolation and cover, lose ability to walk or fly and either die or become easy prey for predators.

Roster spoke from his experience in testing steel shot loads and in use of them in collecting expeditions on both ducks and geese. Birds killed were tagged and identified as to range when shot, type of load and whether they were dead or wounded. Autopsies were performed on each to determine shot pentration and other factors.

Research has shown little difference between 1¼ ounce lead shot loads and 1⅛ ounce steel shot loads (steel shot weighs less than lead). There is compensation for the difference in density between the two metals by an increase in shot size and velocity of the charge. A No. 4 steel shot corresponds in weight to a No. 6 lead pellet.

Increase in shot size reduces the number of pellets in a shot charge, Roster admitted, but steel shot does not deform when fired and provides a shorter shot string.

"You don't shoot a shotgun shell like you would a bullet," he emphasized. "You don't shoot pellets at a bird. You throw a bunch of crap out in front and let the bird fly into it. I find that hard to explain to a number of people."

With the increasing costs of lead, the ballistics specialist added, the cost of steel shot loads with equivalent lead shot loads is becoming nearly equal. Differences in cost on the store shelf result from the profit motive and what the market will bear. If a hunter must shoot steel shot, he must pay the price. Roster predicted that reloading components and data for steel shot loads will soon be available and that 20 gauge 3-inch steel shot loads should be on the market next year.

Also participating in the workshop were Jim Stregge of Minneapolis, representative of a sporting goods distributing company, who spoke on decoy sets and calling of ducks and geese. He demonstrated use of a number of calls and gave tips on their use.

Dick Anderson, hunter education coordinator for the department of natural resources, and Judy Alderson from Agassiz refuge introduced program and speakers.

Plan Shelter For Battered Women In TRF

not like that'."

"Another thing people are afraid of," according to Rev. Heroff, "is of someone really different coming in. My response is that the women that would be using the shelter are women these people have known all their lives. Some of them may be women who live just down the block. You'd never know unless they came out and told you that this was happening to them because most of these women are so embarrassed and afraid and ashamed that they only too readily cover up."

Pat Happersett, who spent two months in Women's Advocate, a battered women's shelter in St. Paul, commented, "I think it is so necessary to have a shelter here in town. I know myself of several cases in town where the wife is being beaten up and is too scared or doesn't have any place to go. I've heard people say they don't want trouble. Well the trouble is already here, and now it's time to do something about it."

Who are the people that would go to the shelter? "You have people like myself," Pat says. "Now my husband had a good paying job but I had no money myself and I had nowhere to go. There are a lot of women in that situation — where the husband has control of the money. The women who were there with me were just your average day housewife."

"Most of the women I have had contact me about battering," says Rev. Heroff, who knows of over a half dozen cases in St. Hilaire alone, "were upper middle class people. They are people you would find indistinguishable. They come from all walks of life."

Purpose of the shelter is, according to Heroff, "to protect life and limb. To present a woman with a safe place to sort out some very complicated questions about the situation in her marriage, her responsibility to her kids, her responsibility to herself, whether or not the time has come to think about dissolving the marriage, whether it is a relationship that can be salvaged, and whether it is worth salvaging. It is very hard to sort out any of that when you live day after day in the situation. At the shelter they would have people who had experienced battering themselves who could talk to them and would understand what they were experiencing."

Talking about her experience and how she ended up in the St. Paul shelter, Happersett says, "My husband and I hadn't gotten along...and it got to be where we were fighting all the time. It wasn't just verbal fighting, it turned into fist fighting. It got to the point where he was beating me up. It wasn't often, but it came. Up until the time we moved to the Cities, there was no place to go. There wasn't any place for any kind of help whatsoever."

After a particularly severe beating from her husband while they were living in the Cities, Happersett dialed a number advertised on channel 5 as "First Call For Help." Within the hour someone from the family crisis center came and took her and her children to Women's Advocate, a security shelter for battered women.

For Pat, the shelter was, "a chance to get out and get myself straightened around. A chance to start leading a normal life again — something the kids and I hadn't done in years."

While living in a battered situation, "You're confused," Happersett says, "you're scared, you are living in oblivion and you don't know what to do. So you stay. I left my husband many times but I always went back again because it was better than living on welfare.

"By the time I went to Women's Advocate," says Happersett, "I just thought I was a hopeless case. It is not just the physical abuse, the verbal abuse is worse. I could take the physical abuse but the verbal stuff could drive me insane faster than anything. Dave and I were together for eight years and nothing I ever did was right. I was always stupid. He told me once I needed a license to breathe. If you get told those things over and over and over again, you begin to believe them.

"But in the shelter you are safe and secure. You know that you are going to have a meal on the table and you know that you don't have to worry about somebody walking in that is drunk, worry about whether you are going to get beat up.

"They help you deal with guilt feelings and fear and you learn to like yourself again. They show you that you were not to blame for what happened. You learn to settle down, you learn to start relaxing and you learn to deal with your problems. Just to have somebody listen to you and somebody who doesn't put you down for everything you do is great. I found out at Women's Advocate that, hey, I was a human being. I had a right to my feelings. I had a right to state my opinion and I wasn't shot down for it all the time."

In her stay at Women's Advocate Happersett and her children received medical and psychological aid, help in getting on welfare, help in arranging for housing when she left the shelter and general support in dealing with emotional problems and making any type of arrangements that were necessary. The women were each assigned household chores and shared shopping and cooking duties. Children attended school or day-care centers. There were opportunities for attending plays, concerts, shows, etc., and there were weekly support group meetings. Pat sums up her experience at the shelter saying, "I started living again."

Isn't it time to give a tax break to savers?

On the average, the British save 13% of their disposable income. The West Germans save 15%. The Japanese, 25%. But Americans save only 6.5%!
This is a disturbing fact, especially when you consider that much of the money needed for Now 5.2%!

America can't afford to wait much longer.

Over the past few months, you've probably seen the above message in which we urge a tax break for savers.

Since this message was published, it has been determined that Americans no longer save an average of 6.5% of their disposable income. Most recent figures for this year show that Americans are saving only 5.2%!

There is a reason why Americans are not saving. INFLATION! The prevailing attitude is "Buy now before prices go higher." But the less Americans save, the more dangerous inflation will become.

To help prevent inflation from getting completely out of hand and to provide needed capital for economic growth, Americans should be given a significant tax break on the interest they earn on savings accounts.

It is time to give a tax break to savers. America can't afford to wait much longer.

University of North Dakota women's field hockey coach Margaret Peterson praised the play of Sioux goalie Marchell Cuppett, a sophomore from Thief River Falls, following the season-opening Can-Am invitational last weekend in Grand Forks.

Cuppett played all four games as North Dakota posted 2-0 wins over Brandon University and South Dakota State and lost to the University of Manitoba 4-1 and Minnesota Club 2-1.

Peterson termed Cuppett's play "excellent" and used "nifty" to describe her 1.50 goals-against average. "Cuppett played very well in goal. She was really tested against Minnesota Club. "Mush" kept us in the games all weekend," said Peterson.

Manitoba won the eight-team event which also included Bemidji State, Concordia, Moorhead State and South Dakota State.

North Dakota was scheduled to face Concordia today (Wednesday) in Moorhead before participating in the Brandon invitational this weekend. The Sioux will host Moorhead State Tuesday at 3:30 p.m.

Region 8AA Revenues Down

Additional strain will be put on the Lincoln high school interscholastic athletic budget this year when an annual income of some $500 to $600 from the Region 8AA committee will be cut off.

According to information published by Ralph Anderson of Detroit Lakes, Thief River Falls, along with the rest of the Region 8AA schools, has been receiving between $500 and $600 or more each of the last four years from the Region 8AA committee. That money represented a return of receipts from regional-sponsored events, depending upon the amount of participation by each of the schools.

However, there will be no return following 1978-79 activities, and there is a possibility that schools in the future will be assessed fees for non-revenue producing events.

Receipts on the regional level this past year were down about $9,000, with the biggest drop being in the Section 8 hockey tournament where the revenue was some $6,000 less than in 1977-78.

Region 8AA has operated the past four years on a sub region basis in which there were four sub region tournaments. But that will be changed starting this year when there will be eight-school North and South tournaments, followed by a Region 8AA championship game. It's felt by some officials that this will help resolve some of the financial problems facing the region.

Miscellaneous

+Northwest Athletic Conference football favorite Bemidji used John Herath at quarterback in a 46-20 victory over Detroit Lakes Friday, moving Rob Egersdorf to an end. Egersdorf, a wide receiver in the past, was made the starting quarterback this year to replace graduated John Noga. But Herath has apparently developed into a good enough quarterback to allow coach Ray Kavanagh to shift Egersdorf back to an end where he's one of the best in the NWAC.

+Warroad Lakers will open their first season of Central Amateur Senior Hockey League (CASH) play November 8 at St. Boniface, reports Cal Marvin. The Warroad home opener will be played November 10 against St. James. Marvin also announced that the Thunder Bay Twins have been accepted as the eighth team in the CASH league. The seven league rivals will travel to Thunder Bay once during the season for weekend doubleheaders, with the Twins visiting each of the seven CASH league rinks for single games.

+Rick Lavoy of Mahnomen and Dirk Kroeze of Baudette were named offensive and defensive players of the week on the North Dakota State University football team following a 21-0 Bison loss to Northern Iowa. Lavoy is an offensive guard and Kroeze is a middle guard on defense. Both are seniors.

+Detroit Lakes girls swimming team followed a 46-37 win over Thief River Falls last week with an 86½ to 85½ victory over Fergus Falls. "This is really a big win for us," said Detroit Lakes coach Jill Erickson. "It was super." The Prowlers and Otters have dominated the area swimming scene for several years.

Otters, Pirates Open NWAC Season On Friday

Northwest Conference

	NWAC w	NWAC l	All w	All l
Bemidji	0	0	3	0
Crookston	0	0	2	1
East Grand Forks	0	0	2	1
Fergus Falls	0	0	2	1
Thief River Falls	0	0	1	2

Fergus Falls and Crookston, considered the top challengers this fall to defending champion Bemidji in the Northwest Athletic Conference, will open the 1979 NWAC football schedule Friday when the Otters and Pirates tangle at Fergus Falls. And because of the brief four-game conference schedule for the five NWAC members, the loser will quite likely be quickly eliminated from the pennant race.

Bemidji's speedy Lumberjacks are Northwest Athletic Conference favorites this fall. After visiting Park Rapids Friday, Bemidji will begin four weeks of NWAC challenges September 28 against Fergus Falls, followed by an October 5 game at Thief River Falls, October 12 vs. East Grand Forks and October 19 at Crookston.

First three weeks of the 1979 season for NWAC members were devoted entirely to nonconference games, including last week's perfect 5-0 performance that lifted the league record to 10-5.

The Mid-State Conference was the chief NWAC victim last week at Bemidji bombed Detroit Lakes 46-20, Thief River Falls beat Crosby-Ironton 26-14, East Grand Gorks handled Staples 39-6 and Crookston stopped Park Rapids 14-7. Fergus Falls edged Montevideo to complete the NWAC sweep.

Mid-State opposition is on the menu again Friday when East Grnd Forks plays at Detroit Lakes, Thief River Falls visits Staples and Bemidji meets Park Rapids. The Mid-State, having a disastrous nonconference season, is 3-14 vs. outside competition.

+ Dale Leonard of Bemidji leads the NWAC in scoring with 42 points. Teammate Craig Erhart is a distant second with 24 points and John Roche of East Grand Forks is third with 23.

+ Leonard is also the leading NWAC ball carrier with 277 yards. Brent Weiss of Crookston has rushed for 238 yards and Roche has 209.

+ Phil Hatchner of Fergus Falls leads the NWAC in passing yardage with 180. He has completed nine of 31 pass attempts. Todd Selk of East Grand Forks is 5-for-14 for 137 years and Jeff Ulrich of Thief River Falls is 4-for-16 for 123 yards.

+ Erhart leads the NWAC with four pass receptions for 105 yards, an eye-opening 26.3 yard average.

Scott Winger of Bemidji is the top NWAC punter with a 34.8-yard average on four punts. Tom Bjorkman of Thief River Falls is the busiest, punting 14 times for a 33.5-yard average.

+ Leonard has returned three punts for 124 yards to lead the NWAC in that category, averaging a remarkable 41.3 yards.

+ Dave Swanberg of East Grand Forks has returned five kickoffs for a NWAC-leading 149 yards, an average of 29.8 yards.

Northmen Look For Offensive Improvement Against Hibbing

Attention is being given to the offense this week as the Northland community college football team prepares for Saturday's 1:30 p.m. MJCAA Northern Division game against Hibbing on the Thief River Falls athletic field. The punchless Northmen, with just one touchdown to their credit, are 0-2 and sit in the division basement, along with Fergus Falls and Itasca. The 2-0 Cardinals share the division lead with Golden Valley Lutheran and Vermilion.

"We're going to evaluate what we have on offense this week in practice," mentioned Northland coach Irv Smith who has watched two fine defensive efforts go down the tube in losses to Mesabi 20-6 and Vermilion 10-0 because the offense hasn't been able to move the football. "We've been waiting for our defense to win it for us," he admitted. "We're going to open it up this week and trhow the football more than we have; provided of course, we have decent field position."

Hibbing hasn't exactly been a scoring machine in beating Fergus Falls 7-0 and Itasca 7-6, but the Fardinals do have an outstanding runningback with the parfect football name: T.D. Thompson, 5-10, 170-pound freshmen from Spring Valley, N.Y. who has a pair of 100-yard games to his credit. "Their offense is to get the ball to T.D.," says Smith who rates him above Mesabi's Doug Meriweather,. who rushed for 163 yards against Northland, and Vermilion's Tim Bosiacki, an MJCAA all-starter who was injured in last week's game here.

Don Palmer, a 6-1, 175-pound freshmen from Stambaugh, Mich., whom Smith rates as a "good passer," quarterbacks the Cardinals. Both Hibbing touchdowns to date were Palmer passes to 6-3, 185-pound Gene Giles, a wide receiver from Spring Valley, N.Y.

The game could match two of the youngest teams in the MJCAA. Twenty of the 22 Hibbing starters are freshmen. And Smith's liberal subsitution has seen 23 freshmen playing on defense and 17 first-year performers on offense for the Northmen.

That large freshman class provided preseason optimism for the Northmen. But instead, its presented problems. "We realize now that we're playing a lot of freshmen and we just don't have any rhythm on offense," acknowledged Smith. "After having high expectations and coming up 0-2, we'll just have to see what we're made of this week. Our spirits are up. The kids are disappointed, but not discouraged."

Northland coaches are not disappointed with the team's defensive play. The staff awarded stars for achievements to the entire defensive team after last week's loss to Vermilion. Headlining the defese was Jeff Reese, a 5-9, 227-pound tackle from Hallock, selected as Northland's outstanding player of the game. Plaudits also went to Albert Padron, a 5-10, 195-pound linebacker from Miami, Fla.

Hibbing, after dropping the sport because of a player shortage last year, has bounced back in fine fashion behind first-year coach Art Haege, who used to be head coach at Virginia high school. "He's put together a nice ball club in a short time," said Smith. Twenty-four of the 30 Hibbing players are freshmen.

In other Northern Division games this weekend, Crookston will be at Brainerd, Itasca at Fergus Falls and Mesabi at Golden Valley Lutheran. Vermilion hosts the Bemidji State University junior varsity.

Completing last week's Northern Division action, Brainerd blanked Fergus Falls 8-0 and Golden Valley Lutheran drilled Crookston 28-0.

Lincoln Football Team Plays At Staples Friday

Buoyed by a marked improvement, particularly on offense, in a 26-14 victory over Crosby-Ironton last week, the Lincoln high school football team tackles its third straight Mid-State Conference opponent Friday when the Prowlers travel to Staples for a 7:30 p.m. game.

Thief River Falls' annual early season Mid-State slate began in unimpressive fashion when the favored Prowlers played poorly in a 13-6 loss to Detroit Lakes, September 7. But with the offense doubling its first two week's out-put against the Rangers, Thief River Falls gained renewed confidence and a 1-2 record.

"If we play as well as we did last week we'll be in good shape Friday," said Thief River Falls coach Gene Jurgens. "Of course we hope to play even better; that's what it's all about. And we still have room for improvement. We saw some things in the film we still didn't like. But they're correctable things, and we improved 100 per cent from the week before, so we shouldn't complain."

Staples is struggling with an 0-3 record that includes losses to Pelican Rapids 18-6, Perham 26-0 and East Grand Forks 39-6 last week. But Jurgens isn't taking the Cardinals lightly. "We feel they're in the DL-CI mold. The Mid-State is a well-balanced conference. We'll have to be ready to play," he warned.

Staples' double-wing is very similar to the offense used by Crosby-Ironton — an offense Thief River Falls held in check. "We felt our defense was fairly successful last week, so we won't change a whole lot," mentioned Jurgens. However, the Staples 6-2 defense "presents a little bit of a problem with the inside running game," says Jurgens. "But if they stack it up in the middle, it might open things up somewhere else."

Thief River Falls rushed for nearly 300 yards against Crosby-Ironton, with Bill Jury getting 107 on just seven carries. Dave Odegaard's bid for a 100-yard game was wiped out by a penalty.

"The line opened things up against Crosby-Ironton and the backs did a good job reading the holes," explained Jurgens who had special praise for the blocking jobs turned in by tackle Dan Cullen and tight end Jon Pinkerton. "We're pretty well pleased with Cullen's play both on offense and defense," said Jurgens. "Pinkerton has done a decent job blocking for us at tight end."

Thief River Falls returns home next week to close out its nonconference schedule against Moorhead.

Kertz, LHS Defense Defeat Green Wave

Defensive plays by senior Paula Kertz rescued a sluggish Thief River Falls offense Tuesday and enabled the Lincoln high school volleyball team to beat East Grand Forks 2-0. The host Prowlers won 18-14, 18-13.

"It wasn't a good offensive match," explained Thief River Falls coach Sharon Stauss. "They didn't play up to par."

But while the offense left something to be desired, the defense, led by Kertz, came through to provide Thief River Falls with a 4-2 season record.

"Paula saved the night for us on defense," mentioned Stauss. "She had a lot of nice saves."

Stauss was also pleased with what she found on the bench. "I substituted a lot and found out I've got good bench strength," she revealed. "Chris Lawrenz, LeAnn Paetznick and Sheryl Stimac all came in and did a good job serving."

With Jackie Kappes serving 14 points, the Lincoln junior varsity record also went to 4-2 with an 18-13, 23-21 victory over East Grand Forks.

Thief River Falls faces a challenge Thursday in an 8:30 p.m. match at Moorhead. The Prowlers will participate in a four-team tournament at Roseau Saturday, facing the host Rams at 1 p.m. Crookston and East Grand Forks play at 2. Matches will be played throughout the day, winding up with the championship contest at 8.

A MEMBER OF Thief River Falls' number one doubles team, Patty Langlie raced after a Detroit Lakes shot Tuesday during the Prowlers-Lakers tennis match on the Northland community college courts. Val Schaleben and Jane Ries beat Langlie and Leslie Williamson 6-2, 6-2 as part of Detroit Lakers' 5-0 victory.

Minnesota Kicks At Sunflower Bowl . . .

Fans Will Get Kicks At Gonvick-Grygla Contest

Fans attending Saturday's North Tri County Conference high school football game matching Gonvick and Grygla might get a kick out of things if they arrive an hour before the 3 p.m. Sunflower Bowl that is part of Gonvick's annual Fall Festival. In fact, there will be two kicks there — Mark Moran and Tim Twellman, members of the Minnesota Kicks NASL soccer team.

Moran Twellman

Moran and Twellman will appear on the Gonvick football field at 2 p.m. for a demonstration of their skills as soccer players and will explain the game to the fans. Autograph hounds and photo buffs are welcome.

Both players are natives of St. Louis, Mo. and were college stars at Southern Illinois. Moran was a third-round draft pick of the kicks in 1977. Twellman was a second round choice in 1976. Both players are midfielders. Twellman was also a baseball player at SIU and was an all-state football player in high school, averaging 43 yards as a punter during his senior year when he turned down a football scholarship to Arkansas.

The football game itself will present a huge challenge for the Eagles who will be trying to knock the Bulldogs from their number one ranking in the state Associated Press nine-man football poll.

In Friday's North Tri County Conference games, Mentor will be at McIntosh-Winger, Plummer at Oklee, Erskine at Middle River and Goodridge at Clearbrook.

Last week's lopsided results found Gonvick rolling over Clearbrook 44-24, Grygla defeated Mentor 36-14, Middle River riddled Plummer 44-14, Oklee blanked Goodridge 32-0 and McIntosh-Winger handled Erskine 44-6.

Winless Top of the State Conference foes Marshall County Central and Hallock will square off Friday at Hallock. The Nordics, who lost three season-opening home games, hope to turn the tables on the Bears this week.

Bill Sczepanski of Stephen scored 18 points and rushed for 180 yards to lead Stephen to a surprisingly easy 25-0 win over Karlstad in an early season battle of Top of the State Conference title challengers last week. Elsewhere, Warroad blanked Marshall County Central 22-0, Argyle doubled Lake of the Woods 12-6 and Roseau edged East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 6-0 in overtime. Hallock lost a nonconference game to Walhalla 34-8.

Sczepanski leads the Top of the State Conference scoring charts with 44 points, followed by Gene LaDoucer of Karlstad with 32 and Mark Huglen of Roseau with 24.

In other Top of the State Conference games this week, Roseau will be at Stephen, Lake of the Woods travels to Warroad and Karlstad visits Argyle.

Lakers Blank Prowlers 5-0

A strong Detroit Lakes team shut out Thief River Falls 5-0 Tuesday in a girls high school tennis match played on the Northland community college and Lincoln high school courts.

Led by top singles performers Ann Pettit and Bonnie Berenz, Detroit Lakes won everything in straight sets except second doubles where Lori Berenz and Heidi Pettit struggled past sophomore Marsha Erickson and seventh grader Michelle Olson 4-6, 7-5, 6-4.

"Detroit Lakes is probably the class of the section," mentioned Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson. "We hope to get our kids to play like their number one and number two singles; they played super tennis. Our kids played as well as they could, but Detroit Lakes is just too strong."

Thief River Falls has a pair of triangular meets coming up that will feature Bemidji and Roseau Thursday and then Moorhead and East Grand Forks Monday. Both matches will be played in Thief River Falls starting at 2 p.m.

Kraft, Spuds Win Bemidji Race Titles

Brian Kraft and the Moorhead Spuds were winners Tuesday in the Bemidji high school invitational cross country meet.

Kraft, a Bemidji senior, was the individual winner in the 77-runner field, but the Spuds were easy winners in the team standings with 51 points. Bemidji was a distant second with 100 points.

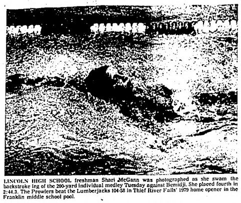
Rest of the field included Brainerd with 101 points, Bagley 115, Remer 128, Roseau 136, Grand Rapids 176, International Falls 189, Crookston 213, Thief River Falls 236 and Walker 238.

Thief River Falls ran without its top three runners, with Bob Fitzgerald and Todd Bergland sidelined by injuries and Greg Ness out with the flu. The Prowlers' sophomores-dominated line-up was led by Bruce Johnson who placed 13th with a 16:41 over the hilly three-mile course.

"Bruce did a nice job," praised Thief River Falls coach Bill McGann. "It was a good effort on his part."

No team scores were kept in the junior varsity race, but Bemidji came up with a win in the junior high competition with 41 points, followed by International Falls 46, Grand Rapids 69, Thief River Falls 143, Crookston 144, Roseau 211, Bagley 223, Remer 230 and Walker 243.

Chuck Lowell of Thief River Falls placed tenth in the junior high school race with a 12:59 two-mile run.



LINCOLN HIGH SCHOOL freshman Shari McGann was photographed as she swam the backstroke leg of the 200-yard individual medley Tuesday against Bemidji. She placed fourth in 2:44.3. The Prowlers beat the Lumberjacks 104-58 in Thief River Falls' 1979 home opener in the Franklin middle school pool.

Minnesota DNR Reveals Wildlife Survey Counts

Ruffed grouse populations in Minnesota this fall should be fairly similar to last year's, the Department of Natural Resources reports.

Grouse populations are surveyed in the spring by driving along selected routes, stopping at planned intervals, and counting the number of "drumming" grouse heard during a specified period of time.

Drumming sound results from the male ruffed grouse rapidly beating his wings in the air. This announces his presence to other males and females and are therefore an index to the breeding population.

Observations of grouse broods are reported during the summer and give an indicator of chick survival.

Roger Holmes, DNR wildlife section chief, said that the spring drumming counts showed an average decrease of 11 per cent, however, some of the counts were conducted during less than favorable weather.

"Also," said Holmes, "chick survival this year appears better in many areas than in 1978; therefore, the number of ruffed grouse available to hunters should be about the same as in 1978."

He noted that the hunter's interest in ruffed grouse has been high in recent years. "The grouse has become the No. 1 upland game bird in Minnesota since the decline in the pheasant population in the 1960's," he said.

Spring surveys of sharp-tailed grouse indicated a drop in the Aitkin county area and a slight increase in the northwest.

Preliminary reports show the pheasant population may be down slightly, Holmes reports.

"Not all the results are in from the August roadside counts," he said, "but it looks like pheasants will be down about 20 per cent from last year."

A real bright spot in upland game hunting is the Hungarian partridge, said Holmes. He said that the May counts of Huns were down from last year, but they were still the second highest counts on record.

This year the hunting season for Huns has been extended a month, until December 31, to take advantage of this greater recreational opportunity.

Best area for hunting Hungarian partridge in Minnesota is the southwestern counties. Holmes said a partridge hunter should look for a good distribution of grasslands and some small grains. Rolling topography also seems to encourage good populations.

There have already been news releases on waterfowl hunting, but Holmes summarized the situation by saying that Minnesota produced an excellent hatch of ducks this year and that the fall flight should be on a par with last year's.

Projections for the fall deer season are generally good but the number taken will depend upon various factors such as weather conditions during the hunt, Holmes observed.

"The deer herd shows a small increase in most areas despite some locally heavy harvests in 1978 and some overwinter mortality," he said. "This is reflected in the number of antlerless permits available in 1979, which will be given over a larger area of the state this year. There will also be a general increase in the number of permits available, although this varies area to area depending upon management needs."

Again this year several park reserves and refuges will be open to regulated deer hunting to control populations which have become too large.

September Is PP&K Month In Minnesota

Governor Albert H. Quie has declared September punt, pass and kick (PP&K) month in the state of Minnesota.

PP&K is co-sponsored by the National Football League and the Ford dealers of America. More than 1.2 million boys and girls are expected to participate in the program this year, beginning total participation in PP&K during its 19 years to nearly 16 million.

"We're looking back on a history of solid success with PP&K", said Ford Division's Twin Cities district sales manager S.H. Beauchamp. "Each succeeding year has been better than the last and this reflects the acceptance of the program by American youngsters and their parents."

Any youngster, eight to 13 years of age, may compete in PP&K. Participants compete only against those in their own age group. There is no body contact and no special equipment is required.

Scoring is based on distance and accuracy. One point is received for every foot of punting, passing and kicking distance and one point is deducted for every foot of deviation from a center line.

There are six phases in the competition — local, zone, district, area, divisional and final. Twelve national finalists — two in each of the six age groups — will compete on national television for the championship at the NFL Super Bowl game in Pasedena in January.

Youngsters may register for the local Thief River Falls PP&K competition at Tunberg Motor Co.

Swimmers Beat Bemidji

Time improvements were commonplace Tuesday as the Lincoln high school girls swimming team made its 1979 home debut with a 104-58 win over Bemidji in the Franklin middle school pool.

"It was a good meet for us," commented Thief River Falls coach John Hustad. "They were taking off times like crazy."

Junior Franki Kuyath typified Thief River Falls' performance with a 6:26.6 first place time in the 500-yard freestyle, a 10-second drop from last week's 40-37 season-opening loss at Detroit Lakes.

Kathy Dillon, another junior, was a double winner for the Prowlers with a 2:14.1 in the 200-yard freestyle and a 59.9 in the 100-yard freestyle.

Other Thief River Falls individual winners included Beth Hallstrom, 27.0 in the 50-yard freestyle; Joan Glauque, 1:12.6 in the 100-yard butterfly; Johanna Desrocher, 1:19.3 in the 100-yard breaststroke; and Brenda Lund, 197.85 points in the diving competition.

Thief River Falls also won both relay races as Andrea Lia, Glauque, Kuyath and Hallstrom swam the 200-medley relay in 2:06.3 and Shari McGann, Shelley McGann, Lund and Dillon covered the 400-yard freestyle relay in 4:17.2.

Hustad said the Prowlers' 200-yard medley relay unit is "probably as fast as anything in the region."

Becca Pluth and Sarah Green both won two events as Thief River Falls beat Bemidji 106-36 in junior high school competition. Pluth swam the 200-yard freestyle in 2:36.6 and won the 100-yard freestyle in 1:13.1. Green covered the 100-yard individual medley in 1:15.7 and took the 100-yard backstroke in 1:20.0.

Thief River Falls will travel to Fargo North Saturday for a 2 p.m. meet.

DNR Plans Meeting On Thief Lake WMA

Ten-year management plans for state wildlife management areas (WMA's) will be the subject of two public meetings scheduled this month in northwestern Minnesota.

Department of Natural Resource's section of wildlife will be preparing plans for the Hubbel Pond and Thief Lake WMA's.

Hubbel Pond unit covers 3,400 acres of forest and marshes in central Becker county. The area is popular primarily for waterfowl hunting.

Spectacular concentrations of waterfowl, especially Canada geese, attract hunters and sightseers to the Thief Lake WMA, a 34,000 acre unit in northeastern Marshall county.

Hubbel Pond meeting will be held in the Detroit Lakes area vocational school Monday, September 24, at 7:30 p.m. The Thief Lake meeting will be held in Middle River at the school library Tuesday, September 25, at 7:30 p.m.

Purpose of the meetings is to seek local citizen's participation before the management plans are prepared.

Management topics to be considered will be presented by planning team members. Then suggestions and comments from citizens will be accepted for use in management planning.

Written comments will be accepted at the meeting, or they may be sent to: Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, Section of Wildlife—Planning Team, Box 7 Centennial Bldg., 658 Cedar Street, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Annual Hawk Migration Is Now Underway

Minnesota's annual hawk migration is underway, according to wildlife officials at the Department of Natural Resources.

Carrol Henderson, DNR non-game wildlife specialist, said the best place to view the migration is Hawk Ridge nature reserve in Duluth.

The reserve, managed by the Duluth chapter of the Audubon Society, is at the intersection of Skyline Parkway and the Seven Bridges Road.

Henderson said most people now have learned to understand and appreciate the role that hawks and other raptors (meat eating birds) play in the environment. But he said some persons still kill hawks, although they are protected.

Henderson said some hawk killers use the excuse that they believe the birds are "chicken hawks", but he said their is no such bird as a chicken hawk.

He pointed out that all hawks, owls, eagles and falcons are protected by state or federal laws and that heavy fines and even jail sentences have been levied against killers of hawks and eagles in recent years.

NORTHERN STATE BANK was the 1979 Thief River Falls trap league team champion, winning last week's post-season shoot at the Marshallton Gun Club. Top six finishers in the first and second season half point standings qualified for the team shoot. Members of the Northern State Bank squad, first half season champions, as well, included, left to right, Howard Thorson, Arnie Fjelland, Tony Dorn, Jr., Sandy Wilson, Duane Holland and Orren Bendickson.

BOW HUNTING earlier this month near the Bad Lands in North Dakota, Gordy Peterson of Thief River Falls downed this 13-point whitetail deer from about 16 yards. Peterson estimates his party saw between 400 and 500 deer during their 10-day hunt.

SHE WAS PREPARED to return a Detroit Lakes shot, but Thief River Falls' Leslie Williamson watched as the ball went into the net during Tuesday's high school tennis match on the Northland community college courts.

Odegaard Leads Sophomores To Win Over EGF

Dan Odegaard scored three touchdowns Monday to lead the Lincoln high school sophomore football team to an 18-2 victory over East Grand Forks.

Odegaard scored on runs of six yards in the first quarter, 25 yards in the second quarter and 40 yards in the third quarter.

Thief River Falls lost its shutout bid when East Grand Forks, after being stopped on offense inside the Thief River Falls one-yard line, recorded a safety with 17 seconds left.

It was the second win in two starts for the Lincoln sophomores.

Lincoln junior varsity, 0-1 for the year, will host Crookston Monday at 7 p.m.

FOR SALE
40 ACRES OF CHOICE RIVER PROPERTY

2½ miles south of Thief River Falls on Hwy. 32, ½ mile of river frontage. Beautifully wooded oak, ash, elm and basswood. Rich black soil. 17 acres of oak grove, 7 acres of homesite and grove, 8 acres riverside park with huge old trees, 8 acres field, windbreak and garden. Uniquely isolated by river on two sides, highway and open farm land on the other. River bottomland across the river prevents future development which enhances the peace and tranquility and provides a wild isolated area for canoeing, boating, cross country skiing and snowmobiling. Controlled development would preserve this tranquility. Large 3 bedroom remodeled home, 2½ baths, oak woodwork and cupboards, fully carpeted, beautiful river view, large garage and outbuildings. This farm could be subdivided into 7 large country estates that could share a private community park. If plotted it would make 30 one acre building sites with a private community park. The oak grove and park would make a beautiful 25 acre overnight campgrounds or trailer court. We prefer to sell all in one transaction to one or more buyers, singly or collectively.

Card of Thanks

The family of Hulda Christianson wishes to thank Dr. E. Thorsgard and the nurses and nurses' aides for their wonderful care of our loved one.

Special thanks goes to Pastor Larson for his kindness, prayers and wonderful sermon.

Thanks to Diane Anderson and Jerry Joringdal for the songs and music.

Also, to the ladies who served lunch and the wonderful friends and neighbors who helped Hulda in so many ways.

We wish to publicly thank the Green Funeral home for everything well done.

God bless all. 1174p

In Memoriam

In loving remembrance of Selmer Ramsey who departed this life to be with the Lord on Sept. 18, 1978:

Time cannot steal the treasures
That we carry in our hearts
Nor ever dim the shining thoughts
Our cherished past imparts
And memories of the one we loved
Still cast their gentle glow
To grace our days and light our paths
Wherever we may go.

Deeply missed by his wife, Ruby, children Llewellyn and Jean, grandchildren, Jeffrey and Kristen. 1174p

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to express our sincere thanks to all who remembered our aunt, Minnie Glewwe, during her period of illness in Seattle, Wash. We would also like to thank all of her friends in Thief River Falls, the pallbearers, organist, Pastor Law and Green Funeral home, who made it possible to have a beautiful service and fellowship that the family will always cherish.

The nieces & nephews of Minnie Glewwe

LEGAL NOTICE

September 19, 26, 1979
Notice of Hearing On Proposed Improvement

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Notice is hereby given that the City Council of Thief River Falls will meet in the Council Chambers of the City Auditorium at 7:00 p.m. on October 1, 1979, to consider the making of the following sewer and water improvements pursuant to Minnesota Statutes Sections 429.011 to 429.111:

1. WATER MAIN REPLACEMENT

Water mains in the following locations are recommended for replacement: Arnold Avenue—Bay Street to First Street; Main Avenue—Bay Street to First Street; Crocker Avenue—across T.H. 59 on Third Street; Merriam Avenue—First Street to Taft; Kneale Avenue —First Street to Third Street; Maple Avenue—First Street to Mussey; Spruce Avenue — First Street to Third Street; First Street — Spruce Avenue to Pine Avenue; Tindolph Avenue — Across T.H. 59. The total estimated cost of this portion of the project is $248,500.

2. SANITARY SEWER REPAIRS AND REPLACEMENT.

The following repairs or replacement will be considered at the hearing:

1. Replace 8" sanitary sewer line on Michael Street from Kendall to Tindolph and on Tindolph from Michael Street south a distance of about 660'.

2. Spruce Avenue South—sewer repairs at manhole at Hughes and Nora.

3. Merriam Avenue North — reline existing 12" sewer across T.H. 59.

4. Crocker Avenue North—insulate 150' of sewer south from manhole at bathhouse and insulate two sewer services.

5. Kendall Avenue North—insulate two sewer services south of Taft and reline 80' of sewer across T.H. 59.

6. North Main Avenue—repair 150 L.F. of broken pipe between North 5th Street and North 7th Street.

7. Manhole replacement and repair. A list of manholes was submitted by the Utilities Department and those recommended for such work under this project are indicated on the attached preliminary print.

Total estimated cost for this portion of the proposed project is $90,000.

Properties benefited by the proposed construction are those abutting said construction where replacement of sewer mains is proposed.

3. WATER SERVICE LINES

The utilities and tax and assessments committees recommendations are that residents who have a history of water service line freeze-ups should be notified of the proposed construction. Estimated cost for the proposed lowering and-or insulating is $600 per connection and it is proposed that the City pay 50 per cent of the cost of the work and that the balance (estimated to be $300 per connection) be specially assessed.

It is further recommended by the above committees "that" the property owners be given a choice as to whether or not they wish to have the work done. If they choose not to have the work done, the property owner will be charged for any City service required to thaw frozen water lines and the water meter will remain connected and property owners charged for water used.

Total estimated project cost for repair of water service lines is $220,000.

The property proposed to be assessed for such improvements are all or a portion of the properties as described in items 1 and 2 and in Exhibit A attached. The estimated total cost of such improvements is $558,000. Such persons as desire to be heard with reference to the proposed improvements will be heard at this meeting.

Dated this 18th day of September, 1979.

-s- Gerald A. Wigness,
City Clerk-Treasurer

City Clerk-Treasurer

Although more than twice as many pedestrains are killed in urban than rural areas, the chance of death compared with injury is much higher in rural areas. Lower vehicle speeds, better and more extensive police traffic enforcement and superior emergency medical services account for the better chance of survival on urban areas.

ABIGAIL "MUFFY" CHERVESTAD, 3½ years old, has lunch with a crunch when she decides to munch a bunch of carrots at the parental Korydon Chervestad farm northwest of Oklee. Korydon and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Chervestad, are planning to harvest about 50 acres of the orange roots this fall. For an insight into the operation, watch for Monday's issue of the Times.

Clevens Named Conservation Farmer Of Year

Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Cleven of Grygla have been named as "Conservation farmers of the year" by the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district. The Cleven's farm consists of 960 acres in Lee township where they have lived for the last 22 years. They have over 700 acres of cropland.

Main crops grown on the Cleven farm are wheat, oats and barley and much of this is sold for seed. They also have a herd of beef cattle with about 65 cows and yearling calves.

Conservation practices implemented by the Clevens include a crop rotation system and a crop residue management system. On cropland acres, 9,600 feet of field drainage ditches have been installed and 22,000 feet of main or lateral ditches have been dug and maintained. Future plans include planting additional trees around the existing farmstead windbreak and also forestry plantings for woodland improvement.

Harlan and Doris Cleven have three children: Verlene (Mrs. Kermit Jenson), Milo, 13 years and Michael, four years.

Besides farming, Harland does shop work for others as well as keeping his own machinery in good repair, and sells rotary mowers. He has been a township supervisor for 15 years. His hobbies include hunting, fishing, trapping and snowcatting. Doris has been a township assessor for 15 years and also keeps busy gardening. She is also kept active with basketball and volleyball.

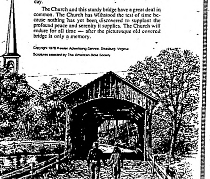
Symbol of YESTERDAY



What varied stories this ancient span could reveal if only it were capable — exciting tales of the Civil War . . . of enchanting lovers' trysts beneath its tall arched roof. And, gloomy stories, too, like the despondent old man who snuffed out his life by plunging from its edge into the swift waters of the creek below.

Yes, this weatherbeaten structure has survived the years. It has endured. And, God willing, it will stand for perhaps another generation — a unique symbol of yesterday.

The Church and this sturdy bridge have a great deal in common. The Church has withstood the test of time because nothing has yet been discovered to supplant the profound peace and serenity it supplies. The Church will endure for all time — after the picturesque old covered bridge is only a memory.

Motivation Is Essential To Curb Diabetes

As anyone who has ever dieted to lose weight knows, resisting the temptation to eat the way others do requires tremendous willpower. But, people who stay on diets can see the results of their efforts in a few weeks.

Diabetics, however, must live every day of their lives on a restricted diet (combined with exercise and, for some, insulin) to avoid serious complications of diabetes that may not appear for 20 years or more.

Therefore, people with diabetes must have more than willpower. For the diabetic, motivation is essential.

"Motivation — The Elusive Element" will be one of 10 topics discussed at Mount Sinai hospital in Minneapolis on October 13 during a symposium on diabetes for physicians, nurses and other health care professionals. Catherine Feste, a consultant in communications and attitude development, will address the subject from a personal point of view. She has had diabetes for 22 years and was previously director of education for the Twin Cities diabetes association.

"Today, diabetics are taught how to modify their behavior to enable them to live longer, healthier lives. But, putting this information into use requires motivation. It's the action-oriented component of education," Feste explains.

Although motivation has to come from within each individual, health care professionals who understand the factors behind motivation can help their diabetic patients adjust to a regulated lifestyle, according to Feste.

While diabetics might be frightened by potential complications such as blindness, kidney failure or heart attacks, fear is actually not a good motivator. "In fact," she says, "it can do more harm than good because fear generates negative thinking, diminishes hope and loses impact over a long period of time."

"Most diabetics I have interviewed agree that a positive attitude is an essential prerequisite to motivation," Feste comments. Her own experience is an example of building a positive attitude and high self-esteem. "When my diabetes was diagnosed at age 10, my mother presented it to me in a positive manner. She made me feel special by telling me that it was going to help us learn so much about good nutrition. I was lucky to have a very supportive family and friends who expressed admiration for the way I was controlling my diabetes".

When diabetics feel that life in general is going well, they feel most highly motived to take good care of their diabetes, according to Feste. People get a boost when change occurs in their lives — the start of school, a new job, marriage, a baby, a new home, etc. By recognizing that change helps motivate them, diabetics can search for new activities, hobbies, interest and friends that will make them place a high value on their future well-being.

Offering themselves an incentive, such as a new dress or tickets to a football game, in reward for doing well on their control program can help motivate diabetics. But incentive motivation tends to become ineffective over time. It works only as long as there are enough rewards available that are desirable to the diabetic.

"Meeting other diabetics who are living successful, active, fulfilling lives can greatly enhance a person's hope of doing the same," stresses Feste.

Motivation needs to be an essential, not an elusive element for diabetics. Greater understanding of motivation by diabetics and health care professionals alike will help people with diabetes control their disease more effectively.

Hints For Homeowners

SAVE ENERGY AND DOLLARS

Home heating fuel will certainly cost more this winter—and it could be less available—so smart Americans will give a warm welcome to inexpensive energy savers which help keep their homes cozy when the winter winds blow.

You could stay warmer by keeping your home wetter during the cold months. Heating systems often reduce humidity levels below the 30 to 50 percent range which most people find comfortable. If you raise the moisture level—with an inexpensive humidifier for instance—you may be able to lower your thermostat and still stay comfortable.

Don't heat the great outdoors this winter! Heat loss through and around windows and doors can account for an astounding 30 to 40 percent of home heating bills, engineers report. Energy Saver, a wire-mesh reinforced plastic material from G&B, is an inexpensive, easy-to-install alternative to costly storm windows (or, used with existing storm windows, a super energy saver).

Available at most hardware stores at about ten cents a square foot (this works out to an average $1 per window), G&B's Energy Saver, which comes in 36" x 25' rolls, can be taped, stapled or tacked to the inside or outside of window and door frames to form a barrier against winter chills. Cellar windows, unused entrances or porches and other drafty areas which receive this energy saving treatment will also help keep comfort high and fuel costs low when the cold winds blow this winter.

Crime Awards For Innocent Victims Rise

More innocent victims of serious crimes applied for and received awards during the fiscal year of 1979 than in any previous year, according to Duane Woodworth, executive director of the crime victims reparations board.

According to Woodworth, of the 420 claims filed in 1979, 242 awards were made totalling $412,804 in contrast to 389 claims filed in 1978 totalling $362,885. Average payment made in 1979 was $1,547, an increase of $38 over the previous year.

"I feel that more individuals are now filing claims because law enforcement officers are making an all-out effort to inform crime victims of the program," Woodworth said. "A second reason for the increase in simply because more serious crimes were committed in Minnesota during the fiscal year."

Money was awarded under a Minnesota law designed to aid the victims of assault, mugging, rape, robbery, arson and homicide, and goes toward medical expenses, lost wages and funeral expenses. A legal dependent of a decreased crime victim or the person responsible for the victim's finances may also qualify for financial assistance.

Claims are paid from general revenue funds. Occassionally the state if reimbursed by the person responsible for the crime.

"A victim is often left with nothing except his bills, the worry of his family, as well as the disruption of his household," said Woodworth. "Minnesota citizens can find some comfort knowing that their state is concerned with an will help a crime victim, not just punish the offender."

The program-lunch committee for the September meeting, the 28th includes Mrs. Ethel Moe, Mrs. Amanda Russell and Mrs. Bernice Vatsaas. Present at the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Boman, Melvin Saugen, Mrs. Alfred Solem, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Halvorson and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Rausch. Mrs. Rausch served lunch, after which Mr. Boman showed many slides of a trip taken the past winter to the Carribean Sea area.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Halvorson spent Sunday with the Mike Hart family at Manvel, N.D.

Mrs. Lloyd Larson was a caller at the Milton Reierson home in Thief River Falls Wednesday. In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Larson were supper guests at the Eugene Kleinwachter home at Strandquist in honor of Grandparents Day.

John Giles Is 9

Mrs. Angeline Larson, Mr. and Mrs. John Lubitz, David and Dean and Mr. and Mrs. Terry Lubitz, Marie and Billy spent Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Giles, Mary and John in Thief River Falls to help John celebrate his ninth birthday. They all enjoyed several movies and the traditional birthday cake and ice cream.

Saturday afternoon visitors at the Lloyd Larson home were Mrs. Ivan Melvie of Holt, Mrs. Orlando Solberg, Lance and Keith of Plummer and Mrs. Eugene Kleinvachter, Kent and Hope of Strandquist.

Sunday afternoon visitors at the Mrs. Angie Larson home were Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Wilson and John of Viking. Evening visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Marlan Augustine and their grandson, Mark Augustine, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Giles, Mary and John and Mrs. Terry Lubitz, Marie and Billy.

Installation services at Silver Creek and Nazareth Lutheran churches were held Sunday forenoon for Revs. Richard and Nancy Lund. Installation was performed by Rev. Olaf C. Carlford, who is assistant to Bishop Cecil Johnson of the Northern Minnesota District of the American Lutheran church. A joint dinner was served following services at the Nazareth church.

Mrs. Leonard Yonke and Mrs. Alfred Solem attended a meeting of the Rebekah circle of the Trinity Lutheran church at the Joel Rosengren home Thursday afternoon. The main feature of the lunch was a decorated birthday cake with the names of Mr. and Mrs. Rosengren inscribed on it. Mr. Rosengren had a birthday September 2 and Mrs. Rosengren the day of the meeting. Members of the circle who have birthdays in September are Mrs. Clarence Peterson, Mrs. Florence Pierce and Mrs. Alvin Dicken. Mrs. Rosengren has been confined to a wheelchair for many years. She is a visitation member of the Rebekah circle.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Harstad of Viking were supper guests at the Lloyd Larson home Monday evening last week.

Mrs. Harold Halvorson attended a meeting of the Esther circle of Trinity ALCW at the home of Mrs. Clayton Restad in Thief River Falls Wednesday evening.

Afternoon visitors and supper guests at the Mrs. Ethel Moe home Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Evans of Grafton.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Halvorson were Sunday afternoon coffee guests at the home of Floyd and Willie Mathieu.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Yonke spent Sunday evening at the Clarence O. Swanson home of rural St. Hilaire. Marvin Yonke of East Grand Forks spent the weekend at his home here. He is employed in Grand Forks.

Jimmy Moe enjoyed roller skating at The Place Sunday afternoon with the Luther League members of the Oak Ridge Lutheran church. They had lunch at the church later in the afternoon.

Mrs. Helen Russell's granddaughter, Kim Grondahl and a girlfriend, both of Buffalo, Minn., spent the past weekend visiting at the Russell home and with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Grondahl at Holt. They were also callers at the Henry Panek home at Mavie.

Gary Halvorson, who is a student at Bemidji State University, spent the past weekend at his home, the Harold Halvorson's.

Mrs. Curt Johnson left Monday morning for Grand Forks for four days of classes as a representative of the First Northwestern Bank of Thief River Falls.

Mrs. Angie Larson entertained for Sunday dinner, Mr. and Mrs. John Lubitz, David and Dean and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Giles, Mary and John. Wednesday Mrs. Louis Sagstuen of Newfolden was a coffee guest at the Larson home.

Court Conference Held In Wisconsin

Future environment of courts is likely to be tumultuous. Increased public scrutiny, conflict with the press, difficult relations with legislatures, and competition for limited resources may lead judicial personnel to feel that the courts are an institution under seige.

These were among the concerns that 25 nationally selected participatns — court administrators, judges and representatives of state legislatures and judicial education programs — discussed during a recent conference in Racine, Wisc. Minnesota supreme court associate justice Lawrence R. Yetka attended the conference and served as the only judicial representative from a state high court.

Conference participants looked back over the past 10 years, during which the institute for court management was created at the urging of Warren E. Burger, chief justice of the United States supreme court. The institute for court management and the Johnson foundation sponsored the conference at the Wingspread educational conference center.

Participants noted that the addition of specially-prepared court administrative employees in the past few years has enhanced the ability of the courts to be informed about what is taking place inside and outside the courts and to manage their own affairs. Current debate, however, is centering on blending the administrative functions of court managers and judges for the overall improvement of the judicial system.

Some of the attendees noted that more information about the judicial system is now available, that courts have tried to be receptive to new demands, and that courts are more open with the public. Court administration, they said, has aided in the independence of the courts and the influence of the presiding judges, and has helped the judges to think of themselves as part of an organization.

Future issues in the courts may be different. Participants were warned that the notion of leadership in the courts has been missing. Leadership must be concerned with affairs both internal and external to the courts, said Professor Frank Sherwood of the federal executive institute in Virginia. The task of building cooperation among diverse groups and specialized individuals has taken on increased importance for today's court managers, he said.

The courts, it was thought, must improve their performance and take the initiative in making courts and judges more accountable to the public. Courts, it was suggested, can use technology more wisely, increase the direct contact in civil cases between courts and litigants, and be more open to exploration of alternative means to resolve disputes. Conferees also stressed the need to communicate with the public about the role and functions of courts.

Institute for court management is sponsored by the American Bar Association, the American Judicature society and the institute for judicial administration. The institute undertakes the education and training of people concerned with the administration of the courts and judicial process; conducts research and performs consultant services.

The Johnson foundation is a private operating foundation that, in cooperation with other organizations and institutions, convenes conferences devoted to the free exchange of ideas in the areas of educational excellence, international understanding, improvement of human environment, and intellectual and cultural growth.

Philo Beddoe (Clint Eastwood) delivers a punch in this scene from "Every Which Way But Loose," which opens Wed., Sept. 19 at the Galaxy Twin theatre. The action-comedy also stars Sondra Locke and Geoffrey Lewis.

You got the wrong guy... Stephen Furst (Flounder of "Animal House") plays a heavyweight who'd rather play the tuba than wrestle in "Take Down". Also starring are Edward Herrmann, Kathleen Lloyd, Lorenzo Lamas and Maureen McCormick. Starts Thurs., Sept. 20 at the Galaxy Twin theatre.

Plant Research Finds Potential In Many Areas

Gasoline from a shrub, rubber from weeds, a new food source from a remote bean pod — sounds like a mad scientiest's fantasies. But they're not. These are living, breathing plants, nurtured by botanists, which can revolutionize the future by overcoming hunger, disease and perhaps even the energy crisis.

This cornucopia of exotic plants is described in the September issue of "QUEST-79", in an article written by Noel Vietmeyer of the national academy of sciences in Washington, D.C.

Agronimists in at least 70 countries have tested and hailed the winged bean as the new "soybean" of the tropics, with tremendous potential as a new food source, Vietmeyer writes.

There is no part of the winged bean that can't go into the pot. The leaves, rich in vitamin A, can be cooked and eaten like spinach. Pods can supply fresh vegetables eaten raw, steamed, boiled or stir-fried. Its flowers can be used as a garnish.

Perhaps the winged bean's most outstanding feature is its tuberous root that swells to the size of a small potato in the soil. Firm and ivory white, the tubers, which have a delicate nutty flavor, can be boiled, baked, fried or roeasted, and they are 10 times richer in protein than potatoes.

Uephorbia lathyrus, a wild, cactus-like shrub found in California and requiring little or no irrigation, is perhaps the most revolutionary of today's new crops. This plant produces a milky latex, one-third of which is composed of hydrocarbons in compounds similar to those in crude oil.

Melvin Calvin, Nobel prize-winning chemistry professor at the University of California, believes that cultivation of this plant might yield as much as 10 to 15 barrels of oil per acre and eventually supply the petroleum demands of the U.S. Its main drawback is an irritating sap that can cause blindness. However, scientists believe that its marketing potential will encourage the search for strains of Euphorbia safe enough for large-scale cultivation.

Kenaf is a cane-like herb which has been cultivated for years in its native Asia, and used for making gunnysacks. Planted and cultivated like corn, Kenaf is ready for harvesting in six months or less. One acre can produce five times more fibers than one acre of pine trees. Kenaf's fibers are long, strong and easily extracted for pulping because the plant has no heavy branches. It can be made into anything from newsprint to bank notes, and has the value and potential of first quality pulpwoods.

The world of medicine will benefit too. The roots of a Madagascar periwinkle have been compounded and used to treat certain heart diseases. Leurocristine, the plant's most dramatic drug derivative, has led to a remarkable decrease in mortality among young leukemia victims. The national cancer institute is now screening 50,000 plants from all over the world for anti-tumor potency.

Sen. Boschwitz Is Critical Of Insurance Plan

Senator Rudy Boschwitz has criticized the expanded federal crop insurance plan, passed by the Senate this week, for the poor protection it will offer framers and the harm it will cause the private insurance sector.

Said Boschwitz the expanded program "will cut down on insurance and disaster protection options presently available to farmers and will place too much coltrol of their economic security with the government and vulnerable to politics."

He said he agreed with that part of the bill which would allow quicker expansion of the government's crop insurance program into counties where that program had been unavailable before.

However, he continued, he disagreed with the implications of several other of the program's provisions.

"First," he said, "the new program will offer a 20 to 40 per cent subsidy on premiums paid for government insurance. This will offer very unfair competition to private companies.

"In Minnesota, these private companies are not giant insurance corporations with headquarters in Hartford. We're talking about little operations who write one type of coverage — fire and hail protection U and who write it only in their own counties. These small enterprises can hot compete with government-subsidized plans.

"But," he stated, "while the 20 to 40 per cent subsidy might look good to farmers, the other side of the coin is a bad deal. To allow the premium subsidy, the crop insurance program will limit coverage to only 65 per cent of the production costs. That's inadequate."

Boschwitz also pointed out that the new plan calls for a gradual phase-out of disaster payments for which farmers are now eligible in addition to insurance coverage.

Adding to Boschwitz' dislike of the bill, he said, was a provision that will allow the government insurance program to include hail and fire coverage, a departure from past policy.

Said Boschwitz, who sponsored an amendment that would have removed fire and hail coverage from the plan but was defeated, "Again, on the surface this looks good for the farmer. Under the plan, he'd be able to get a subsidy on his premiums for coverage against these two disasters.

"But we should look down the road five years to see the true effects. By then, government and its subsidized policies will have forced the small, private companies out of existence.

"And, whereas the farmer was able to purchase 100 per cent coverage for hail and fire damage from those companies, he'll now be limited to the government's 65 per cent coverage."

In conclusion, he noted, "This bill has several potential bad side effects. I hope that the House will look at it very carefully when it reaches the floor over there."

A LIGHT AND LUSCIOUS PIE

There's nothing plain about today's high and handsome pie. And it's made with only four ingredients, so it's simple to put together. There's great volume in this pie! Dream Whip whipped topping mix and coconut cream flavor instant pudding are beaten with milk to create the fluffy filling, and diced canned mandarin orange sections add a delightful fruity flavor.

ORANGE COCONUT PIE

1 can (11 oz.) mandarin orange sections, drained
2 envelopes whipped topping mix
2-3/4 cups cold milk
2 packages (4-serving size) coconut cream flavor instant pudding and pie filling
1 baked 9-inch pie shell, cooled

Dice orange sections, reserving several for garnish, if desired. Prepare whipped topping mix with 1 cup of the milk as directed on package, using large mixer bowl. Add remaining 1-3/4 cups of milk and pie filling mix. Blend; then beat at high speed for 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Fold in oranges. Spoon into pie shell. Chill at least 4 hours. Garnish with reserved orange sections.

Control Method Developed For Elm Disease

Research at the University of Minnesota has led to a state label for an insecticide used to control the native elm bark beetle, an important carrier of Dutch elm disease (DED) in Minnesota.

University scientists Mark Ascerno, Val Landwehr and William Phillipsen have been studying the life cycle of the native elm bark beetle in the state under public funding supplied by the Minnesota department of agriculture's shade tree program to the university's shade tree project. In 12-research cities, scientists found the beetle spends the winter in its adult form at the base of healthy elm trees.

This overwintering behavior allowed the scientists to know exactly where to find the beetle and when, and thus they were able to have a great amount of control over the situation, in terms of applying an effective insecticide.

"We applied 0.5 chlorpyrifos (an insecticide marketed under the trade name of Dursban) to the bases of healthy elms," Phillipsen said. "This application destroyeed more than 97 per cent of the beetles."

Phillipsen said the newly approved insecticide should be used to control beetle populations on a community-wide basis, rather than by an individual homeowner. An organized spraying of the bases of all elms in a given area would be the best approach, he said.

Communities must obtain the state local need 24c label before spraying. The label must be in the possession of the user at the time of application, Phillipsen said. Call the University of Minnesota department of entomology, fisheries and wildlife, (612) 373-1704, or your local county extension office for details on obtaining this label.

Communities should spray the lower two meters of healthy elms with 0.5 Dursban in mid-September, before the beetles have started their search for overwintering sites later in the month. Tree trunks should be throughly wetted, but not to the point of run off. Extra care should be taken to apply the spray to the lowest six inches of the tree, including the root flares, since beetles tend to concentrate in these areas.

Although the insecticide was found to be effective in killing beetles whether applied in April, October or September, Phillipsen recommends spraying in September because the beetles can transmit DED as they make their overwintering tunnels. Young elms up to eight inches in diameter and thin-barked elms are especially susceptible to overwintering beetles transmitting the disease-causing fungus.

Spraying is not a substitute for good sanitation practices, the scientists emphasize, but rather an augment to prompt removal and proper disposal of diseased elms.

"Sanitation by itself will not eliminate all native elm bark beetles, because they overwinter in standing healthy elms," Phillipsen said. "However, sanitation remains the heart of an effective DED management program."

Although data has shown the effectiveness of Dursban, the scientists caution that they're not sure how this will affect DED rates when used in a given area.

"It's logical to assume that by destroying the carrier, you'll reduce the disease rate," Ascerno said. "But this assumption has not been proven yet."

Now that a state label has been approved by the Minnesota department of agriculture in conjunction with the federal environmental protection agency, experiments to test this assumption are now being designed. Minneapolis and two or three other Minnesota cities have been selected, Phillipsen said.

Thoughts On Withholding

Following editorial is from the Minneapolis Daily American:

The main reason your taxes are so criminally high, and the main reason government bureaucrats squander your money as if there were no tomorrow is withholding.

If your employer were not compelled to deduct money from your paycheck, if you got all you earned, you'd fume and sputter at the end of every quarter when you had to write a check for Social Security, Federal and State Income Taxes. You'd suffer high blood pressure four times a year, just as you do when you pay your real estate or property taxes.

Also, if your gasoline, sales, cigarette, cosmetic, entertainment, hotel, liquor and luxury taxes were not assessed when you made the purchase and you had to write a check every quarter on the basis of receipts the merchants gave you, you'd fly out of your tree over the hidden taxes the various governments are making you pay to back bureaucratic bungling, boondoggling and goldbricking.

You have become irresponsible over handling your money — and it is yours until you, personally, spend it. The shrewd politicians who put withholding across had learned that people, like horses, are creatures of habit. If you become accustomed to having something done for you, apathy becomes your mental disease; you're as lackadaisical as the horse.

If you're single, earning $200 a week, and consider yourself a dependent, every three months you'd have to send a check to the state for $126.10, to social security for $157.30 and to the U.S. for $384.80. Supposing you spend half of your money each week for something besides groceries and clothes; you'll probably pay an estimated 9 per cent on the hidden taxes — or about $117.

So, every three months, you'd have to come with roughly $785.20. You don't think that would make you watch what your politicians were spending? Ha!

Right now, you're as dumb as the horse because the politicians are "taking care of you," just as the stable boy provides a bucket of oats or a pitchfork of hay. But, if you had to take the money out of your wallet, purse, checking account — or a loan institution — you'd take a good hard look at all those political flyers the candidates pass out at election time.

Only the guys who promised to vote against stadiums, freeways that come to dead ends and welfare that gives "the poor" more than you have left after taxes would have a chance.

But, withholding has lulled you into complacency.

Really, we wouldn't need Proposition 13's if there were no withholding; you'd be voting for candidates who were offering to cut in half that $785.20 every three months.

Eliminating withholding would make Initiative and Referendum totally unnecessary because only the office-holders who voted against high taxes and big spending would ever win elections.

Under those circumstances, if Star-Trib publisher John Cowles wanted a domed stadium, he'd have to build it himself instead of getting the money from you — unless you figured you could afford it and wanted to give him a handout.

Why Not The Best?

Following editorial is from the Bemidji Pioneer:

Thomas Jefferson, a remarkably brilliant man with an abiding love for his country, once penned these words to his friend John Adams: "I agree with you that there is a natural aristocracy among men. The grounds of these are virtue and talents."

Jefferson was speaking as a true revolutionary, rejecting that old-world idea that power and privilege belong by birthright to one governing elite. And he was also expresssing his strong conviction that there are extraordinary possibilities in ordinary people. The small merchant, farmer, printer, blacksmith and carpenter — these were the people he hoped could better their lives and shape America's destiny.

What has become of that noble idea? Are we still encouraging individuals to dream, create, achieve, improve and join together as a nation in the pursuit of excellence? I frankly wonder.

We have just celebrated Labor Day, honoring all those who make America the greatest country in the world. For 24 hours, the nation actually paused to recognize the contributions our farmers, laborers, business people, clerks, scientists and so many others are making. But then it was quickly back to reality, and to a world that, ironically, resembles more and more the one Jefferson and his compatriots rebelled against — one where unchecked power and privilege in the hands of a new elite are gradually smothering the American dream for all who revere it. Consider these facts.

Almost everyone in America agrees that inflation is our single greatest domestic problem; too few understand the federal government promotes inflation because it profits from it. As government's printing and spending of money sends prices up, individuals and businesses seek wage and price increases to offset their new costs. But even though their resulting higher levels of income and profits do not represent a real gain, since they only compensate for inflation, the government automatically taxes them at a higher rate. So bureaucrats have more money to spend on themselves and their programs, but mind you, never quite enough to balance the budget.

What would Jefferson have said about a government grabbing tens of billions of dollars in windfall taxes each year without even asking the public's permission? But of course we're not asked because we're not supposed to know. If too many people catch on — and get mad — the game might end. So we're constantly being reassured the federal government is not the main source of inflation.

But if that were true, how has the federal bureaucracy become our single biggest spender, borrower and employer, growing nearly 50 per cent faster than the underlying economy, while paying salaries averaging 40 per cent higher than those in the private sector? And if the cost of government is truly inconsequential, why have taxes shot up so much faster than wages and profits, and why do they now consume the largest share of the family budget? Who's kidding whom?

The federal government understands perfectly well the impact of its policies. That is why Congress and the White House granted themselves generous pay increases while lecturing us on the virtue of sacrifice. That is why Congress so nearly exempted itself from regulations it insists everyone else obey. And that is why you must pay the huge Social Security tax increases but federal employees do not, even though a majority of them qualify (through spouse benefits, moonlighting or second careers; for Social Security benefits. What a beautiful game. They never lose!

And here's the knockout punch: Even as government's deficit spending fuels the inflation that destroys the fixed values of private pensions, government officials are protecting themselves at your expense. They are committing your tax dollars to index their own pensions to the rate of inflation. And since federal workers can retire earlier, inflation and time could compound these benefits beyond belief. Twenty years from now, retired federal clerks could be receiving annual incomes of $100,000. Potential commitments like these represent an economic time bomb just waiting to explode.

We can still salvage Jefferson's dram of a better life, but only by addressing these very serious problems and by protecting the common interests of all working Americans. Otherwise the new aristocracy, the federal bureaucrats, will have already answered the question, "Why not the best?," by providing the best of all worlds — for themselves.

Borrowed Nonsense:

For punishment the naughty little girl was put in a clothes closet. When the stern mother heard nothing for 15 minutes, she somewhat anxiously checked on her offspring. "What are you doing in there?" she asked. From the darkness came the emphatic answer: "I spit on your new hat and I spit on your new dress and I spit on your new slippers — and now I'm just waiting for more spit!"

It was time to recite the flag pledge for the first time and the kindergarteners were asked to place their right hand over their hearts. All complied but one, who put his hand behind his back. The teacher wondered why. "Every time grandma comes to see me," he explained, "she pats me back there and says, 'Bless you little heart'."

Dinner music may be fine, but we'll go along with George Bernard Shaw who was approached by a waiter in a fancy restaurant with the offer, "While you are eating, sir, the orchestra will play anything you like. What would you like them to play?" "Dominoes," Shaw replied.

"If you are going to soar with the eagles in the morning, you can't hoot with the owls all night."

Remember these advertisements? "Gas War!" "34.9 cents per gallon for regular." "Free glassware and gift stamps with each full tank." "Station hours — 6 a.m. until 2 a.m." They date from only four years ago.

In 1975 citizens were not especially concerned with gas mileage. Gas was bountiful and cheap. But today, confronted with gas shortages and escalating gas prices, consumers want cars which are fuel efficient.

When inquiring about a car's gas mileage, you may be given a figure for "highway," "city" or "combined" driving. You may be given an "estimated" figure or a range of "possible" gas mileages. Unless you know what these numbers represent and how to use them, mileage figures can be confusing and misleading.

In the past, the U.S. environmental protection agency (EPA) has given three miles per gallon figures for new cars — "highway," "city" and "combined." Driven long distances at a continuous speed with few stops, cars get their best mileages. A "highway" figure reflects this type of driving. Driven short distances with constant acceleration and deceleration as well as frequent stops, cars get their worst mileage. A "city" mileage figure reflects start and stop driving. A "combined" figure reflects both highway and city driving.

Some dealers may give you a range of mileages by quoting the EPA figures for highway and city driving. The figures do not reflect average driving mileage but show only the spread of "potential" mileages.

Starting with 1980 cars the EPA will provide only one gas economy figure — "estimated" miles per gallon. This figure attempts to reflect more closely the gas mileage an average motorist will achieve under combined highway and city driving.

All new car dealers are required to display copies of the EPA "Gas Mileage Guide." You should ask to see the book.

Even after knowing what various figures represent, you should know how to use them. We recommend that EPA fuel economy figures be used only for comparison of the fuel economies of makes and models of cars. You should not expect your mileage to match EPA figures exactly. There are several reasons why actual and EPA mileage may differ. Obviously, every one has his or her own driving pattern and varies from the EPA's "average" driver. Some may drive almost exclusively on freeways, for example; others may drive only in large cities.

EPA figures also are computed from laboratory tests, not daily driving. For example, although simulated tests include local errands and driving to work, the tests do not include idling in congested traffic.

Furthermore, all tests are done in a controlled environment, the cars are in good condition, the drivers are professional and the "street" is actually a machine called a dynometer. Such tests do not account for road conditions, hilly terrain, temperature, weather conditions or driving skills.

You will not achieve good mileage unless you drive in a fuel efficient way. You can improve your gas mileage by following these tips:

—Do not "drag race" when the light turns green. Gradual acceleration will save gas.

—Do not try to stop "on a dime." By anticipating intersections and stop lights, you can let your car slow down gradually and save gas.

—Do not ignore car maintenance. A well-maintained car gets better mileage. For example, a tune-up can improve gas mileage by five per cent and properly inflated tires also increase mileage.

If you have any questions or comments about gas mileage or any other consumer matter, please write to the Attorney General's Office, 102 State Capitol, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155.

4H CLUB

Star

The Star 4-H club had its monthly meeting on September 12 at the Star town hall. The meeting was called to order by President Leann Holen. Mrs. Clarence Peterson led the group in singing. The secretary and treasurer's reports were given and roll call was taken. The Leaders Council report was given including discussion about Awards Night and National 4-H Week.

Then election of new officers was held. Mrs. Clarence Peterson and Jodi and Paula Mutnansky were reinstated as song-leaders. Ross Parnow was voted in as reporter. Jodi Mutnansky became the new treasurer, taking over from Senior Kari Jo Peterson, who became the new President. Another Senior, Keith Stenvick, became the new Vice-President, and Sheri Swanson was re-elected as secretary. Mrs. Norman Stenvick was voted in as historian.

The club voted to have four adult leaders, reinstating Mrs. Orlin Hanson and Mrs. Robert Parnow, and voting in for the first time Mrs. Larry Sigerud and Mrs. Roger Solberg.

The meeting was then adjourned and Mrs. Parnow gave a reading in honor of the departing Seniors.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Clarence Peterson. Recreation was a game led by Mrs. Orlin Hanson.

Present at the meeting were 14 4-Her's, 8 4-H parents, and 3 visitors.

But then it was quickly back to reality, and to a world that, ironically, resembles more and more the one Jefferson and his compatriots rebelled against — one where unchecked power and privilege in the hands of a new elite are gradually smothering the American dream for all who revere it. Consider these facts.

Almost everyone in America agrees that inflation is our single greatest domestic problem; too few understand the federal government promotes inflation because it profits from it. As government's printing and spending of money sends prices up, individuals and businesses seek wage and price increases to offset their new costs. But even though their resulting higher levels of income and profits do not represent a real gain, since they only compensate for inflation, the government automatically taxes them at a higher rate. So bureaucrats have more money to spend on themselves and their programs, but mind you, never quite enough to balance the budget.

What would Jefferson have said about a government grabbing tens of billions of dollars in windfall taxes each year without even asking the public's permission? But of course we're not asked because we're not supposed to know. If too many people catch on — and get mad — the game might end. So we're constantly being reassured the federal government is not the main source of inflation.

But if that were true, how has the federal bureaucracy become our single biggest spender, borrower and employer, growing nearly 50 per cent faster than the underlying economy, while paying salaries averaging 40 per cent higher than those in the private sector? And if the cost of government if truly inconsequential, why have taxes shot up so much faster than wages and profits, and why do they now consume the largest share of the family budget? Who's kidding whom?

The federal government understands perfectly well the impact of its policies. That is why Congress and the White House granted themselves generous pay increases while lecturing us on the virtue of sacrifice. That is why Congress so neatly exampted itself from regulations it insists everyone else obey. And that is why you must pay the huge Social Security tax increases but federal employees do not, even though a majority of them qualify (through spouse benefits, moonlighting or second careers; for Social Security benefits. What a beautiful game. They never lose!

And here's the knockout punch: Eveh as government's deficit spending fuels the inflation that destroys the fixed values of private pensions, government officials are protecting themselves at your expense. They are committing your tax dollars to index their own pensions to the rate of inflation. And since federal workers can retire earlier, inflation and time could compound these benefits beyond belief. Twenty years from now, retired federal clerks could be receiving annual incomes of $100,000. Potential commitments like these represent an economic time bomb just waiting to explode.

We can still salvage Jefferson's dream of a better life, but only by addressing these very serious problems and by protecting the common interests of all working Americans. Otherwise the new artistocracy, the federal bureaucrats, will have already answered the question, "Why not the best?," by providing the best of all worlds — for themselves.

New Party...
Older Faces...
Failed Ideas

In case you missed the breathtaking announcement, a new group — the Citizens Party — has just laid claim to the presidency in 1980. The Washington Post reported the party was conceived in part by Barry Commoner and blessed by none other than Ralph Nader who called it "progressive." Mr. Nader's praise follows his criticism of the present two-party system as, ". . .a political conspiracy against the citizens of this country."

Mr. Commoner is an ecologist known for his love of solar power. Less well-known, perhaps, are his political views. In his book, The Poverty of Power, he writes: "Economists and other students of capitalism will recognize that the basic ideas I have discussed are among those first put forward by Karl Marx.

"All this suggests that it may be time to view the faults of the United States economic system from a vantage point of alternative — to debate the relative merits of capitalism and socialism." And now, Mr. Commoner has gone beyond debate to outright advocacy. His Citizens Party platform calls for: Nationalizing the energy industry; expanding government control over other industries; mandating price controls and government planning, and, initiating both "an immediate, sharp reversal in the rate of military spending. . ." and, the "conversion of the armaments industry to productive activity."

These last two proposals would place the security of America and our allies in grave peril, even as the Soviets engineer a massive military build-up that's for openers. Then of course we would be saddled with some form of socialism which has never worked, no matter where, when or how it has been tried. It disappointed our British friends even in their modified democratic form, and the Soviet totalitarian version has been an outright disaster. As writer George F. Will recently mused: "Amazingly, for the 62nd straight year, unusually wet (or is it dry?) weather prevented Communist agriculture from flourishing."

Actually, Mr. Commoner and company are clever enough to smell the danger of unpopular political labels. So where we would say "Government control," they neatly substitute "public control." This little rhetorical trick is so simple any child could master it. But look at the results: One wave of their wand and — Viola — all the bureaucrats magically diasppear, replaced by shining populist heroes who tirelessly promote citizen representation throughout the economy. It all seems almost too wonderful to believe.

It is. Logic has its way of piercing silly myths. How, for instance, will even bigger bureaucracies at HEW, HUD, DOE AND DOT give us more control over our lives and our economy? How, wonders the Wall Street Journal, could a government controlling prices and running major companies from Washington also leave room for citizen involvement and local autonomy? Obviously, consistency will not be a Citizens Party trademark.

Nor will its respect for individual rights, for treasured values like tolerance and freedom of choice will not long endure in this party's coercive utopia. Forget for a moment Mr. Commoner's socialist views. Consider those of someone equally influential who will use his power to support Citizens Party goals: Ralph Nader.

As we are constantly reminded, Mr. Nader only works for what he says consumers need. Yet we seldom hear how hard he also works against what the great majority of consumers really want: Proposition 13 in California; across-the-board tax cuts nationwide; legislation linking federal tax and spending cuts, and a reduction in suffocating regulations.

But encouraging individuals to succeed, to live their own dreams, and, should they prefer, to swim against the tide — that is not what Ralph Nader is all about. No, he expresses an admiration for China's ability to marshall massive numbers of people in a common cause. And he told the New York Times: "I'll tell you what the real problem is. We ask people to think instead of asking them to believe. And history has always gone to those who ask people to believe."

So believe in Nader, believe in Commoner, just don't think about what they say. But history warns what happens when too many believe in too few . . . who want everything their way.

THE ECONOMICS OF BAKING BREAD

Kneading dough is one good way to save the kind of "dough" you need to pay the bill at todays' supermarket. When you relate nutritive value of food to cost, bread is considered one of the most economical foods.

Estimates on how much money you can save making bread at home vary according to how much bread a family eats, where you shop, what kinds of breads a family likes and the amount of uneaten bread in the home. Coffee cake and rolls, particularly those that contain nuts, raisins and special ingredients can usually be made at home for much less than half the price.

Most of the ingredients for making a loaf of bread are on hand in the average kitchen: flour, sugar, milk, salt and shortening. Active Dry yeast can be purchased at most food stores, and special equipment isn't necessary for making bread.

Many home bakers seem to have a basic sense of economics. They say time is hardly a factor when determining cost. An organized cook can produce a big batch of bread in less than twenty minutes which includes time for measuring ingredients, mixing and kneading. Doubling recipes and freezing the excess doubles the dividends of the time invested. It takes no longer to make a double batch than a single batch.

This recipe for Sour Cream Coffee Squares is a rich, delicious coffee cake that's sweet enough to serve for dessert. The recipe may be doubled, then freeze one half before frosting.

SOUR CREAM COFFEE SQUARES

Makes 1 large cake

- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- 1 package (3-ounce) cream cheese, softened
- 1/3 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup dark seedless raisins
- 3 3/4 to 4 1/4 cups unsifted flour
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 package Fleischmann's Active Dry Yeast
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 cup (2 sticks) margarine
- 4 egg yolks (at room temperature)
- Confectioners' sugar frosting
- Walnut halves

In a small bowl blend together sour cream, cream cheese and sugar. Stir in raisins; set aside.

In a large mixing bowl thoroughly mix 1-1/4 cups flour, 1 tablespoon sugar and undissolved yeast.

Combine milk, water and margarine in saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are very warm (120°F-130°F). Margarine does not need to melt. Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add 4 egg yolks and 1/2 cup flour. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft moist dough.

Divide dough in half. Roll out 1/2 of the dough on floured board to fit the bottom of an ungreased 15-1/2 x 10-1/2 x 1-inch jelly roll pan. Spread with prepared sour cream filling. Seal edges together. Snip surface of dough with scissors to let steam escape. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Bake at 375°F. 30 to 35 minutes or until done. Cool cake in pan on wire rack. Frost while warm with confectioners' sugar frosting and garnish with walnut halves. Cut into squares to serve.

What To Expect In Ophthalmology Exam

What should a person expect from an eye examination: Those who see an ophthalmologist — a physician and surgeon who specializes in eye care — should expect to learn much more than whether or not they need glasses.

The ophthalmologist can determine many things about the health of the body by examining the eyes. For example, the doctor can see signs of diseases such as diabetes, high blood pressure and some forms of cancer.

According to the Minnesota association of ophthalmology, a routine eye exam should consist of a vision exam and a medical exam.

During the first part, the vision exam, the ophthalmologist tests sight to determine if corrective lenses are required. If necessary, the ophthalmologist prescribes glasses, or soft or hard contact lenses, to compensate for a vision deficiency.

The second portion of the examination is the medical part. Here, the ophthalmologist begins by examining the external portion of the eyes, the surrounding tissues and the lids for abnormal growths, degenerations or infections. The doctor then tests the reflexes of the pupils and performs muscle balance testing to see if the eyes are properly aligned. A misalignment may be an early warning signal for lazy eye, cancer, stroke, thyroid disease or diabetes.

Next the ophthalmologist assesses the pressures of the eyes. High eye pressure is a serious matter and may indicate the presence of glaucoma, one of the leading causes of blindness. Since glaucoma usually has no symptoms, a careful medical eye exam is needed periodically to discover this condition.

The ophthalmologist then examines the eyes from back to front, using special instruments to peer deep into the eye. This should cause you little or no discomfort, but it enables the ophthalmologist to examine all the structures inside the eye — the optic nerve, retina and blood vessels. In so doing, the ophthalmologist can often see the signs of certain diseases such as brain tumors, diabetes, hardening of the arteries, leukemia or parasetic infections.

Changing instruments, the ophthalmologist examines the front of each eye using a slit-lamp microscope, looking at the cornea. This is the window of the eye, and is normally crystal clear. The function of the cornea is to concentrate light onto the lens of the eye.

Looking into the slit-lamp microscope, the ophthalmologist also checks the space between the cornea and the iris, and then the iris itself. The iris is the ring of muscle which projects a person's eye color. The iris is a diaphragm with a hole in the center known as the pupil. By manipulating the muscles in the iris, a person is able to narrow or widen the pupil. This occurs continuously and automatically, allowing more or less light into the eye.

The ophthalmologist examines all of these parts, looking for inflammation, tumors or degenerative changes which may be the key to a specific patient complaint.

Concluding the eye examination, the ophthalmologist will review his findings with the patient. This is the most important portion of the exam. Here the ophthalmologist has an opportunity to study and interpret the medical data collected during the course of the examination. If serious disorders of the eye or body are revealed, the ophthalmologist may perform additional tests, or refer the patient to other medical health professionals.

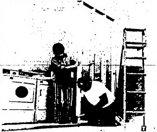
Helpful Tips On Low-Cost Decorating Ideas

DO-IT-YOURSELF PARTITIONS REDEFINE SPACE



A few hours' time can give you a convenient new laundry room you build with low-cost materials. Non-bearing partition can be covered with attractive prefinished paneling.

By simply dividing one room into two with a non-weight-bearing partition, you can increase the apparent size of your home and multiply its uses.

Your projected improvement need not cost much if you construct the partition yourself, then make creative use of the space you "add".

Because non-bearing partitions do not support the floor above, their construction is lighter and easier than that of load-bearing walls. They are also generally constructed of 2 x 4-inch studs, set either 16 or 24 inches apart.

The bottom of the studs should be nailed to a 2 x 4 called the sole plate, nailed to the floor. A top plate, also 2 x 4 inches, is nailed to the ceiling, or in the case of an unfinished basement or attic, directly to the ceiling joists or rafters.

To align your new partition, measure its location from an existing wall and then, using chalk, mark a straight line on the floor. The partition sole plate is then set against the chalk line and nailed to the floor.

Using a level to insure that the partition is level, nail the first studs to the existing walls. Once these end studs are in place, set the top plate by nailing it to the bottom of the ceiling joists or the ceiling. Place the studs on 16-inch (or 24-inch) centers and toenail them on both sides to both the sole plate and the top plate.

It is possible to assemble the partition on the floor and then tilt it into place where ceiling heights and clearances permit.

Be sure you double stud at the sides and tops of all openings, and never notch them for wires, pipes, etc., more than one-third of their depth.

A decorative wood paneling can be applied directly to studs. It is desirable, however, to use 3/8-inch or 1/2-inch gypsum board as a backer for solid installation — and to cut down on noise through the wall. Such backing also increases insulation.

If stud spacing is greater than the normal 16-inch on center (do not space wider than 24-inch on center), you should use horizontal blocking between the studs and as necessary for solid backing behind all panel edges.

THE FOREST AND YOU

Trees Fueling California Cars

The first shipment of alcohol made from trees to help fill near-empty California auto gas tanks with gasohol was recently loaded into a tank truck. The initial 7,500 gallons of the 200-proof gasoline additive was scheduled for Sacramento for use in state-owned cars.

California's wood-be response to the fuel crunch is to use gasohol as a fuel in state-owned cars.

The 200-proof gasoline additive, similar to grain alcohol, is made from former papermill waste.

Made from wood sugars by Georgia-Pacific Corp. (G-P) in part of the pollution control systems at its pulp, paper and chemical complex in Bellingham, Washington, the shipment marked the start of Gov. Jerry Brown's emergency gasohol program. Gasoline volume is extended approximately ten percent with the additive.

The alcohol is the ethyl type, which is potable until "denatured" to make it undrinkable. Most methyl alcohol, an alternate, nonpotable additive, is made from unrenewable natural gas. G-P is the major producer of alcohol from a renewable resource in the western part of the nation. Similar to grain alcohol, it is a by-product from manufacturing Coronet and MD household tissues.

The current market for gasohol grade alcohol is in the $1.50 per gallon range in tank car or tank truck lots f.o.b., Bellingham.

Plant additions and recent new operating efficiencies at G-P have boosted the plant's capacity to more than two million gallons annually of the 200-proof, plus millions more of lesser proof. The plant, started on a small scale in 1944, supplied the alcohol for the historic State of Nebraska gasohol test program in 1974 which involved two million miles of driving for state-owned vehicles.

Less potent grades of the wood-sugar distilled alcohol from the unusual antipollution facility at Bellingham are marketed to the chemical industry for such products as solvents and are also used in food flavoring.

UNDERSTANDING OUR ECONOMY

Recent reports that corporate profits have increased have caused some people to wonder if corporations are taking advantage of the public.

One way to measure profits is to compare them to inflation.

If we measure the profit of one major company — Du Pont — we find that 1978 profits were 207 percent of 1968 profits before correction for inflation, but after correction, only 10 percent higher.

Other ways used to measure profit are "profit margin" and "return on investment." Profit margins is the ratio between profits and sales. It indicates what fraction of sales income ends up as profit. Surveys have consistently shown that the public believes that profit margins for U.S. business are much higher than they really are. Furthermore, these same surveys show that the public believes that a "fair" profit margin would be higher than profit margins have been historically. In a recent Lou Harris Survey, about half of those responding thought the profit margin for U.S. industry was 37 percent or higher and that a "fair" profit margin would be 20 percent or more.

Return on investment is the ratio between profits and the amount of money inness. That big company, Du Pont, had a total investment in 1978 of $14.7 billion compared to $8.4 billion in 1968. Its profit margin and return on investment are below the levels of the '60s.

Even this relatively low level of profits, however, is good for the American economy. Profits provide the money for paying dividends to stockholders, including many people's pension plans.

Experts on economy point out that continued generation of profits is the only way that business can serve the interest of the public: through the creation of new jobs, through the payment of dividends and through construction of modern, efficient production facilities that deliver new and improved products at reasonable prices.

Although major companies are not making the profits they used to, they are still contributing to our economy.

Need fast grain storage?
GT QUICK-BIN

The fastest bin in the West! 2 men can set it up anywhere in 1 hour. No cement pad needed.

Boxcars are becoming increasingly scarce and elevators are filling up. Avoid being forced to pile grain on the ground and incurring grain spoilage. QUICK-BIN protects 2,500 bushels (or 5,000 bu.) from snow, moisture, wind and insects.

Take QUICK-BIN wherever you're harvesting, even by car! Beats hauling grain if you fill directly from a combine. Unloads easily by auger/elevator. Then fold it up ready to relocate anywhere for the next crop.

Materials are steel and cross-woven fabric that's tougher to tear than a phone book. QUICK-BIN folds when emptied to be used again. Replacement liners available.

QUICK-BIN is the least expensive, most convenient, and in so many respects the safest grain storage available for short-term or years-long use. $895* complete with illustrated instructions and all materials. ($1,165* for 5,000 bu. size)

Ripley Alliance Offers Help For Abused Women

(The following article, intended for publication in Wednesday's Times in conjunction with the article entitled "Plan Shelter For Battered Women," was omitted because of lack of space.)

by Kim Blaeser
Times Reporter

"Until the 20th century it wasn't illegal for a man to beat his wife," says Kathleen Kolden of St. Hilaire while talking about the sociological atmosphere which today still, if not condones, at least seems to tolerate physical abuse to women. "Then he could use a whip as long as it wasn't any bigger than his little finger. That was legal. Woman has been man's property for such a long time and home has been a safe place for him to vent his anger."

"I don't think it is still illegal to beat your wife," commented another of the members of a local support group for battered women. The speaker was a 33-year-old housewife who has facial scars from 15 years of marriage to a batterer. "It might be illegal," she says, "but men are still getting by with it. It might be illegal, but people don't look at it that way. They always say, 'If she'd shut up she wouldn't get beat' or 'If she'd clean her house she wouldn't get beat.'"

"People still blame it on the woman," comments Kolden, who experienced battering in her first marriage, "when in fact it is the man's problem. He doesn't know how to handle his anger. If he is frustrated at work, if other people are hassling him, he can't hit them or he'll go to jail. But if he comes home and beats his wife, he won't.

"The batterers don't have any good reasons for their actions. It is ridiculous to think that somebody is going to beat somebody up and leave scars all over them because their house isn't clean. It's crazy. I got my worst beating when my husband ran out of cigarettes one time at about 3 o'clock in the morning."

Kathleen Kolden and the anonymous housewife are part of a group of approximately 10-15 women who meet regularly to offer each other support in dealing with the abuse they experience in their lives. The support group was formed eight months ago through the Martha Rogers Ripley Alliance, officially incorporated name of a regional organization which works with various programs for battered women.

The alliance was formed out of two organizations: the adult abuse task force of the women's resource center at the University of Minnesota, Crookston; and the health task force of the Agassiz chapter of the national organization for women (NOW). Sixteen to 20 persons serve on the alliance board which is headed by chairman Susan Davidson of Crookston. Kolden serves as secretary for the alliance and Doris Heroff of St. Hilaire is treasurer. Board members consist of battered women themselves as well as area people who commit themselves to actively working for battered women's concerns.

"Battering is the most underreported crime in the country," stated Julie Chase of Thief River Falls who recently joined the alliance board. "Statistically one out of every 10 rapes is reported but only 1 out of every 20 cases of battering. It is also the least understood crime in the country. However awareness is building in the country and hopefully so will understanding."

With the alliance making plans to locate a battered women's shelter in Thief River Falls, battered women's issues are coming to the forefront locally. In an effort to dispell some of the myths surrounding the issue, three area women agreed to share information about their experiences with battering. Interviewed were Kolden, Pat Happersett of Thief River Falls and one women who wishes to remain anonymous. Also consenting to interviews were Chase, Pennington county deputy sheriff Jim Wright of St. Hilaire, alliance board member Gayle Larson, an individual who has a "safe-home" in his residence and Rev. Lloyd Heroff.

Perhaps the most frequently asked questions concerning battered women are: How do they get into those type of BASEMENT FIRE in the Jerry Wetch residence at 236 Kendall av. N. resulted in a burned wall and basement ceiling early Wednesday afternoon. Fire Chief Duane Noel said the fire resulted from improper installation of a wood heating stove with the stove pipe angling up next to a paneled wall. With increasing use of wood for heating as a result of high fuel oil prices, Chief Noel cautions that wood stoves should be properly installed to result in a minumum of potential fire danger.

Emergency 10 Ton Roads, Gas Tax Discussed

"The time has come for Mn-DOT (Minnesota department of transportation) to place a greater emphasis on the highway systems of 'out-state' Minnesota. This will not be a popular decision. . . but if this state is going to grow and prosper it must have the necessary system of roads to handle its chief commodities; that is agriculture and commerce."

Taken from a resolution presented by Norm Cruse on behalf of the board of directors of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce, this statement was representative of the opinion of the majority of these in attendance at a meeting held Wednesday, September 19, with highway department officials. An estimated 100 persons were in attendance at the meeting held at Northland community college including MN-DOT commissioner Richard Braun.

Braun made a presentation outlining methods of funding for the highway department and the reasons for the present budget deficiency. He indicated that the department and the reasons for the present budget deficiency. He indicated that the department was $122 million short for programmed projects and that was the reason for the recent cutbacks. The commissioner also explained alternatives for raising additional revenues for the transportation department including increasing the gas tax.

Speaking on behalf of the chamber, Cruse indicated that the chamber legislative action committee, transportation committee and the board of directors voted unanimously to support a gas tax increase with the "monies to be placed in a special fund for maintenance, reconstruction and construction of a 10-ton road system only." Chamber support was also given to like increases in other highway users fees to support this special fund and the board resolution also urged a change in criteria and priorities in the state which would "reflect this need for 10-ton roads."

Emergency 10-ton route was

2 Young People From Area Die In Accidents

Two area young people were killed in separate motor vehicle accidents Friday afternoon and Saturday morning. Dead are eight-year-old Brady Green of rural Middle River and 18-year-old Mark Kuzel of Thief River Falls.

Green, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Green, was killed when the small motorcycle he was riding and a car collided at the intersection of county roads 12 and 121 northeast of Holt. The intersection is located three miles east and three miles north of Holt.

According to the Marshall county sheriff's department which investigated the accident, Brady Green was riding the cycle east on county road 121. The car was driven south on county road 12 by Joy Inman of rural Middle River. The car did not leave the road and there were no other injuries reported.

Mark Kuzel died when the pickup truck he was driving east on county road 42 left the roadway a mile east of the Marshall-Beltrami county line. Kuzel was dead at the scene, according to the Beltrami county sheriff's department which received the call at 4:39 a.m. and is investigating the accident.

Funeral services for Brady Lee Green are being held today (Monday) at 2 p.m., at the Emmanuel Lutheran church of Ringbo, rural Holt. Rev. Eugene Enderlein will officiate. Interment will be in the church cemetery with the Green funeral home in charge of arrangements.

A complete obituary will follow in Wednesday's Times.

Funeral services for Mark Kuzel will be held Tuesday at 2 p.m., at the Bethany Lutheran church, rural Thief River Falls, with Rev. Gene Broughton officiating. Interment will be in the church cemetery.

The body is reposing at the Green Funeral home and will repose at the church for one hour prior to the time of services.

A complete obituary will be published in Wednesday's edition of the Times.

Grain Drive By FFA To Aid Camp Courage

Thief River Falls chapter of the Future Farmers of America (FFA) will conduct its grain drive for Camp Courage Friday when members will visit Pennington county farms to solicit donations of grain for the campaign.

Grain collected will be sold and the proceeds sent to Camp Courage, a camp for the handicapped. During the years in which grain drives have been sponsored by FFA chapters throughout the state, more than $700,000 has been donated by farmers and grain dealers toward the Camp Courage program.

United Way Opens 1979 Drive Today

"A gift we give each other for being human" is one of the slogans being used as the Thief River Falls area United Way campaign gets underway this week. Goal for the organization this year is $75,000 and the drive officially started with a kick-off breakfast and distribution of campaign materials this morning at the Best Western Inn.

Muriel Olin and Ron Nelson, co-chairmen of the retail business area contact teams, remind the public that there will be no residential door-to-door canvass again this year and contributions are to be made through contact at place of employment.

"In order to reach our goal, every wage earner must contribute," Mrs. Olin and Nelson said. "To make giving easier, many firms offer payroll deduction and employees and employers should consider their donation in a monthly amount. Where payroll deduction is not available, United Way billing is offered to assist in the monthly contribution."

Last year the United Way allocated $63,097 including $37,250 to 15 local organizations and $25,847 to 19 state, national and indirect services.

Local support included the following: Camp Shunshine camperships, $2,000; Northern Lights Boy scout council, $9,500; Pine to Prairie Girl scouts, $10,000; Friendship club, $450; Special Friends, $150; Occupational development center, $5,000; senior meal and activities, $300;

Also Senior Citizens coordinating council, $100; Pennington county ARC, $1,000; hospital chaplaincy program, $3,500; Salvation army, $2,250; Red Cross flood relief for Red River valley, $1,000; local hospital equipment, $700; Inter-County nursing service, $200; and I Can Cope (cancer information program), $1,100.

State and national services include Kidney research, $2,500; heart research, $5,000; cancer research, $5,000; cerebral palsy research, $350; health education for living program (diabetes), $300; Minnesota foundation for better hearing and speech, $400; Minnesota arthritis foundation, $1,200; Children's Home society, $1,000; and Sister Kenny institute, $1,400.

Also Minnesota Courage center, $4,000; Christian record braille foundation,

HILLS OF CARROTS on the Korydon and Orlando Chervestad farms northwest of Oklee are dug one row at a time with a vegetable harvester which trims off the tops and elevates the roots to the accompanying wagon. On the harvester at right is Al Kindt, foreman for the operation who is responsible for designing and building much of the equipment and keeping it in repair. Tractor driver is Jeannie Groven and pulling the trailer with a Russian-built four-wheel drive tractor is Jimmy Olson.

50 Acres To Be Harvested . . .

Carrot Operation Keeps Chervestads Extra Busy

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

If Korydon Chervestad was Elmer Fudd of cartoon fame, he could make a lot of Bugs Bunnies very happy. The Chervestad carrot patches cover approximately 60 acres of peat ground northwest of Oklee — and that means a lot of carrots to be eaten.

While most youngsters are familiar with carrots on their plates and gardeners are accustomed to digging them by the box full or even by the bushel, at the Chervestad farm they are measured by the ton per acre. Korydon estimates his harvest so far — about a third completed — as grossing about 12 to 15 tons per acre and netting about eight tons of packaged product.

"There is a lot of waste," Chervestad admits, noting that some of the smaller and mis-shapen carrots which now go for livestock feed could well be used for healthful and nutritious carrot juice. Right now, however, that is something to think about for the future. There is still much to be learned and to be done in providing carrots for the fresh market.

Although somewhat unique, the Chervestad operation isn't exactly original. Much of the equipment was purchased from Ron Stelle of Trail who raised carrots for three years and produced up to 50 acres a year. Because some of the Chervestad plantings didn't do as well as expected, about 50 acres are expected to be harvested on the farm this year.

Last spring Korydon and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Chervestad, joined forces with Al Kindt, foreman of the carrot operation, to get the planting underway. The peat ground was prepared for planting and a 12-foot hiller was used to create hills for planting the crop. The hilling equipment created four hills at a time with 32-inch spacing between rows.

When the land was hilled, planting was done four rows at a time at a rate of 25 to 40 seeds per acre. Anyone who has planted carrots is aware of how small and light the seed is, but Chervestad said the planting presented no problem. Seed was purchased from Northrup King's commercial division and three varieties were planted to determine if there was any appreciable difference in tonnage.

Peat ground and hilling combine to help production by allowing carrots planted close together to expand during the growing period. Weed control is a problem since the crop is never cultivated. Aerial application is made of Lorex for weed control between the rows and malathion insecticide to control a type of fly which causes the carrots to produce multiple roots. The herbicide is selective enough to control canary grass, quack grass, thistles, wide leaf weeds and other unwanted growth without harming the carrots.

This year the crop was planted later than would normally be desired, as were most crops in the area due to the cold and wet spring. While the seed should be in the ground by May 20, this year planting wasn't done until June 3 to June 10. About 15 acres a day could be planted if all went well.

Harvesting is another matter. A one-row vegetable harvester is used with Kindt operating the controls to guide the row finder part of the digger along the rows if they are not entirely straight. With another person driving the tractor pulling the harvester and a third driving a tractor pulling a wagon alongside the harvester, two to three acres can be harvested on a good day.

The sloped-side wagons which have conveyors in the SAMPLING THE PRODUCT of the Chervestad carrot operation are Korydon Chervestad and his daughter Abigail, 3½ years old. Nicknamed "Muffy", the youngster has a healthy appetite for carrots and munches quite a few while with her dad in the field or around the processing plant. The Chervestads expect to harvest about 50 acres of carrots this fall.

CARROT WASHING in the processing operation on the Korydon Chervestad farm northwest of Oklee is accomplished in this large drum. Carrots emptied from a wagon as they come from the field are carried to this stage of the operation by water pumped through a flume in the concrete floor. In the transfer process, they are partially washed. The rotating drum utilizes fresh water from a new well on the farm at a rate of 30 to 50 gallons per minute. The washed carrots leave the other end of the washer and are carried by conveyor belt to sorting and packaging stations.

Theresa Lynn Hanson and Danny Johnsrud Are Wed

Marriage vows were exchanged recently in an ecumenical ceremony at St. Bernard's Catholic church in this city by Theresa Lynn Hanson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edvin H. Hanson, and Danny Allen Johnsrud, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Johnsrud, all of Goodridge.

Officiating at the ceremony were Rev. Leon Rausch and Rev. Gene Broughton, pastor of the Goodridge Lutheran parish. Lorene Ubel, a friend of the bride, was organist. She played "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," for the processional and "Bridal Chorus," for the recessional. During the ceremony Shirley Verbout and Rosie Dahlin, friends of the couple, sang "Wedding Song," and "Follow Me."

Candelabra graced with greenery and light blue ribbon streamers formed the chancel setting.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a gown of white Chantilly lace featuring long, bishop sleeves with Cluny lace cuffs edged with crystal pleating. The fitted bodice, in Victorian style, featured a Schiffli yoke with wide crystal pleating, and a lace trimmed neckline. Her draped, triple-tiered skirt, edged with ruffles, was complemented by an attached chapel-length train. A Cluny lace headpiece held her four-tiered veil of bridal illusion. She carried a cascade of white roses, blue tinted carnations, greenery and babies breath.

Deborah Derosier, Fayetteville, N.C., attended her sister as matron of honor. Other attendants were Shirley Verbout, a friend of the couple; Joann Hanson, Emerado, N.D., a sister-in-law of the bride; Tami Johnsrud, sister of the groom, and Renae Hanson, Goodridge, sister of the bride. They wore identical light blue gowns with lace yokes, mandarin collars and floor-length skirts surrounded by lace trimmed ruffles. Topping the gowns were matching capelets, edged with lace. All wore light blue floppy hats and carried bouquets of white roses and light blue tinted carnations. Their birthstone bracelets were gifts from the bride.

Wearing similar attire was the flower girl, April Johnson, Goodridge, a cousin of the bride. The rings were carried by Chris Whitaker, Fayetteville, N.C., a nephew of the bride.

Best man was Gerry Johnsrud, Goodridge, a cousin of the groom. Groomsmen were Joel Dahlen, Chisholm, friend of the couple, Paul Solberg, Goodridge; Eddie Hanson, Emerado, N.D., brother of the bride, and Larry Johnsrud, Goodridge, a brother of the groom. Keith Hanson, Goodridge, a brother of the bride, served as honorary groomsman. Ushers and usherettes were Richard Vraa, Goodridge, Donavon Verbout, Donna Vraa and Fern Horachek of Goodridge, friends of the couple. The groom, his attendants and ringbearer wore light blue tuxedos, dark blue trousers and vests, and white ruffled shirts edged in blue. Their boutonnieres were white roses, babies' breath and greenery.

The mother of the bride wore a light blue gown with a blouson top and a floor-length pleated skirt. The groom's mother was attired in a sleeveless blue gown topped by a matching, long-sleeved lace coat. Their corsages were of white roses and babies' breath.

Honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. Herman Sturre, Mr. and Mrs. Kore Hanson, grandparents of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Arne Marukuson, grandparents of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnsrud, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Huseth, godparents of the groom; and Shelly Hyland, the bride's personal attendant.

Approximately 200 relatives and friends attended the reception that followed in the church parlors. Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Glen Nesland, brother-in-law and sister of the bride. Mrs. Kathy Johnson, aunt of the bride, registered the guests as Rosie Dahlen, Mavis Paulson, friends of the couple, ladled the punch.

The four-tiered Festival Of Love wedding cake, made by Mrs. Elva Fiedler, was iced in white and decorated with white garlands and stringwork, and blue drop flowers. Grecian pillars supported the tiers, topped with wedding bells and a miniature bride and groom. A trio of cupids topped the cake, which was cut and served by Mrs. Kathy Sturre, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Anne Bieganek, aunt of the groom. Pouring coffee were Mrs. Ellie Horachek, friend of the couple, and Mrs. Darlene Wiseth, cousin of the groom.

Pinning flowers were Parry Anderson, friend of the couple, and Charlene Eliason, cousin of the groom. Bruce and Brian Hanson, brothers of the bride, and Wayne and Kenneth Frazer, cousins of the bride, served as gift bearers. Waitresses were Carmen Hanson, Gwen Johnsrud, Lourenda Frazer and Karla Joyce Sturre.

After the rehearsal, the night before the wedding, the groom's parents hosted a supper at the Best Western for the wedding party and the immediate families.

The newly-weds are now at home in rural Goodridge. The bride is in her second year of accounting at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute; and the groom is a carpenter, self-employed. Both are graduates of the Goodridge high school. Photo, R. L. Nieland studio, Thief River Falls.

Homemakers of Rocksbury Study Wok Cookery

Wok cookery was the lesson presented at the September meeting of the Rocksbury Homemakers club held at the home of Mrs. Ella Ranum. Presenting the lesson were Mrs. Anna Gunderson and Minnie Krause.

Councilor Goldie Breiland was in charge of the meeting which opened with Bertha Anderson reading the Homemakers creed. Roll call was answered by each member listing the activity they had enjoyed most this summer. During the business session, dues were paid, two new members were welcomed, and the program lessons for the year were reviewed.

Lunch served by the hostess included the pork and cashew nut dish prepared during the lesson demonstration. It was served with rice, fortune cookies and a dessert.

The October meeting will feature a lesson on recycling clothing with Ivadell Relerson and Yvonne Walsberg as leaders. The meeting will be held at the Walbsberg home with Mrs. Walsberg and Goldie Breiland as hostesses.

25th Anniversary Is Observed By Rodney Twistols

Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Twistol were honored recently at an open house in observance of their 25th wedding anniversary. The event was held at the Evangelical Free church. It was planned and hosted by the couple's children: Renae, Randy, Renelle and Raelynn.

The festivities began with a program with Randy Twistol as master of ceremonies and Dill Lewis in charge of scripture reading and prayer. Musical selections included two songs by Don Wahlbeck, a friend of the couple, and Ardelle Kjellberg, Mrs. Twistol's sister. They sang, "If That Isn't Love," and a humorous song written especially for the couple. Other musical selections were a piano solo by Renelle Twistol, and a solo, "O Perfect Love," by Danny Trontvet.

Of special interest were the movies shown by Ole Trontvet of the couple's wedding 25 years ago.

At the reception that followed, Ardelle Kjellberg, and Marilyn Redinger cut and served the anniversary cake as Marlene Tyner and Donna Lewis poured the coffee. All were attendants when the Twistols were married 25 years ago.

Renelle Twistol and Stacy Kjellberg, a niece, registered the guests. Punch was ladled by Renae and Raelynn Twistol, assisted by a friend, Lisa Glass. In charge of serving the reception were Bobbi Trontvet, Sharon Burkholder, Yvonne Wahlbeck and Patty Bjerknes, friends of the couple.

Relatives and friends attending were from California, East Grand Forks, Brooklyn Center, Alvarado, Lake Bronson, Hallock, Halma, Karlstad, Warren and Thief River Falls.

Among them was Barbara (Beich) Anderson of Brooklyn Center, who was the couple's flower girl. She was accompanied by her daughter, Amy, who wore the same dress her mother wore 25 years ago.

Unable to attend were the other flower girl, Doreen Enstad, the ring bearer, Jeff Blid, and the groomsmen: Paul Blid, Kenny Koglin, Kenny Ingelbretson, and Dick Haglo.

A work environment so noisy it is difficult to understand normal conversation at arm's length could present a hazard to hearing ability. Such areas should be quieted, or persons working in such environments should be provided with protective ear devices.

Lyla Paetznick Becomes Bride of Miles Smith

Miss Lyla Gladys Paetznick of Middle River and Miles Richard Smith of Badger exchanged marriage vows recently at a mid-afternoon ceremony at the First Lutheran church at Middle River.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Paetznick of Middle River. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith of Badger.

Rev. Donald Fredine officiated at the double ring ceremony. Music was provided by Mrs. Barb Geer, organist, and Deb Nygard, who sang, "Sunrise, Sunset," "That's the Way," and "What a Difference You've Made in My Life."

Baskets of mixed flowers in pink, blue and yellow graced the altar. Wedding bells in corresponding colors marked the pews along the center aisle.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in an organza gown featuring sheer Chantilly lace bishop sleeves. Matching lace outlined the Queen Anne neckline, traced the empire waistline, and bordered the chapel-length train that flowed from her triple-tiered, A-line skirt. A Victorian headpiece with pearl trim held her finger-tip veil of bridal illusion. She carried a cascade of white daisies, pink roses and minature carnations, accented with babies' breath.

Diane Huot was the bride's personal attendant.

Maid of honor was Cindy Rybakowski, Middle River, a friend of the bride. Her gown was of pink organza over matching taffeta. It featured an A-line skirt with a flounced hemline that hooked at the back waistline to form cascading ruffles. Double ruffles edged the sleeves and U-neckline. To complete her attire, she wore a pink wide-brimmed hat with pink ribbon, and carried a colonial bouquet of yellow daisies, pink carnations, blue cornflowers and white ball pompons, tied with ribbon to match her gown.

Similar attire, only in yellow and blue, respectively, was worn by the bridesmaids, Lucille Stancyk, Thief River Falls, and Rose Nelson, Middle River. Both are friends of the bride.

Serving as flower girl was Colleen Kaml, Greenbush, a niece of the bride. Her gown of pink organdy with a flowered print was also styled with a ruffle at the neckline and around the hem. Attired in a white nylon chiffon gown, designed like the bride's, was the minature bride, Mary Smith of Greenbush. The rings were carried by Calvin Rybakowski, Middle River, a friend of the bride. Like the men of the wedding party, he wore a white dinner jacket with black trousers and vest. His ruffled shirt and carnation boutonniere matched the pink in the flower girl's dress.

Attending the groom as best man was Raymond Rybakowski, Jr., Middle River, a friend. Groomsmen were Billy and Jay Smith, Badger, brothers of the groom. The guests were ushered by Victor Kaml, Jr., Greenbush, and Dale Wojciechowski, Badger, brothers-in-law of the bride and groom, respectively. Their ruffled shirts and boutonnieres matched the gowns worn by the bride's attendants. The groom's all-white attire was accented by a pink rose boutonniere.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Paetznick selected a blue print floor-length gown. The groom's mother were a gown featuring a print with a tan background. Their identical corsages were yellow roses and white carnations with yellow ribbon, corresponding with the peek-a-boo boutonnieres worn by their husbands.

Special guest at the ceremony was Ruth Anderson, grandmother of the groom.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception in the church parlors for about 150 guests. Centering the serving table was a four-tiered wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with pink roses. Topping the cake was a miniature bride and groom. At the base were two heart-shaped cakes, decorated with pink roses and inscribed with the names of the bridal couple.

Host and hostess at the reception were the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Rueben Stromgren. Mrs. Dean Wojciechowski, sister of the groom, and Mrs. Hermas Severts, aunt of the bride, cut and served the cake. Pouring coffee were Mrs. Cleo Chapman, cousin of the bride, and Dorothy Lane, aunt of the groom.

The guests were registered by Cathy Kaml, sister of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. David Smith, brother and sister-in-law of the groom, served the punch. Waitresses were Sandy and Tammy Severts, Paula Wojciechowski, Tina and Marie Burkel and Sandra Langass. Sunsan Smith was flower hostess and Rhonda Wojciechowski and Renay Smith were gift bearers.

Following a wedding trip to Yellowstone National park and the Black Hills of South Dakota, the couple is now at home in Thief River Falls. The bride is a graduate of Middle River high school and is employed at Northwestern hospital as a licensed practical nurse. The groom, a graduate of Badger high school, is employed by David Burkel, Greenbush, as a trucker. Photo, Hofstad Photo, Plummer

Officers Elected By Hodge Podge Homemakers

Campanula Club Meets at Pioneer Village School

Campanula garden club met at the Pioneer Village schoolhouse on September 12 with eight members present. Special guest was Mrs. Irving Swanson, a former member.

The meeting began with the club creed read in unison. Treasurer Olga Johnson gave the financial report and Bernice Knutson gave an account of the activities of the Good Cheer committee. The secretary's report wasn't available due to the absence of Violet Koglin.

Roll call featured phenology, traced since the August meeting. Signs of fall indicated were the ripening of garden produce and preparing foods for winter.

Correspondence was read from the 13th District President Lois Swanson, who announced that the fall workshop will be held at Roseau on September 29. A letter from the Horticultural office was read, and the reports on the courthouse plants were discussed.

Also discussed was obtaining new club members. It was noted that the state organization is urging each club recruit at least three new members.

The garden quiz was given by Geneva Overum.

A birthday card for Anna Magnuson was signed and the birthday song was sung for Ruth Holmes, who was in charge of serving the lunch. A plant exchange concluded the meeting.

Rural Women's Conference At Best Western

Battered women and sexual assault are two of the subjects to be discussed at the rural women's conference Saturday, October 6, beginning at 9:30 a.m. at Best Western motor inn in Thief River Falls.

The first session, beginning at 10 a.m., will be on battered women and led by Shirley Oberg, Northeastern Minnesota coalition for battered women, Duluth. At 11 a.m. sexual assault will be discussed by Jean Anderson, sexual assault coordinator for the rape and abuse crisis center in Fargo, N.D.

Following a noon lunch, for which everyone is on his own, decision making will be discussed by Susan Sands, home development specialist, St. Paul. At 3 p.m. displaced homemakers will be the topic led by Jolene Gitis, coordinator of the state displaced homemakers council of St. Paul.

Norma Hanson, founder and president of the Minnesota Women in Agriculture, Goodridge, will discuss Minnesota women in agriculture at 4 p.m.

A 5 p.m. social hour will precede the 6 p.m. banquet with keynote speaker Nina Rothschild speaking on the changing economic status of women. Rothschild is director of the council on the economic status of women in St. Paul.

Child care will be provided at no charge in the United Methodist church. Children must be registered by September 28 by writing or calling Gail Larson, route 2, Newfolden, MN 56738, telephone (218) 874-8915. Persons are asked to bring a bag lunch for each child for the noon meal, and to be responsible for their child's evening meal. Child care will be available for the evening session if requested.

The conference may be taken for undergraduate credit for $22.50. Attending the conference and completing an independent study assignment consisting of some additional outside reading and a paper or project will complete the necessary credit requirements.

The conference, which is open to any person interested in the concerns of rural women, will cost $2 which includes coffee breaks and conference materials. Cost for the banquet is $6.

The conference is sponsored by the women's resource center along with the University of Minnesota — Crookston (UMC) and the L. B. Hartz foundation, Thief River Falls.

For more information, or to register for credit, interested persons may contact the Office of Continuing Education and Community Services at UMC, telephone (218) 281-6510, extension 243.

The total number of pedestrian deaths during 1978 was 8,800. This represents a slight increase over the 1977 figure. Nearly 70 per cent of all pedestrian deaths occur in urban areas, while only about thirty-six per cent of all motor vehicle deaths occur in urban areas.

Aid Hurricane Victims With Cash Donation

Office of U.S. foreign disaster assistance states that individuals wishing to help Caribbean hurricane victims should make cash donations to their favorite voluntary agency operating in that area, not send food or other articles which will only hamper relief efforts, according to Roy Aune, director of the Minnesota foreign disaster relief council.

"Contributors are urged to earmark their donations 'For hurricane David disaster relief'," said Aune. "Pharmaceuticals from private citizens will not be accepted due to problems of quality control and standardization, and at this time voluntary agencies have sufficient supplies of food, clothing and blankets in stock."

EPS And WIC Programs Set For October

Early and periodic screening (EPS) clinics and registration for the women, infants and children (WIC) will be held throughout the area during the month of October, according to the four-county nursing service headquartered at Warren. In all but two locations the screening clinics and WIC registration will be held on the same dates.

EPS clinics provide vision and hearing check, height and weight determination, dental assessment and instruction in care of teeth, Denver developmental testing, hematocrit determination and urinalysis and physical assessment. Immunizations are available and appointments must be made in advance.

Certification of participants for the WIC food supplemental and nutritional educational program will take place for pregnant or lactating women, infants or children from birth to five years of age, any of whom have shown medical or nutritional risk factor.

Schedule at which both EPS and WIC programs will be involved are at Grygla, October 1, community center; Newfolden, October 2, Bethlehem Lutheran church; Hallock, October 3, Presbyterian church; Oklee, October 4, Zion Lutheran church; Karlstad, October 9, First Lutheran church; and Red Lake Falls, October 10, Red Lake Falls clinic.

Screening will be done October 15 in Thief River Falls at Redeemer Lutheran church and at Warren October 17 at the Evangelical Covenant church. Certification for WIC will be held at the Covenant church in Warren October 11 and Redeemer church in Thief River Falls October 12.

For further information on either program and to make appointments contact Four county nursing service, Marshall county courthouse, 208 Colvin av. E., Warren, MN 56762 or call 745-4004.

Two Promoted At First NW State Bank

Board of directors of First Northwestern state bank of Thief River Falls have promoted Vivian Carlson to assistant vice president and Jo Ann White to real estate officer and administrative assistant.

Mrs. Carlson has been with the bank for 17 years and has worked as bookkeeper, general ledger clerk, teller and head teller. In August of 1977 she became teller supervisor and in January of 1978 was appointed assistant cashier and head teller. Vivian and her husband Bob have two children and three grandchildren. They are members of Trinity Lutheran church.

Mrs. White has been with the bank since January of 1972. She started as a part-time receptionist, and became a full-time secretary in 1975. In August of 1975 she became a loan secretary and in June of 1978 she was promoted to administrative assistant. Originally from Des Moines, Iowa, she has three children and is a member of the United Methodist church and the chamber of commerce membership committee.

Peatlands Are Roseau History Society Topic

Roseau county historical society will host its 1979 annual meeting at the library-museum assembly room in Roseau, Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. Featured program will be "Patterned Peatlands: What Are They and Where Are They?", given by Paul Rundell, a leader in the peat studies, who will describe unique peatlands in northern Minnesota and their ecological value.

In addition, a report will be heard on the progress of the new natural history reference library to be added to the museum. Members and nonmembers are invited to participate and lunch will be served.

A child is never too young to have a vision problem. An estimated 472,000 children ages three through five (or one in 20) have vision problems.

Complaints On Medicare Are Most Common

Insurance division of the department of commerce receives many inquiries on the subject of medicare supplement insurance. Complaints about these policies account for approximately one-third of the health insurance complaints investigated by the Division each year.

Chief investigator Jerry Elliott believes many problems would never develop if the insurance-buying public were better informed. "In a lot of cases we investigate, the insurance company is doing exactly what the policy promises, but the insured has no real concept of what the policy says. He just thinks he's insured for everything medicare doesn't pay", said Elliott.

The division tries to provide information about medicare supplements by publications and press releases, providing speakers to senior citizen's groups when possible and through the circuit rider program.

There are many types of medicare supplement policies. The benefits they provide range from limited coverage to comprehensive plans qualified under the 1976 comprehensive health act. However, no policy covers everything Medicare doesn't pay. Charges excluded from Medicare because they are too high, or are for unnecessary services or custodial care are also excluded under all medicare supplement policies.

The most limited supplementary policies cover only the Part A Medicare (hospital) deductibles. Policies which cover a doctor's care only when the insured is hospitalized are also considered limited policies.

"A comprehensive medicare supplement policy should cover hospital charges and doctor's charges, both in and out of the hospital. Some comprehensive plans also cover drugs, which are not covered by medicare. However, such broad plans may have a co-insurance clause which requires the insured to pay something on each claim. The maximum benefits payable by these plans are high. They are more useful for long, serious illnesses than routine care.

An investigator from the Insurance Division's circuit rider program will be in Thief River Falls on Wednesday, July 11, at the employment services office from 1:30 to 4 p.m.

1979 Timothy Production At 8-Year High

Minnesota's 1979 production of timothy seed, an important forage crop, has been estimated at 14.4 million pounds, the highest since 1971 and increased to 78 per cent of nationa production, reports agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin.

This year's Minnesota timothy seed crop represents a 25 per cent increase over the 1978 harvest and it is the highest seed production since 1971. National timothy seed production this year was nine per cent greater than in 1978.

Currently firm market prices, in the 43 to 45 cents per pound range, indicate that Minnesota's 1979 timothy seed crop may be the most valuable on record, presently worth about $6.2 million. Last year's crop sold at an average of 42.5 cents a pound and grossed Minnesota farmers $4.9 million.

Timothy seed is in international demand for growing low protein forage feed required by farm livestock as well as by many species of wild animals featured in zoos and circuses.

Bike Or Hike Day Scheduled At Northland

Bennes Raised To A.F. Major

James Bennes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bennes of Sun City, Ariz., and long-time residents of Thief River Falls, has been promoted to the rank of major in the United States air force.

Major Bennes is a graduate of Lincoln high school with the class of 1958 and is a veteran of the Vietnam war where he received the distinguished flying cross as well as other military decorations. He is presently an instructor in navigation at Hurlburt field of Elgin air force base in Florida, where his family resides.

Home Start Training Held

Two local doctors and a dental hygienist were the speakers for an all day health training session for Home Start workers recently at the Best Western motel in Thief River Falls.

Dr. Peter Johnson gave a presentation on enuresis and Dr. Wm. Ramsey spoke on numerous topics related to good eye care. Both are serving on the home start health advisory board. Terri Jorgenson demonstrated and discussed good dental care and proper brushing techniques.

Norma Hanson On State Group

Mrs. Lynn (Norma) Hanson of Goodridge, founder and president of the Minnesota Women for Agriculture, has been appointed as a representative of that organization to the Minnesota agricultural advisory committee. The appointment was made earlier this month by Mark Seetin, Minnesota commissioner of agriculture.

Special Veterans Administration efforts during 1978 to alert Vietnam-era veterans to unused GI Bill education benefits were expanded to a nationwide campaign in 1979. The original awareness program, "Operation Boost," had focused on 11 states where GI Bill participation was under 50 per cent.

Girl Scouts Benefit From United Way

Margo Gustafson, representative of Pine to Prairie girl scout council, urges the public to participate in the United Way campaign this fall.

Pine to Prairie girl scout council is one of the agencies that receives money from the TRF United Way. Money is used to provide services to the 225 girls and 65 registered adults who make Girl scouting possible in Thief River Falls.

These services include: Council sponsored trainings for adults; services and advice of a professional field director and other council staff; council sponsored events and trips for girls, including Core staff day camp; printed materials are given to adults and provided for the association to use; and a resource and training library is maintained.

Also funded are council mailings that are sent to older girls and adults; council camp sites equipped and maintained, including Camp MOE outside of Thief River Falls; money provided to the local association to help continue programs for girls; and scholarships available to help families pay for special events.

Pine to Prairie council includes 34 counties, 20 in North Dakota and 14 in Minnesota with the main office in Grand Forks. There are over 70 communities in the council that offer scouting to girls. Pine to Prairie has about 4,500 girls and about 1,000 registered adults. A Girl scout council is a non-profit tax exempt organization that exists to provide and maintain Girl scouting within its jurisdiction.

10-Ton Routes, Gas Tax Boost Are Discussed

the other primary topic taken up at Wednesday's meeting. Bob Wolfe, district engineer for northwestern Minnesota, announced roads that would get temporary 10-ton designation when and if the grain strike comes to an end. They included: No. 11 from Roseau to Greenbush, No. 32 from Greenbush to Thief River Falls, No. 59 from Thief River Falls to Erskine, and No. 89 from Grygla to No. 2 by Bemidji. However since the meeting it has been determined that No. 89 to No. 2 would not meet the criteria for emergency 10-ton designation. To be designated in its place should the grain strike end are No's 89 and 219 to Goodridge and No. 1 to Thief River Falls.

Should the 80,000 pound system go into effect, truck drivers must obtain special permits to carry products on the emergency route with permits to be available at Crookston and Bemidji highway department offices.

Emergency numbers were also announced for truckers who feel they are being caused undue delay by highway patrol officers. If a driver has a complaint he may call 681-3741 locally, or 1-612-482-5901 in St. Paul. The state number will be answered around the clock.

Commissioner Braun is expected back in this area October 9 with the possibility for another meeting at that time.

Lulu Chester Dies Friday At Mentor

Mrs. Roy (Lulu) Chester, 79 of Greendale, Wis., died Friday at Mentor where she had been residing with her son, Roland and his wife, Virginia, since May of this year.

Funeral services for Mrs. Roy Chester were held Sunday at 7 p.m., at the Petterson Funeral chapel at Red Lake Falls with Rev. Harold Peterson and Rev. Charles Smith of the Faith Lutheran church, Mentor, officiating. Evelyn Neilson was the organist and Ethel Johnson, the soloist.

A second service will be held Tuesday at 10 a.m., at the Borgwardt Mortuary at Hales Corners, Wis. Burial will be beside her husband in Highland Memorial Park at New Berlin, Wis. Petterson Funeral home, Red Lake Falls, is in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Chester, the former Lulu E. Davis, was born Feb. 19, 1900 in Brooks to Mr. and Mrs. Jesse A. Davis. She attended school and grew to womanhood at Brooks where she was married to Roy Dan Chester on Dec. 11, 1919. The couple lived at Brooks until 1930, when they moved to Erskine. Five years later, they moved to Mentor and resided there for 25 years. In 1964, she and her husband moved to Wisconsin, where her husband died later that same year.

She was a member of the Royal Neighbors of America, the American Legion auxiliary of Red Lake Falls, the Faith Lutheran church, Mentor, and the Mount Hope Lutheran church, West Allis, Wis.

Surviving are two sons: Rolland Chester of Mentor and Orville of Milwaukee, Wis.; six daughters: Mrs. Orra Ronkowski of Milwaukee, Wis.; Mrs. Merle (Betty) Helmer, Hales Corners, Wis.; Mrs. Virgil (Florence) Waller, Mrs. Robert (Geraldine) Anderson and Mrs. George (Jean) Baughman, all of Seattle, Wash., and Mrs. Alvin (Lois) Benoit, Lewiston, Idaho; 29 grandchildren, 14 great-grandchildren; a brother, Howard Davis of Minneapolis and one sister, Mrs. Charles (Florence) Bies of St. Paul.

In addition to her husband and parents, she was preceded in death by a daughter, two sons, two sisters and one brother.

Mrs. Lilabelle Peterson Dies In Park Rapids

Mrs. Lilabelle Peterson, a resident of Woodcrest home in Walker and the mother of Mrs. LeRoy Sustad of Viking, died Thursday evening at St. Joseph's hospital in Park Rapids. Death was of a massive heart attack following corrective surgery for a circulation problem.

Jones Funeral home, Nevis, is in charge of arrangements. Burial will be in Akeley, where she formerly resided.

A complete obituary will be published in a later edition of the times.

Sft. Charles T. Stroup

Award Stroup Sapphire Star For Recruiting

High army officials recently awarded Thief River Falls army recruiter staff sergeant Charles T. Stroup the sapphire star to the gold recruiter badge.

Sergeant Stroup was recognized not only for the quantity, but also for the high quality individuals he enlisted into the Army during 1979. The sapphire star, one of the highest forms of recognition a recruiter can earn, was awarded to Stroup by Major General Mundle, commanding general of the entire army recruiting command.

Sgt. Stroup has been in the Army five and one half years and has been recruiting for two years. His office is located at 1008 2nd St. W. in Thief River Falls. He is responsible for recruiting in five counties in Northern Minnesota including Red Lake Falls, Pennington, Marshall, Roseau, and Kittson.

Beef Cattle Institute Set At Crookston

Beef cattlemen's institute is set for Thursday, October 4, in the south arena of the winter shows building at Crookston. Morris Davidson, county extension agent of Grand Forks county, will preside.

Registration begins at 1 p.m. and the commercial and educational booths will be ready at that time. Coffee will be served.

President Lauren Carlson of the National Cattlemen's association, working out of Denver, Colo., will speak on "Ideas from the National and International Scene". Homer Kenner of Roseau and Frank Preisler of Bejou, beef cattlemen, will tell their story to institute visitors and talk on "effective Pasture Management in Today's Beef Industry".

Neal Martin, extension agronomist, and Paul Hasbargen, economist, both of St. Paul, will also discuss pasture management. A beef picnic-style supper will be served promptly at 5:30 p.m. The program will conclude with the popular feeder cattle demonstration.

Afternoon and evening will wind up with coffee and booth visitation and everybody can be on their way home by 9 p.m., according to Dr. B.E. Youngquist, superintendent of the Northwest experiment station.

The institute is planned and sponsored by the Minnesota-North Dakota agricultural extension services, Northwest experiment station and the Central livestock association of Fargo.

Senators Urge Gov't. BWCA Loan Program

Federal government must take the lead in giving northern Minnesota an economic shot in the arm, according to Senators Dave Durenberger and Rudy Boschwitz.

The Minnesota senators want a $2 million government-insured loan program passed by a House of Representatives and Senate conference committee. The loans will be made available by the Farmers Home administration (FMHA) to small businesses in and near the boundary waters canoe area (BWCA).

Although both houses of Congress have approved an FmHA loan program, there is a difference between the House and the Senate versions. "Unless the House report is accepted the FmHA will not provide the loans, it will only guarantee their repayment," said the senators in a joint statement.

"Although local banks could make the loans under a government guaranteed program, they would be at higher interest rate than the government insured loans we are seeking. According to our program, the FmHA would be the lender at low interest rates."

A law passed last year restricts the use of the BWCA and places an economic hardship on small businesses especially resorts and outfitters, adapt and survive.

In letters to members of the conference committee Senators Durenberger and Boschwitz said, "Despite strong opposition to its enactment, the people of the area stand ready to live with the new economic realty... They desperately need the fulfillment of promises made by Congress in enacting (the BWCA Act).

"Congress has made a determination that restrictions on the established use of the BWCA are in the national interest. Congress must now keep the promises made in enacting those restrictions — that is absolutely essential to maintain the people's trust in government.

"Clearly, the action of the conference committee is of utmost importance to the people of the BWCA area of Minnesota."

Merle Lundeen Given District NFO Position

Merle Lundeen, presently serving as chairman of the Pennington county chapter of the National Farmers organization (NFO), was elected Seventh district vice president at the annual district convention held recently at Perham.

Bill Christenson of Ottertail county was reelected president by the delegates but was not in attendance and it was not known if he would accept reelection. If he should decline, Lundeen will become district president. Sue Harmoning of Red Lake county was reelected treasurer and Sharon Tate of Becker county was reelected secretary.

Former Seventh district president Warren Gast of Beltrami now serves as Minnesota president. Former state president Robert Arnt is now a national vice president under national president DeVon Woodland, successor to long-time president Oren Lee Staley.

Delegates from Pennington and Red Lake counties at the district convention and banquet hosted by the Ottertail county NFO were Mr. and Mrs. Merle Lundeen, Mrs. Edward Stucy, Mrs. Bennie Johnson, Mrs. Louis Carpenter, Jens Steen, Juel Chervestad, Calvin, Sue, Barb and Roger Harmoning and Karen Mathson.

State convention of the organization will be held September 29 at Little Falls and the national convention December 10-14 in Kansas City, Mo. All NFO members are encouraged to attend the conventions and visitors are welcome.

Mrs. Edith Dyrdal accompanied Mrs. Daryl Lewis when she drove to Chisago City Monday morning to visit at the home of son and brother, the David Dyrdals. Tuesday, together with Mrs. David Dyrdal and Eric, they visited at University Hospital with Paul and Iris Furuseth and heard the good news that Paul is due to be discharged in about a week, barring further complications. They plan to spend some time at the home of their son Peder, before attempting the return to Thief River Falls. Afterwards the Dyrdals and Mrs. Lewis visited at the James (Doreen Dyrdal) Jacobson home, where they enjoyed coffee. They also visited the grave sites of Edith Dyrdal's mother and brothers. Wednesday the foursome were accompanied by Mrs. Bob Wesphal and enjoyed afternoon coffee at the Jerry Dimmen home in Lino Lankes. They had also been forenoon coffee guests at the Earl Frasl home. That evening a family get-together was held at the Wesphal home, where cake and ice cream was served in honor of Ron's 15th birthday the following day. Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Dyrdal returned home Thursday, and that evening Scott Jelle and Tony and Jim Skogland of Thief River Falls were luncheon guests.

Mrs. Marion Hoglo accompanied Mrs. Marvin Olson of Rocksbury to Warren Thursday to visit at the Wallace Lamb home.

Mrs. Ella Johnson, Mrs. Leona Paulson and Arthur of Thief River Falls and Mrs. Mable Andreson of Warren left Wednesday to attend the wedding of a nephew and cousin, Robert Dimmen of Indianapolis and Nancy Marie Hutchins at the Nativity Catholic church in St. Paul Saturday. Ella and Mable were house guests at the Jerry Dimmen home at Lino Lakes and Leona and Arthur stayed at the Larry Dimmen home in Farmington. They all returned home Monday.

Foreign DWI Laws

Driving while under the influence of alcohol or drugs draws a fine of jail sentence in Minnesota, with driver license either suspended or revoked. What happens in other nations?

In Australia the names of such drivers are sent to the local newspapers and printed under the heading, "He's Drunk and in Jail".

In Malaya the drunk driver is jailed and, if married, his wife goes to jail, too.

In South Africa the drunk driver is given a 10-year prison sentence, a fine of $10,000 or both.

In Turkey the drunk driver is taken about 20 miles from town by police and forced to walk back, under escort.

San Salvador prevents repeat arrests. Drunk drivers there are executed by firing squads.

Dependable Interloper

Most people would agree with the following comments by publisher Arch Pease in a recent issue of the Anoka County Union:

"It is something that is almost rude, impudent, interruptive, brazen, has no boundaries and is necessary as all get out. What is it: Simply your telephone.

"It is the telephone that can interrupt a friendly or a business conversation or meeting, while a man seeking a personal interview has to wait. . . Yes, despite many things, the telephone takes precedence over may other things.

"A meeting is in progess. The phone bell rings. It has to be answered. Two businessmen are having a very serious talk and cannot be interrupted. . . that is except by the telephone.

"The tired business man is home, takes a bit of a rest on the couch, but when the phone bell rings he makes a mad dash to the source for fear he'll miss a call.

"When the telephone was invented, no one thought that it would have so much influence on our way of life as it has, but they were wrong. The telephone is impudent, brazen, distrubing, upsetting, rude, interruptive and absolutely necessary.

"If one didn't have a telephone, he woul soon find out. It is like a thumb. If the thumb is injured and you can't use it, then you find out how much you really need it. The same can be said for the telephone. Sometimes I hate it, but when you need it in an emergency, you can depend on it."

Following editorial is from the Wall Street Journal:

President Carter ordered the release from prison of four Puerto Rican terrorists, jailed for shooting five Congressmen and attempting to assassinate President Truman, out of "humane considerations." The freed Puerto Ricans don't thing so. The clemency was granted "for political expediency," one of them said. "President Carter cannot speak of human rights," another announced, "when hundreds of thousands of political prisoners are in this country."

The group, unremorseful, has already addressed a rally of the National Committee to Free Puerto Rican Prisoners of War and the National Committee of Free Political Prisoners of War and the National Committee of Free Political Prisoners of Puerto Rico, and will give a press conference today at the United Nations. This is about what you can expect, these days, from meetings between liberal humanitarianism and revolutionary resolve.

The Nap Syndrome

Parents everywhere should get a few chuckles out of this column by Doreen Rosevold in the Grafton Record:

If you have children of your own or know someone who does, you have heard the excuse, "They didn't have their nap." It is the most common response from people responsible for the actions of young children.

The exact form of the statement varies a little. It sometimes is added on to by saying, "My child didn't have a long enough nap," or "My child napped too hard and long." Whatever the statement, a child's personality traits all hinge on a nap.

Naps are lifesavers. How something so innocent as a sweaty-headed child falling asleep with their eyes rolled up and their lips slightly parted to allow drool to drip on the pillow can be construed as a make or break activity in a young person's life, I will never know. But portrayed as a villan, it often is.

Take for instance, the ambitious young man of preschool age who attacked the mannikin in the department store display recently. His mother quickly pried his fingers out of the unblinking eyes of the mannikin and restored the red wig to its proper place. Then as she tried to replace the broken left arm into a cracked and unyielding socket, she turned to a growing audience and explained, "He didn't have his nap today."

Then there was the perspiring father in the grocery store with a struggling girl in tow. She kicked and screamed and sat on a loaf of bread. She pushed the grocery cart into a display of pork and beans and then kicked the carry-out boy to whom the father explained, "She didn't have a long enough nap today."

And there have been episodes of a child throwing her food at visitors and saying the word "no" one hundred times consecutively, to which the excuse "She had too long of a nap" is given.

I am as guilty as anyone for using naps as the unseen demon for unfavorable behavior. It worries me a little though, that I will always rely on naps to bail my children out of unfavorable situations. I can picture it now. My daughters will be in grade school and involved in a brawl on the playground to which I will respond to the elementary principal when notified of the situation, "If you had put them down for a nap this wouldn't have happened."

When my daughters are in junior high school and their faces are a mass of acne and their hair never looks clean, I'll say, "You know, a nap would do wonders for a body with chemical inbalances."

When high school arrives and my daughters ignore curfews and want to date boys that I wouldn't trust to clean my parakeet's cage, I'll make the excuse to myself that they are behaving like that because "they haven't had time for a nap lately."

However, when my children enter college and come home for the weekend speaking openly about soceity's sexual freesom, about the innocence of smoking marijuana, and about the glories of being independent, I am not going to make excuses for their ideas by discussing naps. I am just going to take naps myself.

Shortage Maneuvered

Following editorial is from the Granite Falls Tribune:

Big business has long been the favorite whipping boy of the Democrats, particularly in Minnesota where the DFL has gotten by for years by blaming all of the state's ills on industry. You get the right audience, like Vice President Mondale had on Monday when he addressed the state convention of the AFL-CIO, and you can draw a standing ovation.

The vice president has confused us on more than one occasion when he has mouthed words he knows to be untrue and fed them to his listeners as gospel. Fritz's projecting himself as the clean cut Minnesota lawmaker is a false image. Mondale is a product of Minnesota's labor-oriented Democrat party and he learned his role well under the tutelage of the old favorite son of Minnesota politics, Hubert Humphrey.

Mondale was talking to the union delegates ~~Monday morning~~ about the energy crisis and the need to pass the windfall profits tax on the oil price increases. He warned the labor representives how hard the battle would be and how the administration was going to have to overcome the political strength of the oil company's lobbies. It sounded good and it sounded sincere. It would have been believable if an article explaining the gasoline shortage and the energy crisis hasn't been published in Friday night's Minneapolis Star explaining exactly how the latest energy shortage came about and how the government department of energy had contrived the nation into the gasoline shortage.

We believe there is a shortage and we see many tough years ahead for the American public. We are confused by the conflicting government programs. On one hand they urge us to conserve while at the same time millions of gallons of precious oil are wasted on bussing, political trips, flyovers, or simply lost through mismanagement. When the government starts behaving as if there is an oil shortage the "Joe Blows" will start conserving.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Two teachers were discussing one of the problems. "Not only is he the worst behaved child in the whole school," one lamented, "but he has perfect attendance!"

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I have a secret that Uncle Sam doesn't want out, believe me. Inflation is the result of Uncle Sam. Everyone knows that, but what you probably don't know is that Uncle Sam also stands to make the most money off inflation. It's a sure winner.

As your income rises, so does your income tax. The more you make the more Uncle Sam takes. It doesn't matter if that larger amount of money will buy less. All he's concerned with is his fair share.

Now you're probably thinking Uncle Sam is broke. To some degree you're right, he is. But he also has control of your money. He can print as much of it as he wants to, thereby reducing the value of your money. It's almost inflationary.

I truly wish I had a check book like Uncle Sam's. You never have to balance it, just keep writing and spending more money.

What can you do? Well, you've already done something. You have read this letter, and you know where the problem is. Tell your neighbor about it; he may not read the paper. When he finds out, he'll probably tell his neighbor, and before you know it, the whole country will know.

Sorry Uncle Sam, but I had to let it out. The next time you offer us some free money, I think there may be a few more people in my neighborhood thinking, "whose money are you really giving away."

Like I say, "There's no such thing as a free lunch."

Sincerely,
-s-Maurice Brule

New Pesticide Approved For Grain Crops

A special local need registration permit has been issued by the Minnesota department of agriculture to authorize the use of a specific additional pesticide for the control of plant diseases that have an adverse economic impact upon this state's small grain production.

Permit issued subject to public and local government comment is for the use of Vitavax-25 DB (EPA No 400-115) manufactured by Uniroyal chemical, 74 Amity Road, Bethany, Cnnecticut 06525.

In addition to the uses prescribed in the product label, the permit issued by the state regulatory agency authorizes the use of the pesticide on wheat, oats and barley to control smut, bunt and various seedling diseases that reduce the production and quality of these small grains.

Minnesota laws and rules regulating the sale and use of pesticides provide for special local need registrations and for public comment when a use other than those stipulated on the product label is considered justified in the public interest and there is no potential for unreasonable environmental impact.

October 25 is the dealine for comment in petition form signed by 500 or more citizens of legal voting age and who list their legal Minnesota addresses. Comment also is invited from other state, local, and federal government agencies.

These written comments should be addressed to the commissioner of agriculture, 90 West Plato Boulevard, St. Paul, Minnesota 55107.

New Tax Laws Favor Wetland Owners In State

Owners of Minnesota wetlands were given strong financial incentives by the last legislature to refrain from draining or filling them, the Department of Natural Resources noted.

The tax reduction is to be accomplished by taking three-fourths of one per cent of the market value of an acre of tillable land and multiplying it times the number of acres of wetlands in the land owner's possession.

This sum is then deducted from the landowner's tax obligation.

In order to receive the wetland credit, the landowner must agree not to drain the wetlands during the year for which he receives payment. The local tax assessor is directed to certify that each landowner receiving the credit has so agreed.

The new tax break for wetland owners does not result in any loss of revenue to the county, since the legislature appropriated funds to be distributed to the counties to compensate for the reduction in tax receipts.

Additional information on the new tax laws can be obtained from county auditors.

DNR commissioner Joseph Alexander strongly commended the 1979 Minnesota Legislature for passage of this significant law.

"It recognizes the benefits to all of our citizens from wetlands for flood control, ground water recharge, nutrient entrapment and wildlife habitat purposes," he said.

Joe Dee Enters Freshman Year In U.S. Air Force

Joseph A. Dee, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Dee of 122 St. Paul av. N., Thief River Falls, has entered his freshman year at the U.S. air force academy.

Cadet Dee is one of more than 1,400 freshmen who were officially accepted into the cadet wing after completing six weeks of intensive field training, physical conditioning and survival instruction.

Located eight miles north of Colorado Springs, and occupying 18,000 acres of mesas and valleys at the foot of the Rocky Mountains, the academy specializes in both military affairs and scientific technology.

Cadet Dee begins four years of academic study and military training that will lead to a bachelor of science degree and a commission as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force.

He is a 1979 graduate of Lincoln High School, Thief River Falls.

Anniversary At Fergus Falls Rehab Center

Drug dependency rehabilitation center at the Fergus Falls state hospital will observe its 10th anniversary in special programs scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, September 29 and 30. The center, serving a 17-county area in west central and northwestern Minnesota, has provided residential chemical dependency treatment services for over 6,600 persons during the first 10 years that the program has been in operation.

September 29 anniversary program will begin at 10 a.m. at the Fergus Falls armory, 421 Cecil Avenue, Fergus Falls. Program speakers include chemical dependency consultant Ed Dougherty. Other program highlights include a noon luncheon at the Fergus Falls Elks club with trainee graduation ceremony for the center's chemical dependency counselor training program and a 9 p.m. dance.

September 30 program features a 9 a.m. breakfast in Fergus Falls with center chaplain Rev. Ralph Pedersen as the speaker.

Registration information for this anniversary program may be obtained by writing to the DDRC 10th Anniversary Committee, Box 157, Fergus Falls, Minnesota 56537; or by calling 218-739-2233, extension 235 or 445.

Banks Provide $1.9 Billion In Farm Loans

Minnesota banks provided $1.9 billion in loans to farmers as of Jan. 1, 1979, according to James T. Gowan, Minnesota bankers association (MBA) president.

Citing results of the American bankers association's (ABA) annual farm credit study, Gowan said Minnesota banks provided $1.6 billion in non-real estate loans — an 18 per cent increase over 1978, and $282 million in farm real estate loans, an 11 per cent increase over the previous year.

Production credit associations provided $622 million and the Farmers home administration $226 million in non-real estate farm loans as of Jan. 1, 1979, Gowan said.

In real estate farm loans, federal land banks provided $1.1 billion; life insurance companies $337 million and the Farmers home administration $107 million.

Nationally, banks held $28.3 billion in non-real estate farm loans, a 10 per cent increase over last year and $8.6 billion in real estate loans, a 10 per cent increase. Total farm debt held by all major lenders as of Jan. 1, 1979 was approximately $132 billion.

Meeting with the Canadians on Energy

The Canadian-U.S. Interparliamentary Group Meeting in Calgary, Alberta, was an important and exciting opportunity for representatives from both countries to discuss energy concerns and future energy policies.

I particularly enjoyed having the opportunity to discuss my proposals to hold a North American Energy Summit to explore the possibilities of developing a coordinated energy policy to address the needs of Canada, Mexico and the United States. The Canadians were nervous about this concept because they believed under such a policy North American energy resources would be pooled and divided between the three countries with the United States receiving the majority of the energy supply. I stated that this is not my intention and explained further that there are many problems on which the U.S., Canada and Mexico can assist each other, particularly in transportation of energy resources and the development of new technologies. They agree cooperation in specific areas is in the interest of both the U.S. and Canada.

One of the joint U.S. — Canadian energy projects that received a great deal of discussion was the Alaska Highway Gas Pipeline. This is a $10 to $15 billion pipeline from Prudhoe Bay, Alaska, down through Canada, and is intended to bring one trillion cubic feet of natural gas into the United States each year. Both governments have given the pipeline approval, but problems regarding U.S. regulatory procedures, financing through the private sector and pre-building plans are holding up progress. The current projection for completion is the fall of 1984.

Additional Canadian gas supplies may be available to the U.S. but the Canadians are currently debating how much and at what price. Their main concern is attaining self-sufficiency in energy, and they expressed their opinion that once Canadian needs are met, exports to this country should continue to take place. Canada currently provides just under five per cent of U.S. gas supplies with 10 U.S. companies importing about .9 trillion cubic feet per year. The Canadian National Energy Board has determined two trillion cubic feet to be in excess of Canada's current requirements and possibly available to export over the short-term. Other estimates place the surplus as high as 9 trillion cubic feet. Once a current study is completed, it will be up to the Canadian Cabinet to determine what quanitities are to be available for export.

The price of Canadian gas was also questioned by one American delegate as being inequitable since the export price to the U.S. is $2.80 per million BTU while the internal price is set at only $2.20. He stated gas sales to the U.S. were subsidizing oil imports in eastern Canada, but Canadian Delegates responded that it would be unreasonable to expect Canada to import oil at world prices and sell gas to the U.S. at less than world prices. The price of gas exports to the U.S. is based on the equivalent of oil import prices.

Mutual cooperation between the United States and Canada is a must if both countries are to solve current energy problems. We are currently dependent on Canada for energy products and pipeline rights-of-way and the difficulties I have outlined emphasize the need for a North American Energy Summit meeting.

Next Week: The Transportation of Alaskan Oil.

Hog Inventory In State Tops For 20 Years

Minnesota hog producers reported 4.6 million animals on hand on September 1, the highest September 1 inventory since 1959. Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service announced that inventories are 26 per cent above a year earlier but only two per cent above last quarter.

The breeding inventory also shows a 26 per cent increase over last year but was four per cent under the June 1, 1979 level. Market hogs accounted for 83½ per cent of the total.

Producers in Minnesota intend to farrow 290,000 sows and during both September-November and December 1979-February 1980. This would be increases of 18 and 16 per cent, respectively, above the levels for the same quarters last year. Intentions in the 14 quarterly states are up 13 and 10 per cent for the next two quarters.

June-August pig crop is estimated at 2.1 million head, 32 per cent above last year but equal to last quarter. This is the largest pig crop for this quarter since records began in 1962. The large increase was attributed to a 35 per cent boost in farrowings.

Producers reported 290,000 sows farrowed with an average of 7.30 pigs per litter. The 14-state pig crop totaled 22.3 million head, 16 per cent higher than 1978. A total of 3.1 million sows farrowed in these states, up 17 per cent from last year. Pigs per litter averaged 7.16 compared to 7.22 a year ago.

Public is invited. There will be a free will offering, and coffee will be served after the meeting in the church basement.

Tree Town USA Awards Offered In Minnesota

Minnesota communities that do a good job of managing their tree resources could qualify for a national award presented by the National Arbor Day foundation and state and federal forestry agencies.

Barbara Stephen, urban and community forester, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, forestry division, said cities with an active comprehensive program of tree planting, tree care and removal of dead or diseased trees can qualify for award consideration.

A comprehensive management program could be of particular benefit to Minnesota communities, she said, since most feature tree-lined avenues and parks.

She said every municipality in Minnesota of any size should have a community forestry program in order to maintain the beauty of its residential areas and the attractiveness of its parks, playgrounds and other public places.

Only Minnesota city to receive the "Tree City USA" award to date is Fergus Falls.

Additional information on the program can be obtained by contacting Barbara Stephan, DNR Division of Forestry, Centennial Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155.

Woodland To Address State NFO Meeting

DeVon Woodland, president of national farmers organization, will address the Minnesota state NFO convention at the Little Falls community high school September 29.

State NFO President Warren Gast of Beltrami will call the convention to order at 12:30 p.m. Afternoon's business will include the nomination of a director to serve on the national board and an alternate director.

Speakers will give reports on NFO's programs in dairy, beef, hogs, grain and specialties.

Several political figures are expected to address the convention during the afternoon. Visitors are welcome to attend both the afternoon business session and Woodland's speech after the 6 p.m. banquet.

Public Water Users Meeting In Crookston

Public information meeting regarding proposed rules for public water users is scheduled for University of Minnesota ag research center, Crookston, October 2 at 7 p.m.

Meeting is one of seven sessions throughout the state scheduled by the Minnesota department of natural resources to provide information and receive public comments on the proposed rules.

Rules were drafted in response to legislative directives contained in Minnesota statutes, chapter 105. Proposed rules are intended to provide standards and criteria pertaining to the regulation, conservation and allocation of the state's waters. They also offer guidelines for developing water management plans for water and related land resources.

Municipalities, industries and agricultural irrigators are examples of water users required to obtain permits covered by the proposed rules. Domestic users and others are exempted from obtaining permits, but are affected by the sections of the rules dealing with water use conflicts and water management plans.

Appoint Berg Director Of USDA Division

A former Minnesotan has been appointed by secretary of agriculture Bob Bergland to head the USDA's soil conservation service.

Norman A. Berg, a graduate of the University of Minnesota and a native of Burlington, Iowa, took over as SCS administrator September 12. He has been associate administrator of the agency since 1969.

Berg succeeds R. M. Davis, who has been appointed by Bergland as a special assistant for international science and education.

In his newly-created position, Davis will concentrate on natural resource management and conservation activities and the use of science and education to improve life in developing countries. Davis, who will work under the supervision of Dale Hathaway, under secretary of agriculture for international affairs and commodity programs, has headed the soil conservation service (SCS) since 1975.

Davis is a native of Ambrose, N.D., and a graduate of North Dakota state university. He began his SCS career as a soil conservationist in North Dakota in 1952. In 1968, he became state conservationist in charge of SCS operations in Pennsylvania. He was named the agency's northeastern field representative in 1972 and became assistant administrator of SCS in 1974. Davis has served extensively as a consultant in soil and water resources and agriculture to the governments of Iran, Afghanistan, Pakistan, Saudi Arabia and Tunisia.

Berg grew up in Pine City and taught agriculture at Floodwood. A career employee of SCS since 1943, he served in Idaho and South Dakota before moving to Washington, D.C. in 1960 as an assistant to the SCS administrator. From 1965 to 1968, he was deputy administrator for field services.

He is chairman of the U.S. section, Great Lakes land use reference group of the International joint commission; a member of the secretary's coordinating committee for the soil and water resources conservation act; and a charter member and fellow of the soil conservation society of America.

Law Requires Alertness To School Buses

Now that school is in session, the Minnesota safety council reminds motorists to be alert for school buses and the children they transport.

Minnesota school buses use an eight-light warning system to let motorists know when buses are preparing to or have stopped to load or unload school children. Flashing amber lights are used when the bus is preparing to stop at a school bus loading point. Flashing red lights are used with the stop arm extended when the vehicle is stopped to pick up or drop off youngsters.

State law requires that all drivers stop not less than 20 feet from a school bus which is stopped with red lights flashing and the stop arm extended on a highway with no median barrier — regardless of the direction you are travelling. Drivers must stop regardless of the direction of travel on a four-lane road with a double yellow center line or when travelling in the same direction as the bus on a highway with a median barrier, safety isle or safety zone.

School buses mean that children are near, according to the safety council. Watch for youngsters darting out from behind or in front of stopped buses. Be alert to buses preparing to slow down and stop. Use extra caution when driving through school zones now that children are back at their books.

Unemployment Payments Up 10 Per Cent In '79

Unemployment insurance payments in Minnesota were up 10 per cent from January through June of this year compared to the same period in 1978, assistant commissioner Barbara Berthalter, unemployment insurance division, department of economic security, announced recently.

Unemployment benefits totaling $99,957,191 were paid the first six months of 1979, compared to $90,810,135 over the same period last year.

Increase in payments is due, in part, to the rise in both the average weekly benefit amount because of wage inflation, and the maximum weekly benefit amount authorized by Minnesota law. Average weekly benefit payment for the first six months of 1979 was $104.45, compared to $95.71 for the same period last year.

Maximum payment in 1978 was $133 per week, compared to $122 in 1977. Present maximum unemployment payment, $150, became effective July 1. Initial claims filed under the regular program totaled 93,634, an increase of 3.8 per cent from 90,207 claims filed last year.

DISCOVER the Minnesota Zoo through the windows of the long-awaited monorail train called Sky Trail. The train began operating on September 20 and will continue year around. The 20-minute ride will give a treetop view of Minnesota's marshes, ponds and hillsides through the Northern Trail that contains five animal exhibits, including the exotic Siberian tigers. A narrator is on board each train to relate enriching stories of each animal and its habitat along the 1.8 kilometer track. The monorail system was funded through Minnesota Zoo Ride, Inc., a non-profit organization that helped raise the 8.7 million for the entire operation. Prices for the ride are $1 for adults 17 and over and 50 cents for ages six through 16 and senior citizens. Children under six are admitted free.

Alliance To Offer Help For Abused Women

situations and why do they stay?

"I married an alcoholic when I was 18," says Kolden. "I really didn't know that much about alcoholism. I just thought he had a drinking problem and that he loved me enough to change. He never hit me while we were going together but the night we got married he gave me a black eye at our wedding reception."

"A few weeks after we were married I realized that he was a violent person and he got very strong when he'd drink. He'd get crazy—pick up heavy objects and just throw them. I got to be so scared when he didn't come home from work that I'd get sick to my stomach knowing that when he came home he was going to beat me up again."

"I'd leave sometimes but he was always sorry and loving in between episodes and we got along really super. He'd say he wouldn't do it any more, but of course it would happen again. I stayed with him about three and a half years."

Even after Kathleen left her first husband he continued to harrass her, breaking into her apartment and beating her. "I lived in a big city," she says, "and I didn't have any money. I had to go through legal aid for a divorce and I had to wait six months before they could get to my case. In between that time he came and threatened me with a shotgun. When he held a shotgun on me that's when I decided I was going to move away." Kolden had relatives in Middle River so moved to Minnesota.

Perhaps the reason she took three and a half years living with a batterer was because she didn't know any other kind of life. "I grew up in a really violent home," she recalls. "I saw a lot of things like my mother being beaten by my father and my mother stabbing my father. I grew up thinking that everybody was violent that it was just the way people were.

"It wasn't until I moved to Minnesota that I found that there were people that weren't violent. I met my husband (Kendall Kolden) and he came from a family that was never violent — they didn't even swear at each other. That made me realize just what kind of background I had had. . . It was like a whole different world for me."

Another member of the battered women's support group talks about her 15-year relationship with an alcoholic husband. "He gave me a black eye and chipped my front tooth before we were married." When asked why she married him even after she had been the victim of his uncontrolled temper the woman says simply, "I loved him and I really wanted to get away from home. I was 18 at the time and not half grown-up enough to get married but my home life wasn't that great."

During her years of marriage to the batterer the woman admits becoming completely controlled and completely dependent on him. "He didn't let me have any friends," she says. "He didn't even like me to go out to get groceries."

Although the women says, "I still have a hard time breaking my dependency on him," she is filing for a divorce. "People wonder how we take it but it is really hard to get out of it." For 15 years this woman has been a housewife. She has no money. She has no job. But she doesn't qualify for welfare because she is still legally married to the man and he owns some land they aren't living on. "Society makes you dependent on them," she says.

But despite the obstacles, why is this woman finally making the move toward a new life? It is because she finally has some support. At last she feels like she has a choice. And if she has a choice she doesn't want her kids to have to grow up in the unhealthy atmosphere of a battered home.

"My son doesn't know that we don't have to live this crazy way because that's all he has ever known. He thinks everybody acts like that. He doesn't see anything wrong. And I see him acting like his dad and it scares the hell out of me."

"When you are being abused," Kolden says, "you feel kind of worthless and hopeless. You feel like you are nothing. You feel weak because you don't like it and you can't get out of it." "And they make you feel so guilty. You feel like you are doing something wrong that's why you are being beaten. So you ask yourself what am I doing wrong?"

Dealing with these feelings of guilt is one of the purposes of the support group. Women are shown they are not to blame and they realize they are not the only ones with the problem. It gives them a chance to come together with other women they can relate to and discuss the options available to them.

Other programs that have been sponsored through the Ripley alliance include training sessions for battered women advocates, a seminar for law enforcement officials, in-service training at Northwestern hospital, and the formation of a network of safe-homes in region one.

A safe-home is a anonymous, temporary shelter for a battered woman and her children where the host will act as an advocate for the battered woman. One individual whose family has opened their residence as a safe home on two occassions says, "People are living in situations that I know they would not live in if they felt they had a place to go."

Purpose of the safe-home is to give the woman somewhere to go where she will be secure, where her life will not be threatened and where she doesn't have to live in constant fear. Getting her out of the battered home gives her a chance to look at the options in her life and decide what she would like to do. Host in the safe-home will be available to help with any arrangements she needs to make, taking her to social services, to see a lawyer to get medical attention or whatever she needs. The advocate will also be on hand to just give the woman support to talk with her about her problems.

While the safe-home concept has been working, Rev. Lloyd Heroff who is involved with the alliance, comments, "with the safe homes we get just the most desperate people because people in any less threatening situations than a life and death thing would really rather tough it out than trouble some family by moving in with them. If we had a home that didn't involve imposing on individual families, we would have a lot more people inclined to use the facilities."

For this reason the alliance sought funding for a battered woman's shelter. "We saw the possibility of offering a permanent shelter as most regions have," said Chase, so we wrote the grant proposal, defended it and were awarded $150,000, a two-year grant to fund and staff a permanent shelter."

The alliance board is presently proposing to locate the region one shelter in Thief River Falls. Plans have been made to purchase a house at 201 S. Crocker and hearing on a special use permit is scheduled for October 1.

Staff at the proposed battered women's shelter would include co-directors, an office manager, an adult advocate, a child advocate, CETA positions including advocate and child advocate trainees, as well as a large volunteer force.

The shelter would have 24-hour staff on duty and would have a fenced in play area for children. It would house not more than 12 persons including children at any one time. House rules will be drawn up to prohibit alcoholic beverages on the premises and to set up curfews for residents. No husbands or boyfriends will be allowed on the premises and telephones will be answered by staff.

"If people are really as concerned as they say they are about other people, I don't understand the opposition to the shelter," says Pat Happersett. "As far as I'm concerned any opposition just comes from ignorance. Battering could happen to anyone. It might be happening to anyone. Who knows what goes on in people's homes — because you try to hide it."

Perhaps the best defense for the shelter is this statement from Happersett, "If some of the women I knew hadn't gotten to Women's Advocate, they would be dead."

We are sorry to report that Jorgen Bjerklie underwent surgery at the Northwestern hospital on Monday. They amputated his right leg above the knee. We all wish Jorgen a complete recovery.

There was some excitement at our neighbors on Sunday morning. A big bear had been at the Ernest Mostrom home and climbed up and scratched at two doors and five windows. There were big paw marks and mud on the windows and frames and he must have been big because he had reached to the top of the front door. He also had been at the Gladys Hanson trailer home and scratched on four windows and at the Willie Good home on three windows. No one saw him as it must have been at midnight but the tracks were plain to see in the mud around the buildings on Sunday morning.

LHS, NCC Have Strong Defenses

Those were two fine defensive performances put on over the weekend by the Lincoln high school and Northland community college football teams. Both earned shutouts as the Prowlers outclassed Staples 37-0 Friday night and the Northmen struggled past Hibbing 7-0 in the rain Saturday afternoon.

Staples finished with a minus yardage figure for the night on offense and failed to fet a single first down. It was obviously a combination of an outstanding defensive effort by the Prowlers and a poor offensive showing by the Cardinals.

Through a 2-2 start, Thief River Falls has built a reputation as a strong defensive team. The Prowlers have given up only 496 yards in four games, easily the best defensive figure among the five Northwest Athletic Conference members. Unbeaten defending NWAC champion Bemidji has given up 776 yards. The Prowlers have surrendered only 348 yards on the ground, better than the 628 yards given up by NWAC leader Crookston.

And the Thief River Falls offense, after struggling at the start of the year in losses to Grand Forks Red River 30-8 and Detroit Lakes 13-6, has looked good inscoring 63 points in back-to-back wins over Crosby-Ironton 26-14 and Staples.

But Thief River Falls' true strength test, as always, will come in the last five weeks of the 1979 season when the Prowlers tackle Moorhead, Bemidji, Fergus Falls, East Grand Forks and Crookston.

That grind starts Friday when Moorhead visits Thief River Falls. The Spuds, like the Prowlers, are 2-2. But the lost a tough one at Sioux Falls O'Gorman Thursday, 14-13. Jim Laske scored both Moorhead touchdown in that game while rushing for 171 yards on 23 carries. The Spuds hurt themselves with eight penalties, one of which wipped out a touchdown.

The Prowlers will have to beat three of those upcoming opponents to earn their first winning season since 1974. But the Spuds, Lumberjacks, Otters, Green Wave and Pirates will all be favorites when they meet the Prowlers.

Northland appears to have an easier time of it in the next three weeks. The Northmen, despite their 1-2 record, will be expected to come up with wins over Fergus Falls, Itasca and Brainerd. Then comes a trip to Bismarck before the Northmen return to the MJCAA against Golden Valley Lutheran and Crookston. The Spartans, who will host Northland Saturday, are winless and absorbed a 43-7 drubbing at the hands of Itasca over the weekend.

The Northland defense was brillant Saturday but the offense for the third straight week was ineffective. They don't use tie-breaking procedures in the MJCAA. However, as Saturday's scoreless defensive struggle was winding down, it was suggested that the tie could be broken by making a slight change in the Minnesota State High School League overtimes rules that gives the offense the ball at the opponent's ten-yard line. They have four plays to score before turning the ball over to the opposition. For the Northland-Hibbing game it was said the tie could be broken by using that MSHSL system, but the winner, instead of the team scoring, would be the team that lost the least amount of yardage during their four snaps.

"We needed this one badly," said Northland coach Irv Smith after the game. "We didn't expect to be 1-2 at this point. We thought we'd be 3-0."

Smith coach from the press box Saturday. That it rained throughout the game had nothing to do with his move upstairs for the first time. "We decided to try it last week," he said with a smile. "You can see so much better up here. The worst place in the world to watch a football game is from the sidelines."

Miscellaneous

+Itasca, an October 6 Northland community college homecoming opponent, started the 1979 MJCAA football season in frustrating fashion, reports Tim Ostroot of the Grand Rapids Review. In their first two games the Vikings produced 440 yards worth of offense, including 249 yards by sophomore runningback Wayne Bohn; gave up only 204 yards; surrendered just 14 points; sacked the quarterback eight times; and recovered four fumbles. Yet lost to Vermilion 7-0 and fell to Hibbing 7-6. "It's tough to lose games like this," said Itasca coach Dave Hrouda. "In every aspect of the game we have soundly thrashed both clubs, yet they win the ball game."

TRF Offense, Defense Handles Staples 37-0

Goals were met and milestones were passed Friday as Thief River Falls overwhelmed Staples 37-0 in high school football. The Prowlers returned from their longest road trip of the year with a 2-2 record. The Cardinals are winless in four starts.

"We had goals we wanted to meet," explained Thief River Falls coach Gene Jurgens who knew his club was a definite favorite going into the ball game. "We wanted that shutout on defense; we wanted to hold them to 75 yards; we wanted to gain 300 yards."

No problem. Thief River Falls' defense, which ranks as the best in the Northwest Athletic Conference statistics, destroyed Staples' offense by holding the Cardinals without a first down and a minus two yards total offense for the night. And on offense the Prowlers overcame 10 penalties to produce 390 yards.

"We executed well," said Jurgens, "They did the job. It's nice to come this far, have everybody play and have everybody play well."

The shutout was the Prowlers' first since the 1977 season when a 6-0 victory over East Grand Forks was the only bright spot in a 1-8 season. The minus figure on Staples' offense was the first time the Prowlers did that to an opponent since Dilworth came out of a 38-0 season opener in 1971 with a minus 27 yards. But at least the Locomotives got a first down that night.

And the 37 points represents the highest Thief River Falls output since 1974 when the Prowlers beat East Grand Forks 47-12.

Thief River Falls' second possession Friday produced the game's first points when Bill Jury went off left tackle on a counter play, bounced off two would-be tacklers near the line of scrimmage and sprinted 54 yards for a touchdown with 4:54 left in the first quarter. Dave Odegaard completed the two-play mini-drive by taking a pitch around the left side for the two-point conversion.

Staples had the ball for just two plays before Thief River Falls' Mark Williamson recovered a fumbled pitch at the Cardinals 37. Six plays later it was 16-0 as Odegaard found a hole off left tackle to score from the four. Quarterback Jeff Ulrich, who kept the drive alive by completing a fourth-and-five screen pass to Odegaard that went for 24 yards, ran the option into the end zone for the two-point conversion and a 16-0 lead with 22 seconds remaining in the first quarter.

Scoring didn't resume until Thief River Falls' second half-opening possession when the Prowlers put together a 10-play, 57-yard drive following Brian Culkins' 25-yard kickoff return to the Thief River Falls 43.

Ulrich, who scrambled for 13 yards after trying to pass on second down at the Staples 21, kept the ball on the option to the left side for an eight-yard touchdown run with 7:43 showing on the clock. Ulrich used the same play to the right side for the two-point conversion and a 24-0 cushion.

It became 30-0 when Odegaard slipped through the middle from the three-yard line with exactly one minute to go in the third quarter. The Prowler s scored four plays after Culkins intercepted a Paul Mayhew pass at the Staples'19 on his first play of the game as a defensive back.

Thief River Falls reserves marched smartly downfield on an 11-play, 80-yard touchdown drive to close the scoring in the fourth quarter; Tom Ose, behind the blocks of Rick Gobell and Wade Hruby, rattled off successive gains of 10, 10 and 11 yards on the drive that culminated in quarterback Scott Wiebolt's 13-yard dash around the left side. Brian Ranum made the conversion kick for a 37-0 final.

Although he was obviously pleased with the result, Jurgens was still disturbed by the Prowlers' continued penchant for penalties. The 10 infractions Friday raised their season total to 35 in four games. "We have to eliminate those penalties," he stressed.

Another negative aspect of the game for the Prowlers was the loss of Jury who suffered a shoulder injury early in the third quarter. The Thief River Falls captain still enjoyed his second straight 100-yard rushing performance with 111 yards on just nine carries.

Thief River Falls will close out its 1979 nonconference schedule Friday when the Prowlers host always-strong Moorhead at 7:30 p.m. "We'll find out Friday if we've got it going or not," mused Jurgens.

Staples will begin Mid-State Conference play Friday at Crosby-Ironton, a team the Prowlers beat 26-14 last week.

SURROUNDED BY FOUR Thief River Falls defenders, Staples runningback Dennis Bacon was held to a short gain in the first quarter of Friday's high school football game played at Staples. Converging on Bacon were Bill Jury (44), Brian Ranum (62), Jim Nyland (81) and Jeff Ulrich (11). The Prowlers won the game 37-0 to raise their season record to 2-2.

Bishop, Haugen Lead Huskies TO First Win, 20-16 Over Hornets

Goodridge runningbacks Carroll Bishop and Rory Haugen both cracked the 100-yard barrier Friday as the Huskies ended a three-game season-opening losing streak with a 20-16 North Tri County Conference football win at Clearbrook.

Bishop carried the ball 24 times for 147 yards and Haugen carried 18 times for an even 100 yards for the Huskies who rebounded from a 16-8 halftime deficit.

"I was pleased with out overall play," mentioned first-year Goodridge coach Rick Nelson who collected his first victory. "We took some penalities we shouldn't have, but overall I was pleased."

It was an omninous start for the Huskies who watched Jeff Johnson of Clearbrook return the game-opening kickoff 70 yards for a tourchdown.

A 20-yard touchdown run by Bishop tied the game, but Mark Bagaason's 28-yard run on a bootleg provided Clearbrook with the halftime edge.

Neil Race's three-yard quarterback sneak pulled Goodridge within 16-14 in the third quarter and the Huskies came up with a goal line stand and a length-of-the-field touchdown march in the fourth quarter to win it.

Clearbrook was set up with a first-and-goal from the Goodridge seven early in the final quarter but failed to reach the end zone and Goodridge stayed exclusively on the ground to go ahead on Haugen's 10-yard touchdown run.

Bishop and Haugen "both did a good job on offense and defense," praised Nelson. In addition to the secondary work of those two, Nelson also cited the defensive play of linebackers Terry Drangsveit and Tim Anderson and lineman Mark Grabowska.

Goodridge finished with 284 yards worth of offense, 260 of it coming on the ground and 247 of that supplied by Bishop and Haugen.

The Huskies' one-game winning streak will be in jeopardy this week when the Huskies' homecoming features Gonvick Friday.

Plummer 0

Richard Bronken, in his first starting role as a quarterback, threw four first half touchdown passes Friday to lead Oklee past Plummer 46-0 in a North Tri County Conference game played at Oklee.

Bronken, a junior who had been alternating the quarterback role with senior Steve Opdahl, responded to his first start by hitting all five of his pass attempts for 146 yards.

"He was hotter than a pistol," was the way Oklee coach Dale Svaren described Bronken's performance. "I've been alternating at quarterback because nobody has really taken charge. I think maybe he (Bronken) just did."

Bronken touchdown passes covered 20 yards to Brad Gunderson, 33 and 72 yards to John Dulka and 18 yards to Kevin Vettleson as the Bobcats rolled to a 38-0 halftime lead.

"It went well for us," said Svaren who substituted freely in the second half.

"They're a very good football team," pointed out Plummer coach Gary Brantl of Oklee. "They're really big. We just couldn't handle them. We couldn't move the ball. Defensively we didn't do too bad against the run, but they picked us apart in the secondary. Their quarterback really threw the ball well."

Oklee rushed for 174 yards, with Mike Kirkpatrick getting 73 of those on 13 first half carries.

Both coaches cited defensive players for strong games. Brantl pointed to linebackers Jon Swanson and Alan Mattison while Svaren praised linebackers Pat Paquin and Darrel Sandeen, along with Vettleson, a tackle. Paquin was the Bobcats' defensive leader with 11 tackles. Vettleson recovered two fumbles.

Oklee, 3-1, will be at Erksine Friday. Plummer will be looking for win number one when the Cardinals host Clearbrook that night in their homecoming game.

Marshall Co. Central 22

Marshall County Central rebounded from two consecutive shutout losses to administer a blanking of its own Friday in a 22-0 Top of the State Conference victory at Hallock.

"We cut our turnovers down by more than half," commented Marshall County Central coach Sam Gebhart. "That's what won it for us."

And while the Nordics reduced their turnovers to a single fumble and two interceptions, they capitalized on a pair of Hallock fumbles for a 14-0 halftime lead.

A first quarter Hallock fumble was recovered by the Nordics as the Bears' two-yard line and Gordy Collin scored from the one.

In the second quarter, a Hallock fumble near midfield led to a two-yard Kerry Hodne touchdown run. A 23-yard Hodne pass to Chuck Sorenson was the big gainer in the drive.

Runningback Jeff Johnson, who rushed for 150 yards on 26 carried, ran off runs of 19, 17 and 12 yards on a late-game drive that saw him score from the one with three seconds remaining.

Marshall County Central, a winner for the first time, finished with 276 yards, including 228 yards on the ground, while holding Hallock to just 91 yards total offense.

"Our defense played well," noted Gebhart. "It makes a difference when you hold on to the football."

Brian Sakdsem, the Nordics' top defensive point-getter, picked off two Hallock passes. Scott Peterson and Steve Boe were also defensive standouts, said Gebhart.

Marshall County Central will host Greenbush Friday in a nine-man game at Newfolden.

Middle River 56
Erskine 6

Middle River offense, after being shut down 22-6 in a season-opening loss to North Tri County Conference power Gonvick, continued its recent tear in a 56-6 rout of Erskine Friday that lifted the Skippers' output to 146 points in a three-game winning streak that has put them among the league leaders.

"Our offense has looked good the last few weeks," confirmed Middle River coach Eldon Sparby who watched his Skippers roll up 371 yards against the visiting Comets.

Middle River didn't waste time Friday. First drive of the game ended with Steve Bengston's seven-yard touchdown run. Moments later a fumbled Erskine punt snap set Middle River up at the Comets' four-yard line and Monty Peterson scored from the one for a quick 12-0 lead.

Scott McKeever scored three touchdowns for the winners, catching passes of 35 and 30 yards from DelRay Ness and breaking loose for a 70-yard run in the fourth quarter.

Middle River hosts Mentor Friday afternoon.

Spuds Handle LHS Volleyball Team 18-4, 18-6

Moorhead dispatched Thief River Falls 18-4, 18-6 Thursday in a high school volleyball match played at Moorhead.

"Moorhead really looked good," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Sharon Stauss. "It was a total lack of offense on our part; no spikes and we weren't setting up our people."

Lincoln high school junior varsity was also a 2-0 loser, 18-6, 18-14.

Wildlife Refuge Established On East Park WMA

Part of the East Park wildlife management area (Nelson Swamp) has been established as a wildlife refuge.

The refuge will be primarily for waterfowl and closes the north part of the PL 566 impoundment to all hunting and allows no trespassing.

The refuge will be seasonal and will be in effect from about Sept. 15 through Nov. 1 each year. This year the refuge will be in effect from now until Nov. 1, 1979 at which time it will again be open to all allowed activities.

The refuge was established by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources in an effort to improve the overall waterfowl hunting in the area. Excessive hunting pressure the first part of the season "burns out" the birds. It is hoped that by giving the birds an undistrubed area, this can be prevented.

The refuge will be posted with state game refuge, no trespassing signs this year which will be removed when the area is again opened for hunting Nov. 1.

Prowlers Lose To Rams Twice On Saturday

Host Roseau handed Thief River Falls a pair of setbacks Saturday in a four-team invitational high school volleyball tournament that also featured Crookston and East Grand Forks.

The Rams beat the Prowlers in their first encounter 18-16, 13-18, 18-6.

Thief River Falls bounced back to defeat Crookston 18-6, 18-12 to earn another shot at Roseau, but the Rams won again, 18-16, 19-17.

"We were better offensively, but we're still missing that little extra that will win it for us," noted Thief River Falls coach Sharon Stauss. "Our serving was improved."

Thief River Falls, 5-5 overall, will be at Crookston Tuesday and will play Marshall County Central Thursday in the Lincoln gym. Both matches start at 7:30 p.m.

First Shutout By Northmen . . .

Credit Northland Defense For 7-0 Win Over Hibbing

It was a win that should be credited exclusively to the defense Saturday at Northland community college collected its first shutout in history, a 7-0 rain-soaked Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) Northern Division football victory over Hibbing on the Thief River Falls athletic field.

"Our defense has played well all year," acknowledged Northland coach Irv Smith. "They won the game for us today."

Indeed they did. Three times in the second half the Northmen defenders came up with game-saving and finally game-winning plays to lift Northland from the winless ranks and drop Hibbing from the list of unbeatens.

First of those memorable moments came when Northland stopped Hibbing on a fourth-and-three play from the Northland 21 — the deepest pentration by either team — midway through the third quarter. But the Cardinals, who splashed 41 yards in 10 plays after recovering a Northland fumble, might have actually stopped themselves by their unusual play selection that had little-used Nick Damjanovich trying for that first down on an inside reverse when a straight-ahead, quick opener seemed much more appropriate. The play lost three yards.

Northland, showing its only offensive life of the afternoon, turned around and crept 55 yards in 13 running plays to reach the Hibbing 17 when on fourth-and-four, Luis Delahoz was wide to the right on a 34-yard field goal try.

Two plays then presented Hibbing with a real honest-to-goodness scoring opportunity. A 16-yard scamper by scatback T.D. Thompson was turned into a 31-yard gain when an official viewed a seemingly harmless bump near the sidelines as a late hit and tacked on a 15-yard penalty that put the ball at the 50. Two snaps later quarterback Don Palmer put a long-high floating pass into the air that settled into the arms of K.A. Young at 16. A 10-yard gain on a pitch-out to the right side by Thompson put the Cardinals in business with a first down at the Northland five.

That's when the game's only real drama was supplied by a remarkable defensive stand by the Northmen who stopped Thompson four straight times. The 5-10, 170-pounder from Spring Valley, N.Y. reached the Northland two on first down by going wide right. A try off right tackle got nothing on second down. The same play to the left side put hibbing at the one. Thompson tried the left side again on fourth down and met a stone wall with 10:53 left.

That was the Northland defense at its very best, but it wasn't the last time they came through. Northland didn't move the ball after the goal line stand, Duane Kjono had to punt from his own end zone. A low snap made him rush the kick and he got off only a 17-yarder to the Northland 21.

Northland's excellence on defense and Hibbing's ineptitude on offense shown on the next series as linebacker Albert Padron sacked Palmer on first down; nose guard Danny Canela penetrated and tripped up Thompson for a four-yard loss on second down; and defensive back Jim McCue intercepted Palmer at the Northland 20 and returned it to the 30 on third down.

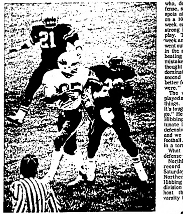
Yet another Northland defensive play finally led to some points as defensive tackle Jeff Reese fell on a Palmer pitch-out that bounced off Thompson's chest at the Hibbing 26. Northland's Mike Cowart, who finished with 127 yards on a busy 27-carry day, promptly scored as he turned a dive play to the outside and used his speed to get around the corner and dart 26 yards to the left corner of the end zone. Jeff Gobell of Thief River Falls was perfect on the placement kick for a 7-0 lead with 5:51 remaining.

"Obviously we're pleased with our defense," said Smith who, despite the lack of offense, still found some bright spots after a dismal showing on a 10-0 loss to Vermilion a week earlier. "We got some strong interior offensive line play. They caught hell all week and at halftime, but they went out and beat them up bad in the second half. We were beating ourselves with idiotic mistakes in the first half. But I thought we came out and dominated the game in the second half. We were a lot better football team than they were."

The weather, said Smith, played a big part in the flow of things. "In weather like this it's tough to make your option go." He said the rain fovored Hibbing. "They were fortunate it rained. I saw their defensive secondary at Itasca and we planned to throw the football. But what can you do in a torrential downpour?"

What you do is let the defense win the game for you.

Northland will take its 1-2 record to Fergus Falls Saturday for a 1:30 p.m. Northern Division game. Hibbing will remain 2-1 in the division play as the Cardinals host the Superior junior varsity this week.



STEPPING IN FRONT of Hibbing receiver Gene Giles, Northland defensive back Paul Wilcox came up with pass interception at the Northland 22-yard line near the end of the first half of Saturday's community college football game played in Thief River Falls. Also covering Giles on the play was Luis Delahoz (21). The Northmen shut out the 7-0.

Bemidji Girls Win Tennis Triangular

Bemidji girls went through ten matches without a loss Thursday to win a triangular tennis meet played in Thief River Falls. The Lumberjills finished with a perfect 10 points, followed by Thief River Falls with three and Roseau two.

In dual meet terms, Bemidji would have earned a pair of 5-0 wins over the Prowlers and Rams. But Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson said, "It wasn't a dominant 5-0. We were close in second the third singles and second doubles."

Another triangular is planned today (Monday) as the Prowlers host Moorhead and East Grand Forks at 2 p.m. Thief River Falls will be at Mahnomen Tuesday for a 3 p.m. dual meet.

Team scores — Bemidji 10, TRF 3, Roseau 2.

OPTION OFFENSE used by Northland community college is shown on this play against Hibbing Saturday as quarterback Lloyd Miller (5) pitched the ball to runningback Mike Borgen (48) when Hibbing defender Chuck Malo closed in. The play was good for a six-yard gain. Northland tackle Brian Hourigan (76) blocked Hibbing's Dale Wright on the other side. Northland coach Irv Smith praised the play of Borgen in the 7-0 win by the Northmen. Borgen picked up key yards on several occasions in his first backfield assignment.

Pirates 26-7 Winners Over Otters In NWAC

Crookston earned a 26-7 win over Fergus Falls Friday in the 1979 Northwest Athletic Conference football opener, while at the same time the NWAC was completing another nonconference sweep over Mid-State Conference opposition as East Grand Forks beat Detroit Lakes 27-16, Bemidji knocked off Park Rapids 26-6 and Thief River Falls blanked Stamples 37-0.

Bemidji and Fergus Falls will tangle in an NWAC game at Bemidji Friday, with Crookston traveling to Cloquet, East Grand Forks visits Grafton and Thief River Falls hosts Moorhead.

Crookston—Fergus Falls

Crookston capitalized on Fergus Falls mistakes to dominate play in the second half en route to a 26-7 victory. The Pirates held the ball for over 18 minutes in the second half compared to only a 5:36 time of possession for the host Otters.

Fergus Falls' Dan Kowalski capped an 11-play, 69-yard first quarter drive with a one-yard dive to start the scoring.

Early in the second quarter, a Crookston pass rush forced a fumble and Rick Schmitz of the Pirates scooped up the loose ball and galloped into the end zone from the Fergus Falls 21-yard line.

A Jerry Persson interception gave the Pirates the ball deep in Fergus Falls territory in the second quarter. A 21-yard pass to Mike Amundson carried the ball to the one and Steve Johnson went into the end zone on the second play of the drive for a halftime lead.

The Pirates, who held a 242-122 edge in offensive yards, added a pair of fourth quarter touchdowns on runs of nine yards by Johnson and one yard by Brent Weiss who led all rushers with 87 yards on 15 carries.

Bemidji — Park Rapids

Nelson Rotto and Dale Leonard combined for 259 yards rushing as Bemidji ran its record to 4-0 with a 26-6 win over Park Rapids.

The Lumberjacks were plagued by mistakes throughout the night, but still carried the play as quarterback John Herath passed 13 yards to Craig Erhart for the first touchdown of the game and scored himself on a two-yard run in the second quarter.

Rotto, who rushed for 132 yards, scored on a 38-yard pass interception return, and Leonard rushed for 127 yards while scoring his eighth touchdown of the year, a 12-yard run.

EGF—Detroit Lakes

Dave Swanberg scored on runs of 42 and 16 yards and on an 89-yard kickoff return to lead East Grand Forks to a 27-16 victory over Detroit Lakes.

Both teams moved the ball well as the Lakers finished with a 269-261 advantage in the yardage department. John Roche rushed for 162 yards on 27 carries for the Green Wave, scoring a fourth East Grand Forks touchdown. Swanberg had 78 yards on 11 carried.

Staples Sweeps Detroit Lakes Races Thursday

Staples won all three races Thursday in the Detroit Lakes invitational cross country meet.

The Cardinals took the varsity race with 73 points, followed by Breckenridge 79, East Grand Forks 89, Detroit Lakes 98, Frazee 157, Thief River Falls 167, Crookston 170, Wadena 171, Fergus Falls 181 and Park Rapids 237.

Bruce Johnson was the top Thief River Falls finisher with a sixth place 16:02 over the three-mile course. That bettered his previous best three-mile effort by some 30 seconds and earned the Prowler sophomore a trophy.

Staples was a winner in the junior varsity race with 31 points, followed by East Grand Forks 69, Detroit Lakes 82, Breckenridge 98, Thief River Falls 127 and Crookston 158, with Park Rapids, Wadena, Fergus Falls and Frazee fielding incomplete teams.

Steve Hvidsten led the Thief River Falls junior varsity runners, with a 17:30 three-mile effort that placed him among the ribbon winners in seventh place.

Completing the sweep, Staples claimed the junior high school title with 45 points, followed by Detroit Lakes 57, Crookston 115 and Thief River Falls 128. The others were incomplete teams.

Chuck Lowell and Kevin Kezar were Thief River Falls ribbon winners in the 1½ mile junior high race where Lowell placed third in 8:30 and Kezar placed 14th in 8:51.

Thief River Falls will take both its boys and girls teams to Bagley for 4:30 p.m. races Tuesday.

Deer Licenses Available Now In Minnesota

Deer licenses for the upcoming season are now available from county auditors and most license agents, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources announced.

Officials at the DNR's license center said all the licenses have been sent out to the auditors, who in turn distribute them to the license agents.

Most sporting goods stores, as well as other retail establishments, are license agents in Minnesota.

Archery hunting season for deer starts Sept. 29 and the firearms season begins in some zones on Nov. 3.

The price of a deer license for a Minnesota resident is $10 plus a 75 cent issuing fee which is retained by the license seller.

Between 1972 and 1977 the number of wood burning stoves in the United States increased from 250,000 to 2,000,000.

Swimmers Lose To North 52-31

Fargo North swimmers won eight of 11 events Saturday in a 52-31 dual meet victory over Thief River Falls.

"Those five lane pools do it to us every time," said Thief River Falls coach John Hustad who isn't able to utilize the Prowlers' depth in the smaller pools. "They just put their fastest kids in there and we can't match them."

Thief River Falls opened with a win in the 200-yard medley relay where Andrea Lia, Franki Kuyath, Joan Glauque and Betsy Hallstrom swan a 2:07.0.

Hallstrom was also a winner in the 50-yard freestyle with a 27.5.

Only other Thief River Falls winner was Brenda Lund whose 233.65 point performance in the diving competition was termed "brilliant" by Hustad.

Thief River Falls will face Grand Forks Red River and Grand Forks Central Thursday in a 4 p.m. meet at Red River. Thief River Falls Prowler relays will be staged Saturday beginning at 2 p.m. in the Franklin middle school pool.

Homecoming At Northland Set For October 6

Northland community college will host its alumni Saturday, October 6, at the annual college homecoming. An expanded program is being planned for this year and a large alumni attendance is hoped for.

The event will begin at 9 a.m. with the NCC open golf tournament at the Thief River country club. At 11:45 a.m. at the college there will be an open house and catered lunch followed at 12:45 p.m. with an escorted motorcade of students, alumni, and the football team from the campus to Prowler field.

At 1:30 p.m. the Northmen will host Itasca community college of Grand Rapids, in football with a social hour at Lon's following at 5:30 p.m. Lon's will also be the scene of the alumni banquet, at 6:45 p.m., and the homecoming celebration will conclude with a student-alumni dance at 9 p.m. at the Thief River country club.

A charge of $3.00 for the luncheon and $7.50 for the banquet, per person are the only expenses. All other events are free. Alumni and other interested persons are asked to contact Dr. Alex Easton, president of the college, at 681-2181 for reservations as soon as possible.

The alumni association board of directors who planned the event include chairman Scott Solheim of Thief River Falls, Jan Lundbohm and Gary Heaton both of Thief River Falls, Charles Erickson, Greenbush, and Faith Rud, Warren.

Knutson Leads NCC To Volleyball Win

Arlene Knutson, a sophomore from Newfolden, served 13 straight first game points Saturday and finished the afternoon with 23 service points as the Northland community college volleyball team completed a busy season-opening homestand with a 3-1 victory over Rainy River, 15-1, 15-12, 12-15, 15-10.

The Northwomen coached by Deb Jacobson, began play Wednesday by hosting a quadrangular meet featuring the four Northwest Division members. Fergus Falls won all three outings that day, followed by Brainerd with a 2-1 record, Crookston 1-2 and Northland 0-3.

Fergus Falls beat Northland 15-9, 15-7 in the opener, with Brainerd stopping Northland 15-10, 15-2 and Crookston downing the Northwomen 15-11, 15-4.

The Spartans went on to beat Crookston 15-2, 15-12 and defeat Brainerd 15-8, 9-15, 15-12. Brainerd outlasted Crookston 15-13, 13-15, 15-8.

Mesabi visited Northland Friday night and came out a winner 15-4, 12-15, 15-10, 15-8.

"We've improved every game," pointed out Jacobson. "They're a very good bunch defensively, probably the best I've had. But we might have serving problems," she warns. But Knutson, with four aces Saturday, didn't have many problems getting the ball over the net.

Rest of the Northland roster includes sophomores Laurie Hedlund (TRF), Marilyn Anderson (Fosston), Karen Sparby (Grygla), Karen Barron (Baudette), Gene Stukel (Warroad), Bernadette Paradis (RLF) and Deb Sturgis (Millport, Ala.), along with freshmen Shelly Shern (Viking), Dorothy Peake (Stephen), Jacki Nelson (Hallock) and Pauly Anderson (Karlstad).

Northland's only competition this week will be at an invitational tournament Saturday at North Hennepin in the Twin Cities area.

Duck Stamp Costs $7.50 This Season

Hunters and conservationists who have been purchasing the 1979-80 migratory bird hunting and conservation stamp have noticed a difference in the stamp over previous years — a $7.50 purchase price, a $2.50 increase over the previous issue.

In 1978, the Congress approved legislation mandating the Secretary of the Interior to charge $7.50 for the stamp in any year in which migratory bird conservation funds for the previous year had been fully obligated.

This year's price hike is intended, to offset spiraling land purchase costs which must be met in order to acquire vital habitat for migratory waterfowl. The price increase took effect July 1, 1979.

The stamp, popularly called the "Duck Stamp" is required of everyone 16 years of age of older who hunts, ducks, geese, swans or brant. The stamp sales create a continuing source of revenue for federal acquisition of waterfowl habitat.

The duck stamp was created by Congress in 1934 when it passed the migratory bird hunting stamp act. Its original purchase price was $1. Congress raised the price to $2 in 1949, $3 in 1959 and $5 in 1972.

Since 1934, more than 75 million duck stamps have been sold, providing over $210 million in revenue used to purchase more than 2.3 million acres of habitat. Each year, more than 2.4 million hunters, conservationists and a growing number of stamp collectors buy the popular stamp.

Rising cost of land, particularly prime waterfowl territory, prompted the rise in price to $7.50. The increase is expected to yield approximately $5 million in additional revenue which is used by the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to conduct this vital program.

Spotted strategically along the flight paths of migratory birds, the refuges and waterfowl production areas the duck stamp buys give sanctuary to great numbers of ducks and geese that pass through, winter, or breed there. Over 300,000 acres of wetlands are estimated to be lost each year to development, however, and acquisition with duck stamp revenue is one way to insure that some of this habitat is preserved.

In addition to the valuable work the duck stamp performs for wildlife conservation, the process by which each year's design is chosen is also unique. The annual competition from among hundreds of wildlife artists across the country constitutes the only art contest regularly sponsored by the Federal Government. These colorful stamps constitute the longest running, annually issued series of stamps in revenue or postage stamp history.

Schroeder 22-0 Winner Over LHS Freshmen

Grand Forks Schroeder broke open a scoreless game with three fourth quarter touchdowns Thursday to beat Thief River Falls 22-0 in a freshman high school football game played here.

A poor punt snap led to the first Schroeder score and the visitors finished things with a final play touchdown pass.

Thief River Falls, 0-2, was scheduled to play a 4:30 p.m. game at Bemidji today (Monday).

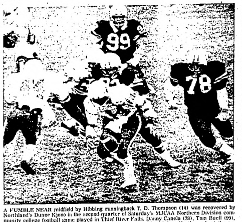
Welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Don Jackson and son, who recently moved into the farm home of Mrs. Berton Johnson!

STAPLES DEFENSIVE BACK Lon Dumpprope came up to stop Thief River Falls halfback Bill Jury for a one yard loss Friday in the first quarter of the nonconference high school football game played at Staples. Jon Miller of the Cardinals watched the action. Jury rushed for 111 yards on just nine carries before suffering a shoulder injury early in the third quarter of Thief River Falls' 37-0 victory.



A FUMBLE NEAR midfield by Hibbing runningback T. D. Thompson (14) was recovered by Northland's Duane Kjono in the second quarter of Saturday's MJCAA Northern Division community college football game played in Thief River Falls. Danny Canela (78), Tom Buell (99), Albert Padron (32) of the Northmen closed in Thompson. The winless Northmen beat the undefeated Cardinals 7-0 in a rain-soaked ball game.

WRAPPED UP BY a Staples defender after a short gain during Friday's football game played at Staples was Thief River Falls halfback Dave Odegaard. For the second straight game Odegaard scored two touchdowns for the Prowlers who belted the Cardinals 37-0.

I-500 Race Plans TRF Stop In 1980

Officials with the Saint Paul Winter Carnival International 500 snowmobile race announced recently that the oldest and most prestigous race in snowmobiling will continue its annual run from Winnipeg, Canada to Saint Paul.

George Rettner of Saint Paul, newly elected director of the January 1980 race, said the decision to run was made only after a long and careful study.

"The results of our study convinced us that the I-500 is an important tradition of the Saint Paul Winter Carnival, is an important proving grounds for new snowmobile equipment and has become such a prestigous sports event that it deserves to be run if at all possible," Rettner declared.

"It became obvious, however, that we were faced with sharp increases in coast that threatened the future of the race unless major outside sponsors could be found," Rettner added.

"We are pleased to announce that Yamaha Corporation and Hamm's-Olympia Brewing Company have recognized the importance of the race and stepped forward not only to make the race possible, but to make it bigger and better than ever," announced Jan Jansen, Saint Paul Winter Carnival race vice president.

Yamaha, one of the largest international manufacturers of snowmobiles, stated that it was supporting the race in view of the value of the 'I-500', its international flavor, and because Yamaha feels the race belongs as a premiere attraction of the Saint Paul Winter Carnival. Through Yamaha's financial support, Race officials anticipate increased driver participation and a richer driver's purse.

"For these reasons we are proud to provide our financial support," said Kurt Degener, snowmobile product manager for Yamaha Corporation. Yamaha will provide major financing toward the race operation.

Hamm's-Olympia will provide support involving driver bibs, route marking signs, machine numbers and driver award incentives. Mike Higgenbotham, marketing vice president, of Hamm's-Olympia said, "Hamm's was so impressed with the magnitude of the race from its initial participation in 1979, that we are happy to expand on our participation in 1980."

Rettner announced that several 1980 race changes and improvements will be made. Most notable is the addition of a sport class of drivers to the existing international pro class.

According to Rettner, the pro class is intended for the racing circuit professional who wants to complete for the big purse. The sport class is intended for those recreational snowmobilers who want the prestige of competing in the 'I-500', but not against seasoned veterans.

Entry fees for the pro class drivers will remain the same at $400 per driver. Sport class entry fees will be $200 per driver.

Last year the I-500 paid a total purse of $27,000 with champion Paul Mateka of Welcome taking home $7,326. This year's purse is expected to be larger, depending on the number of driver entries in each class. Sport class drivers will race for a smaller purse and trophies.

Race route will follow recent years' direction, with daily finishes at Thief River Falls, Bemidji and Alexandria. Chambers of Commerce in each city are directing the daily finish and next day's start. The Saint Paul area finish will be on White Bear Lake, just north of Saint Paul near Highway 61.

Saint Paul Winter Carnival Association will be mailing entry applications to recent year competitors. Others interested in obtaining an application can call or write the Saint Paul Winter Carnival Association at 98 E. 7th Street, Bremer Building, Satin Paul, Minnesota 55101 (612) 222-4416.

FWS Airplane Wreck Found After 21 Years

A 21-year mystery was solved recently by a party of hikers who chanced on the wreckage of a small plane which disappeared August 21, 1958, in the remote Alaska wilderness. The plane has been piloted by Clarence Rhode, then regional director of the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Alaska.

Wreckage of the twin-engine Grumman Goose, carying Rhode, his son Jack and FWS agent Stanley Fredericksen was first sighted August 26 in a mountain pass in the isolated Brooks mountain range, 50 miles northwest of Artic Village.

The amphibious aircraft had been the object of one of the greatest air-sea search and rescue efforts ever mounted in Alaksa. The Air Force, Bureau of Land Management, Fish and Wildlife Service and private and commercial aircraft all joined in the futile attempt to locate the plane. The Air Force searched for nearly a month, and FWS aircraft continued in vain for another 2½ months. Alaska had not yet become a state, so the massive effort became the last great air search in territorial history, covering 147,000 square miles.

The plane was reported overdue on a round-trip mission from Porcupine Lake to Fairbanks. Piloted by the elder Rhode, then 45, the aircraft was to fly over an area now encompassed by the Arctic national wildlife refuge. Rhode and Fredericksen, 34, then game management agent for Mount McKinley national park, has planned to pick up other officials and fly them over the spectacular area. The plane was last seen flying overhead in the Arctic Lake area shortly after noon on August 21.

Last chapter in the tragic saga was written on August 26 when a hiking party called the Federal Aviation Administration to report the discovery of an old wreckage in a steep, craggy area almost 6,000 feet in elevation. The plane's number, they said, was still readable on the burned fuselage. Its log book found undamaged.

A recovery team, initally hampered by snow and other poor weather conditions, succeeded in reaching the crash site August 31. The remains of the three bodies were flown to the coroner's office in Fairbanks for positive identification and return to next-of-kin. Accompanying the FAA team was one of Rhode's two surviving children, Jim, an economist employed by the Alaska Legislature.

Rhode, who was named regional director of the Fish and Wildlife service in 1948, received the Department of the Interior's distinguished service award in 1952. Fredericksen, who had come to Alaska in 1953, received the Department of the Interior's certificate of honor for commendable service posthumously.

In 1960, the Clarence Rhode national wildlife refuge was established by the late Secretary of the Interior Fred Season, in tribute to the well-known Alaskan. Rhode had traveled the Yukon river by rowboat as a youth, and had served in World War II as an Alaska bush pilot.

Rhode's wife Gazil, who died in 1972, and the two surviving children, Jim and Sally, buried two empty coffins at Juneau after the search was suspended on December 1, 1958.

DNR Reports On Waterfowl Fund Projects

Department of Natural Resources has released details on the spending of the second year's appropriation of state waterfowl stamp funds.

The $3 stamp was first required of waterfowl hunters in 1977. The legislature appropriated $400,000 to the department for each of the first two years based upon the estimated stamp sales.

Funds derived from sales of the stamp are dedicated for development, restoration and maintenance of waterfowl habitat.

Major projects being constructed include nine wetland impoundments totalling 880 acres with the largest being a 400 acre pool on the Little Elk wildlife management area in Morrison county. Other wetland projects will lie within the Jewitt WMA in Aitkin county; Clare Johnson WMA and Prairie Dell WMA in Lincoln county; Riverside WMA and Plantation WMA in Lac Qui Parle county; Bull Moose WMA in Cass county; Logue Lake WMA in Rice county; and Ida WMA in Norman county. The Logue Lake WMA project was a result of cooperative work with Rice county.

Two cost sharing projects were also initiated: One was a cooperative project with Blue Earth county on Eagle Lake and the other a joint project with a watershed district in the Ida WMA in Norman county.

Other projects include building of several water control structures, purchase of vegetation cutter, planting nesting cover and other related waterfowl projects.

All of these wetland projects are designed to provide quality wetland for duck, geese, furbearers and many non-game species.

They will all be open to public hunting and trapping, according to Roger Holmes, DNR wildlife chief.

Record Fish Are Confirmed

Four new state record fish have been certified by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources since new rules for qualification were announced in August. Those who catch record fish now receive a certificate from the DNR verifying their claim.

Department's fisheries section has sent letters to the following anglers informing them that their catches have been entered in the record books:

Frank Shoop, St. Paul — 1-pound, 13-ounce rock bass, caught in Lake Le Homme Dieu, Douglas county on June 23;

Eddy Kampa, Hastings — 3-pound, 12-ounce American eel, caught in the Mississippi river near Hastings on June 11;

Jeffrey Allen Van Thomme, Faribault — 16-pound, 11-ounce longnose gar, caught in Kelly-Dudley lake, Price county on July 14;

Donald Woods, St. Paul — 1-pound, 6-ounce pink salmon, caught in Lake Superior near Grand Marais on Sept. 6. Woods is assistant chief of the DNR fisheries section.

Van Thomme was told by fisheries personnel that the present world record for long nose gar is under investigation, and he was urged to submit his claim to the national freshwater fisheries hall of fame at Hayward, Wis.

Survival Tips Are Given For Duck Hunters By Minnesota DNR Advisor

Duck hunters run a greater risk from drowning than from being shot by a hunting companion, according to Kim Elverum, boat and water safety coordinator for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

Elverum told duck hunters they can avoid falling overboard or capsizing their craft by remaining low in the boat, avoiding overloading it with hunters, dogs, and equipment and by staying away from large expanses of open water as much as possible.

He said hunters can now buy comfortable personal flotation devices (PFDs or life preservers) in camouflage colors with full sleeves that will not only keep the hunter afloat but help retain body heat, increasing survival time in the cold water.

And he said that even if the hunter fall overboard wearing heavy clothing and chest waders he is not necessarily doomed.

"On the contrary," he said, "warm clothing is an asset in cold water. Those layers of clothing and the waders contain pockets of air that can increase buoyancy.

"In addition, water trapped between the clothing and the skin is warmed by body heat and acts as an insulator."

Elverum said that a hunter who falls overboard should try to re-enter the boat. If unable to do so, a hunter wearing a PFD should draw up his knees and keep his arms close to his sides for maximum heat conservation.

"If the hunter has no PFD," he said, "items such as gas cans, decoys and vacuum jugs can be used to remain afloat."

Public Notices

Card of Thanks

Thief River Falls Times Readers:

I received an unexpected offer of assistance for graduate school this week and felt the opportunity was one I could not pass up. I will be attending the U of M working for my master's degree in English—Since classes begin Monday, September 24, I will not have a chance to speak to you, my friends and associates, before leaving.

Therefore, I would like to take this opportunity to express my sincere thanks for the support and encouragement you have given me during my tenure at the Times. My years here have been rewarding both professionally and personally and it is not without regret that I make this move. And if I hold ten more jobs in my life, this one will still be special because it was my first.

There are many things I would like to say to individuals and organizations in this community, but perhaps the most meaningful statement I could make is simply this: I would like to come back to Thief River Falls. It feels like home.

God Be With You All,
Kim Blaeser

Senior Citizens

Sixteen people registered in our record book on Thursday, Sept. 13, when the senior citizens met at the center. Guests were Helen and Martin Eskildsen and Mrs. Roger Larson and Jeremy.

Most of the ladies were working with pillows. Some pulled fluff, some filled, while others sewed up ends, finishing more pairs of bed pillows. Some small throw pillows were also completed.

Mildred and Ruth Harper worked some on Ruth's quilt.

Irene Sjoden Swanson of Prior Lake enjoyed playing bingo and winning some nice prizes when she visited our center a few weeks ago. On a recent visit to my home she left some small packages that we are to use as future bingo prizes. Thank you, Irene. We appreciate receiving prizes for our fun day. Please stop by and visit us again when you are up here.

Six door prizes were given away on Thursday. Ruth Harper gave two prizes that went to Sophia and Ella. Mabel received the prizes Polly donated, Mildred won the prize Ella gave, Amanda received Sarah's prize, while Sarah received the one given by Amanda.

Dolly Larson served refreshments Thursday.

PACKAGING STATIONS along the processing line at the Chervestad carrot operation near Oklee have provision for weighing and bagging of carrots for store or institutional use. In the photo above the carrots are being selected and weighed for packaging in two pound bags.

PACKAGED CARROTS which have been placed in plastic mesh bags are placed on wooden pallets for transport from the processing plant to the warehouse on the Korydon Chervestad farm northwest of Oklee. Operating the loader is Kevin Hinden. The large sacks on the pallet above contain 24 two-pound packages each.

END OF THE LINE for carrots being processed at the Chervestad carrot operation northwest of Oklee is this revolving table where the packages are dropped before being placed in larger bags. The carrots are then stacked on pallets to await loading into refrigerated truck trailers.

VARIOUS SIZES of carrots have various destinations at the Chervestad carrot processing operation. Workers along this conveyor system select carrots to be bagged for store use while the larger carrots are diverted for packaging for institutional use. Small, misshaped or damaged carrots become livestock feed or are occasionally purchased for making juice.

Carrot Crop Adds Work For Chervestads

bottom are hauled from the field to the Korydon Chervestad farm where a 30x120 lean-to addition has been built by Brad and Keith Nelson of River Valley Construction to an existing 40x120 pole building. This addition houses the processing operation for washing, grading, packaging and shipping.

At the building, carrots are dumped from the wagon into a trench or flume about 18 inches wide and the same depth in the concrete floor. Water pumped from a special lagoon built for the process provides enough flow to move the carrots to the washer, removing a large portion of the soil from the carrots as they are carried along.

A conveyor picks the carrots out of the flume and carries them into the large rotating drum which comprises the washer. Water pumped from a new well at the rate of 30 to 50 gallons per minute flows into the washer to complete the washing operation. Carrots are then carried along a conveyor system to a line where workers sort, weigh and package them for shipment.

Scales with scoop-type baskets are used to weigh the product with one worker selecting the carrots to be weighed and another filling and sealing the bags. For store sales the carrots are packaged in one-pound or two-pound plastic bags. For institutional use, the larger carrots go into 25-pound bulk packs. At the end of the line, the one-pound and two-pound packages are placed in larger mesh sacks, holding about 50 pounds each.

At present the Chervestads are using the plastic bags remaining from the Steile operation and printed with RS brand. When new stock is ordered, they expect to use the OK brand (OK standing for Orlando and Kory) and note that the carrots are Minnesota home grown and processed.

The carrot operation is a family affair for the Chervestads who credit Kindt with most of the development of the system. He built the washer, designed the conveyors, packaging and flume system and handled the field preparation and spraying as well as directing the harvesting and processing.

Korydon and Orlando have worked with the planting and harvesting as well as handling and shipping. Orlando's wife, Helen, has been developing the markets, arranging for sales to Hartz Wholesale in Thief River Falls, Red Owl in Fargo and Grand Forks, Gamble-Robinson in Fargo and Grand Forks, Super Valu, Grand Forks Grocery and a broker in Minneapolis. Shipment is made by refrigerated van and product quality has been praised by all buyers. Kory's wife, Carol, handles the bookkeeping, payroll and secretarial work.

Marketing is no problem as there appears to be a demand for all the carrots which the farm can produce and process. If storage were available, however, a better price could be averaged since prices tend to rise by about 40 per cent later into the winter. Storage for 400 to 500 tons would be necessary to make it worthwhile, Kory said, and storage has to be at 40 degrees and about 98 per cent humidity. The Chervestads essentially follow and compete with carrots produced in California and have an advantage in freight cost.

The operation requires a good-sized crew. Helping Kindt with the harvester have been Jeannie Groven and Jimmy Olson as tractor drivers. Working in the plant and warehouse are Mr. and Mrs. Ole Austad, Mrs. Bud Myrum, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sweno, Kay Erickson, Sonja Brovold, Sharon Carlson, Mrs. Pearl Erickson, Carol Sweno, Doreen Sigerud, Pam Hamm, Paul Lehner, Beverly Moen, Alice Olson, Cookie Longtin, Allen Woods, Myra Nesland, Kevin Hinden and Dennis Moen. All are from the Oklee, Gully, Goodridge area.

So far the Chervestads aren't too worried about getting the carrots out of the ground before cold weather causes a problem. They can take 16 to 17 degree weather without being harmed. But there is other farm work to be done — including sunflower harvesting and caring for a herd of dairy cattle — which cut down on the available time.

But they are all pleased with the first year of operation and are looking forward to smoothing out some wrinkles as a result of experience gained this year. Next spring they expect to be back at it again, perhaps in a bigger and better way.

Local Officials Attend League Of Cities Meet

Clerk-Treas. Jerry Wigness, deputy clerk Roger Delap, council members Dr. Donald Goodrich, Clayton Restad, Ambrose Wysoski and Bill Penning, all of Thief River Falls; Mayor James Gaven, utility superintendents Don Appel and Jere Overby of St. Hilaire; and Mayor Dr. David Brown and Helen Brown of Goodridge, attended the regional meeting of the League of Minnesota cities at Crookston, September 11. Also attending were Senators Roger Moe and Marv Hanson and Rep. Myron Nysether of this area.

Donald A. Slater, executive director of the league, conducted the evening meeting.

"Effective communication between city officials and legislators is a topic of great concern to the league of cities", Slater said. "City officials express their views concerning the important issues facing the next legislative session."

"City officials must be willing to help the legislature cut the costs of city government", Slater continued. "Too often, the legislature requires cities to provide certain services or a level of service which might not be necessary in a particular community. Legislators must be informed of the real needs and desires of those citizens who live in cities, and the best person to do this is the locally elected official.

"The financing and administration of police and firefighters pension funds and of other public employees retirement program must also be examined by the legislature in its attempts to hold down the cost of local government."

"Another major issue which the Legislature must address is the rapidly increasing cost of health and accident insurance for city employees and the high cost of liability insurance for the city itself.

"Without effective communicatin from local city officials, the Legislature will not know the whole story and could make mistakes."

Solar Energy Fair Slated At Crookston

Manufacturers and distributors of solar equipment and of other alternative energy hardware have been invited to display their equipment and help instruct those interested in the area to become more knowledgeable about what is presently available in the marketplace.

Display of equipment will be set up in the Red River valley winter shows building at Crookston Friday afternoon and evening, December 7 and throughout the day and evening on Saturday, December 8, 1979. Companies or individuals wishing to display equipment should contact Gene Miller at the northwest experiment station for further information. All space will be on a reserved basis and must be confirmed with an early deposit.

The solar energy fair will be conducted with a free gate and several information sessions are being planned to complement the displays. The objective of the fair is to give people a hands-on experience with the latest in solar equipment.

The University of Minnesota, northwest experiment station, agricultural extension service, and Mid-America solar energy complex are sponsors.

Oct. Proclaimed Co-Op Month By Gov. Quie

Governor Al Quie has proclaimed October as Co-op month in Minnesota. In his official proclamation Governor Quie credited cooperatives with providing jobs, capital investments, quality products and service while returning savings to local users.

Theme for the observance, "Cooperatives: Good For All Americans", was announced by Edward E. Slettom, executive director of the Minnesota association of cooperatives. Mr. Slettom stated, "Member-owned cooperatives provide goods and services that benefit members and their communities, and the public at large. They provide balance in the market place and strengthen communities through people working together to help themselves."

Minnesota has more cooperatives and more cooperative members than any other state. There are over 1,500 cooperatives in Minnesota serving over one-half million people with marketing, purchasing, insurance, health, housing, credit, and other services.

MCCL To Meet Tues., Sept. 24

M.C.C.L. (Minnesota citizens concerned for life) will meet Tuesday, September 25, at 8 p.m. at the Birthright office on the second floor in the city auditorium in the old police station. Entrance is on the north side of the building facing the Red Owl parking lot. There will be a baby shower in conjunction with this meeting complete with cake and punch. "Birthright, Its Philosophy, Its Local Impact" will be the topic. Interested persons may attend to learn more about Birthright and are invited to bring a gift for a baby.

What a disappointment! You had a a tremendous drive, the perfect chip shot, and a brilliant putt; then your ball stopped a hairsbreadth from the edge of the cup. The birdie you thought was yours didn't materialize.

Of course, it's only a game; it doesn't really matter. But blighted hopes are not always so trivial. What if something really big passes you by? Suppose you don't get that promotion, your son's scholarship is given to someone else, an important client changes his mind, or the stock market wipes out your investment? Where do you turn? Where do you find strength to meet life's disillusionments?

Spiritual values are constant. Fortunes may shift and change but your Church stands firm. The truths and inspiration you find there give meaning, purpose, and stability to your life.

Chief's Corner

by Ken Froschheiser
Chief of Police
Thief River Falls, MN.

As the hunting season is upon us, many people have called my office or come in person to apply for a pistol permit to carry a handgun while hunting.

I would like to take this opportunity to advise all hunters that it is not necessary to have a permit for this purpose. It is also not necessary for hunters to have a permit to carry when transporting a pistol within a motor vehicle as long as the pistol is unloaded and in a closed and fastened container. The following section of law applies:

Sec. 3, 624.713, subd. 9

A permit to carry is not required of a person:

(a) to keep or carry about his place of business, dwelling house, premises or on land possessed by him a pistol;

(b) to carry a pistol from a place of purchase to his dwelling house or place of business, or from his dwelling house or place of business to or from a place where repairing is done, to have the pistol repaired;

(c) to carry a pistol between his dwelling house and his place of business;

(d) to carry a pistol in the woods or fields or upon the waters of this State for the purpose of hunting other than protected wild animals or of target shooting in a safe area; or

(e) to transport a pistol in a motor vehicle, snowmobile or boat if the pistol is unloaded, contained in a closed and fastened case, gun box, or securely tied package. If a motor vehicle, snowmobile or boat does not have an enclosed area (trunk), a pistol may be carried in the driver or passenger area as long as the pistol is unloaded and contained in a closed and fastened case, gun box, or securely tied package. (These type vehicle would be pickups, vans, motorhomes, etc.)

A utility compartment or glove compartment shall be deemed to be within the area occupied by the driver and passenger. (When your vehicle has a trunk the pistol should be transported in the trunk. If no trunk, then passenger area is permissible. In both areas the pistol must be in a closed or fastened case, gun box, or securely tied package.)

If hunters are still unsure and request further clarification, please feel free to contact me at the law enforcement center. I wish all hunters a safe and prosperous season.

Sunday Headache May Be Indicator Of School Phobia

Johnny, age six, is content on weekends. Suddenly on Sunday night he develops a headache. By Monday morning he doesn't want to go to school. He's still got the headache. His parents let him stay home but next weekend it happens again and the following weekend again — legitimate illness or school avoidance?

The previous scene is a common pattern of school avoidance, according to Charles Van der Heide, MD, director of child psychiatry at a Minneapolis health center.

If the parents in this episode persisted in getting the child to go to school, there would probably be a dramatic scene with tears and pleading — it can soon look as though the child is really distraught," he said.

"A certain amount of difficulty in going to school is common for a child in kindergarten and the first grade. That's around the time a child normally is dealing with the whole issue of leaving home base. However, if an eighth grader is having problems, that's a much more serious situation," Dr. Van der Heide said, adding that the younger the child, the more hopeful the outlook for treatment.

How surious is the situation? School phobias, part of the larger category of school avoidance, account for eight per cent of referrals to most child-guidance centers, Dr. Van der Heide noted. He said 17 out of 1,000 school-age children are affected by this problem. Although boys usually account for most of the referrals to child-guidance centers, Dr. Van der Heide said there is no sex difference with school phobias; girls are affected just as often as boys.

Statistics aside, what is a school phobia: Dr. Van der Heide defined it as a morbid dread of going to school without obvious environmental reasons for the child's anxiety. That rules out, for example, such issues as illness, teasing and racial tension.

"Usually the child doesn't have a very secure or stable sense of self," noted Dr. Van der heide. "The first entry in the greater world of teachers, school, other children and society in general is a very crucial one for a child. What we sometimes find are children who are prematurely forced into a pre-school experience. They seem to adapt for awhile; then in the first or second grade, they get thrown for a loop. Looking back one finds this child hasn't made a good, comfortable separation from home and continues to feel uncomfortable, particularly when faced with new stresses."

Dr. Van der Heide noted that the problem isn't just within the child. "By and large, the problem of school phobia is a parent-child one. The child may be getting the massage from mom that home is the best place to stay. Often we find that the mom has never really clearly separated from her own mother," he said.

The problem of school phobia seems to be due, in part, to a legacy of insecurity. "It's a generational problem," noted Dr. Van der Heide. "In other words, the process whereby a child learns that he or she is basically separate from other individuals has not been worked out very well. The mothers may be insecure, somewhat rigid people who need the child desperately. Even if the child wants to go out on his or her won, he or she feels guilty and anxious. What the child has learned from mom is that she can't take it if the child does leave.

"The physician often is the first person to have a chance to identify the problem. The child has learned that the best way to avoid going to school is to say he or she is sick. The conscientious parent then will take the child to the doctor. Finding nothing wrong organically, the doctor will probably begin to piece the story together," said Dr. Van der Heide.

Successful treatment of school phobias requires a good coordination between many people in the child's life — parents, teachers, physicians and mental health professionals.

"As with any problem, the first steps are a careful physical exam, followed by a psychiatric evaluation. The physician must have a clear feeling that there are no physical problems. A social history should be obtained, the immediate causes pinpointed and some idea of the overall picture of the child-parent relationship obtained," stated Dr. Van der Heide.

"One of my concerns is parents who are expecting a child and then place young son Johnny in nursery school to make things easier for mom. This is absolutely the wrong thing to do, and I say so when I'm asked. Children think in terms of their own needs, and Johnny will probably distort this situation. He'll feel as though he is being sent away, and the new baby is preferred," the doctor said.

"The child's first experience away from home in school should be done gradually. The parent should be prepared to walk the child to the classroom for a week or so, rather than leave him or her at the school doorstep. If the child has problems, perhaps arrangements can be made for him or her to spend a part-time day at school. The best situation is where the child finally lets the parent know that he or she is ready. In other words, it's better to tell someone to leave, than to be left."

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

I think it's time someone asks the President a simple question: Why, after promising never to increase the taxes of lower and middle-income Americans, has he asked these same people to pay the largest tax increases in peacetime history?

Clearly, he has. . .and is. The President has tried to raise taxes on: Crude oil, the industrial use of oil and natural gas, gas guzzlers, gasoline and just recently, on the so-called "windfall profits" of the oil companies. And that's just for energy. Mention Social Security and we're talking about another $227 billion tax increase over the next decade. And the list goes on and on.

The key point is this: Every cent of tax proposals like these must always be paid — through higher taxes and-or higher prices — by the very people Mr. Carter promised to protect. It's not really that complicated as long as you agree your money belongs to the government.

That's the whole idea behind his "windfall profits" tax which he says the oil companies must pay because they have not "earned" the higher prices they will receive under gradual decontrol. But how could a company "earn" what the President calls "fair" when the government itself kept prices controlled below what it costs to explore and drill for oil?

Obviously it couldn't. And now he delights in using words like "profiteering" and "cheat" to insinuate the industry is untrustworthy. Forget the facts. Forget that while the oil industry's profitability averaged less than other industries during the last three years, it consistently invested more than it earned (nearly twice its profits) for production and new exploration. Forget that the independent producers, who drill and find much more oil than the majors, are even more heavily in debt.

And of course, let's gloss over the entire Department of Energy which spends almost as much as the majors earn. . . but produces no energy. All governments can already take up to 65 cents of every energy dollar you spend. Under the big, new tax proposals, they could get more than 80 cents.

Will all those taxes keep your car running and heat your home? Possibly, but only if you honestly think those who already explore, produce, refine and market their product at one of the most competitive rates in the world are less qualified to invest your money than the bureaucrats, whose idea of competition is to outstaff, outspend and overpower rival departments, and whose policies of price controls and environmental extremism actually produced the mess we're now in.

Senator Orrin Hatch has signalled a more disturbing consequence of the President's proposed "windfall profits" tax: The seizure, or theft of private property. The oil companies are owned by millions of stockholders, the majority of whom are moderate-income, blue and white-collar workers and retired people who have been saving and investing for years. Now they're suddenly being told that although they might have invested their life-savings and assumed all the risks, the government will grab the rewards because these people didn't earn them. Sound fair? And if it happens, where might the ax fall next — on you perhaps, because you really didn't earn enough of that profit you made on the sale of your land, your crops, your family business or your home?

Let's talk about the real windfall — the one that's truly unearned, and enormous, and that goes to the government because of the higher taxes you must pay everytime you get a raise trying to stay even with inflation. During the past 15 years, prices have risen about 130 per cent. But federal taxes have shot up nearly 300 per cent. That means a one-income family earning the median income of $8,132 in 1964 must earn at least $20,000 this year just to retain its purchasing power. Will your family succeed?

Maybe that's why people are so frustrated and frightened. Maybe that explains the national malaise the President tried so hard to put his finger on with all those slashing hand gestures during his recent speech. And if that is true, can't he find another way to get tough and be a leader without declaring war on American taxpayers?

The Wisdom of Big Brother. . . And Friends

How would we survive without the Department of Energy? I've often noted this bureaucracy spends almost as much as the major oil companies make in profits, but has yet to strike oil. Well at least now you'll know what they do. Here's an excerpt from form CLC9004A instructing your service station operator how much to charge you for your gasoline:

"If the amount shown on Line 8 is greater than the amount on Line 1, then multiply the difference by the unit cost shown on Line 5. If the amount on Line 8 is less than the amount shown on Line 1, then go back to each succeeding delivery prior to the delivery used in computing Line 6 and add these deliveries to the amount shown on Line 6 until the total number of gallons delivered equals or exceeds the amount on Line 1. Additionally, add to Line 7 the total costs associated with these deliveries. If Line 8 now exceeds Line 1, then multiply the difference by the unit cost of the earliest delivery used to adjust line 6. . ."

Aren't we lucky the Post Office finally came through and got all the forms delivered before the gas crunch hit.

Bulletin to Jane Fonda, Tom Hayden and Ralph Nader

You are cordially invited to promote and attend an anti-nuclear protest against a Soviet designed system about to be built in Cuba. National Review reports a U.S. scientist believes the system ". . .will apparently lack two key safety features common to nuclear plants in the United States and Europe: A steel and concrete outer casing and a back-up cooling system. As a result, writes Jorge F. Perez-Lopez in Cuban Studies, a meltdown not only would be disastrous for Cubans, but could affect neighboring areas including southern Florida." Now there's a real threat.

"Ask Not What Your Country Can Do For You. . ."

Andrew Bavas tried to save taxpayers some money but he paid the price. The Chicago-based Health, Education and Welfare executive told his superiors he didn't need their $1,272 raise — his $43,000 a year salary was quite sufficient thank you. Andrew's boss told him Civil Service regulations forbid such a refusal. But Bavas refused again, and was ordered to a position in Philadelphia at an $8,000 cut in pay. So Bavas quit. But even then he found himself wrapped in red tape, unable to locate the proper form in which to hand in his resignation.

Inflation Remains. . . Scapegoats Change

Each month I look forward to learning who the government will blame for the latest bad news on consumer prices. Inflation remains, but scapegoats change. Recently the meat middlemen got a rare taste of what it's like to be publicly grilled by the President himself. No one who witnessed that tender confrontation reported the President acknowledging that the rate of increase in meat prices over the last decade lags way behind increases in federal spending and taxes. If Mr. Carter does not believe the federal government itself has raised meat prices, maybe he should quit beefing and start reading. He would find there are approximately: 205 Statutes related to the ground beef industry, 41,000 regulations, and 111,000 court decisions to interpret the regulations affecting production, processing and distribution.

It's AN Ill Wind That Blows No Good

A California city official, writes U.S. News and World Report, was so angered by government-mandated paperwork that he saved all the papers and reports sent to him by federal, state and local government over three years. The grand total: Approximately 84,000 pages, or enough to fill more than 300 novels.

BACKGROUND ON BUSINESS

AN AIRLINE THAT MEETS YOUR NEEDS

Experienced business travelers are finding little extra services can mean a lot.

The number one priority of at least one major international airline is catering to the needs of the business executive.

Since he or she makes up more than 30 percent of Lufthansa's North American market, that carrier is continuously expanding the services offered in its "Executive Traveler" program. One of the latest additions is an inflight "Business Class" section that provides full-fare economy passengers with up-front seating and extra trimmings such as complimentary cocktail service and headsets for the inflight entertainment program, as well as priority meal service.

"Lufthansa's Profitours program," says Rolf Hoehn, the airline's marketing manager for North and Central America, "outlines suggested itineraries that allow business clients to study operations and procedures in any of the 30 industries and professions in Europe. Profitours also qualify for tax deductibility since they concentrate on technical visits and meetings."

The Executive Traveler program provides the businessman with a wealth of tips on foreign market opportunities in a quarterly newsletter available on request, and advises on "how to do business" abroad in a series of booklets covering various countries.

Other Executive Traveler services from Lufthansa include:

- Trade Fair and Exhibition service. An up-to-date directory of major trade fairs in Europe is available from the airline to help you take advantage of new market opportunities.
- Secretarial Services. Bilingual secretarial services arranged at cost if requested at least five days before arrival at your destination.
- Interpreter Services, Business Cards. The airline will arrange for interpreters and have your business card printed in a foreign language.
- Hotel Reservations. Accommodations in deluxe and first class hotels throughout Europe, the Middle East and Africa can be confirmed through Lufthansa.
- Special Flight Menu. With 24 hours notice, Lufthansa will arrange for your special menu request — whether it be vegetarian, kosher, diebetic, low salt, Moslem, Hindu or any other.

For many business travelers, services such as these may mean the difference between mission impossible and mission accomplished.

Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Paul Anderson and family were supper guests at the Jim Nelson home. Jennifer Anderson was a Friday overnight guest at the Mrs. Eva Bernard home in Karlstad.

Visitors at the Steve Chwialkowski home this past week have been Bev Rux, Shelby Baehr and Ricky, Esther Storeby, Dixie and Troy, Darwin Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hugg and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Chwialkowski and sons, Myrna Johnson and children and Erick Henrickson.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fredricks and Daryl Fredricks of Sunny Vale, Calif., were Saturday evening visitors at the Elmer Holmstrom home.

Tillie Johnson of Holt visited Elsie Lefrooth Saturday afternoon. Later that day Mr. and Mrs. Paul Anderson and Christopher and Kenrick visited there. Mr. and Mrs. Vance Lefrooth, Margaret and Vanette visited Elsie Sunday evening and Elaine Grovum of Thief River Falls visited Elsie Sunday afternoon.

Nanny Skoglund visited Saturday afternoon at the Leo Renstrom home.

Sharon Kalinowski and Dianne, Mrs. Judy Larson, LouAnn, Brian and Jeremy visited Dolly Larson Thursday. Friday Mrs. Elwood Bello and Mrs. Donny Bello and Aaron of Strathcona visited Dolly.

Mabel Stromberg and Anna Rud visited Sally Weiler on Tuesday. Friday afternoon Hulda Stromberg visited Sally.

Saturday, Sept. 15 found Mabel Stromberg and Alyce Anderson lucky winners of the $5 certificates at the evening drawing. Barbara Braff was called for the $15 but she was not present, so next Saturday two $5's and a $20 certificate will be up for grabs.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Flaten were dinner guests at the Opel Hoy home near Wannaska after church services Sunday.

Marlene Pearson of Karlstad and Mrs. Dean Hams of Thief River Falls were Sunday visitors at the Earl Sihlberg home. Adrienne Lefrooth and Margaret have also visited there this past week.

Mrs. Anna Rud was a Sunday dinner guest at the Palmer Rud home. Sunday afternoon visitors at the Anna Rud home were Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Larson of Fargo, Jennie and Oscar Larson of Strathcona and Palmer Rud and girls.

Lucille Staneyk of Thief River Falls and Diane Huot of Red Lake Falls went to the Black Hills in South Dakota for one week. They went through Medora, N.D., a quaint old town with a lot of antiques. Next, through Bellford and to Spearfish, S.D., where they saw the beautiful Black Hills passion play. From there, they went to Rapid City. They saw the Holy Shrine wax museum which was very beautiful and Marine Life. They went through Deadwood, a ghost town, and Rockerville, S.D., where they had a horse and buggy ride. When they reached Keystone, they rode the Trans-way where you could see the mountains close up. The president's wax museum and Mt. Rushmore were also historical sites. From there to Hill City, where they rode the 1880 train they filmed Gunsmoke and saw the train they filmed Orphan Train on a movie that will be coming out this fall. The last stop was at Bedrock City with all the Flintstones and their rock town. They also saw the Bethlehem park on their way back. An enjoyable time was had by both girls.

Why Spannaus In China?

Following editorial is from the Fargo Forum:

Minnesota public officials have a thing about visiting China. When Wendell Anderson was governor, he visited China in a delegation which went over there to drum up trade.

Present Minnesota Gov. Albert Quie is planning a China trip sometime in the near future.

Somehow, China seems terribly far away for state officials to be trekking. How about Canada? We haven't heard much about cementing Canadian relations lately. It's close.

The topper is the trip by Minnesota Attorney General Warren Spannaus to China. He is over there as a member of the U.S. delegation accompanying Vice President Mondale. What can a Minnesota attorney general be doing in China?

Yes, we know Spannaus is a good friend of the Mondales, and maybe they figured this would be a nice trip for him. Maybe things are slack in the attorney general's office, and Spannaus feels the trip will be broadening. Or maybe he is on his vacation. But the news stories on Spannaus taking the trip said nothing about a vacation.

Or here's an angle. Spannaus is an advocate of gun control. Maybe he is seeing how the Chinese do it.

Frankly, we are hard to put to imagine what Spannaus could be doing in China that applies to his role in Minnesota. If the vice president feels he needs legal representation in China, there is always the U.S. Attorney general's office he could use.

Through the years Spannaus, in his various roles in public office as a Democratic Farmer-Labor party official, has done a lot of campaigning for Mondale. And Mondale has done a lot for Spannaus. And that's the way politics works.

Mondale, incidentally, is a former attorney general in Minnesota. He was appointed to the office and later elected. Then, he was appointed to the Senate in 1964 to succeed Sen. Hubert Humphrey when the latter was elected vice president.

Spannaus was elected attorney general in 1970 and re-elected in 1974 and 1978. He is one of the most popular DFL vote getters on the scene. Perhaps Vice President Mondale believes a trip to China will prepare Spannaus for a future role in the national political scene. It would be no surprise to see Spannaus challenging for a congressional seat or for governor. That is, if he is not named a U.S. judge first.

But right now we fail to see advantage to Minnesota, or U.S. citizens in general, of having Spannaus in China.

Closed Meetings Intolerable

Following editorial is from a recent issue of the St. Cloud Times:

Recently a district judge found four city councilmen from Hanover, Minn., and eight members of a joint sewer board representing Hanover, St. Michael, Albertville and Frankfort Township guilty of violating Minnesota's open meeting law. They were fined $10 apiece.

Judging from the "sentence," it wouldn't appear the crime they committed was considered too serious by the court. Most traffic fines are much in excess of $10. In fact, in some cities you can be fined more for jaywalking.

The elected officials, who hold office in three cities and a township in eastern Wright County, were convicted of holding 10 "special" meetings, failing to record any minutes at two special meetings and recording inadequate minutes at two other special meetings. The joint sewer board held nine special meetings without any posted or published notice and also failed to keep minutes.

District Judge Robert Bakke heard the case and termed the officials "well intentioned." He saw no points in removing them from office, even though a public official found guilty of violating the open meeting statute three times can be removed.

Perhaps the judge was correct. Maybe the officials were "well intentioned" and only meant to get on with the public's business as quickly as possible. Maybe there was no conscious neglect of the law or the public's right to observe their local government in action. Maybe.

On the other hand, if the violation was intentional, as was believed by a group of Hanover citizens who brought suit, then a guilty conviction and a $10 fine was little more than a joke. The public's right to know how their government functions is a cornerstone of our democracy and whether that right is violated intentionally or unintentionally has little bearing on the end result — secrecy.

We view the Wright County decision as a dangerous precedent. Candid public officials will often say it's a pain in the neck to have the public present at some meetings. Discussion sometimes get out of hand and it takes much longer to accomplish the work of government. This may be true, but unfortunately the alternative to an open meeting is a closed one. And that's intolerable — in Wright County, in Minnesota and the United States.

Bills For World War II

Following editorial is from the New York Times:

With the impending retirement of 13 million veterans of World War II, the expenditures of the Veterans Administration on health care and income security are about to go through the roof. Yet no one seems to be paying much attention to the facts:

+ Veterans over 65 years old receive five times as much health care as those under 65, and World War II veterans who are already over 65 are two-and-a-half times as likely to be collecting disability payments. All kinds of disabilities, in any case, whether service-connected or not, rise dramatically with age, and the disabilities for which the Veterans Administration pays are not limited to those that originated in wartime.

+ At the moment the country is in a lull before the storm. There will be about 3 million veterans over the age of 65 until 1981. Then the storm will hit. Every five years, for 15 years thereafter, between 4 and 5 million veterans will turn 65. By the mid-1990's the number of elderly veterans will have tripled.

+ The Veterans Administration already runs the nation's largest hospital system, at an annual cost of $6 billion. It also spends $12 billion for various income-security programs and has 200,000 employees; the V.A. is the Government's fourth heaviest spending agency and third largest employer.

How much will meeting existing commitments to World War II veterans add to that budget: No one seems to know, but it might easily have to double in ten years. That will confront future administrations with a conflict between past wars and current defense budgets — let alone between guns and butter. And Congress will have to make some painful choices: whether to raise taxes to meet the growing costs of benefits, cut veterans programs, or look for some middle way.

There is a sensible middle way and it is not too soon to start thinking about it. This would be to integrate veterans benefits more closely with other social welfare programs. Today's benefit programs for veterans evolved, over decades, out of public gratitude for military service. But over the years these programs stopped being so special; analogous services have been enacted for nonveterans. Given the general availability of Medicare for the elderly, perhaps the V.A. should stop paying health care costs for elderly veterans. Since Social Security provides disability benefits, perhaps non-service-related disability payments to veterans should stop. There could also be a deadline for claims of service-related disabilities.

Whatever the solution, Congress has a couple of years to put veterans programs in order before the storm. Many of the benefits now owed to veterans were promised long ago, to be paid in the distant future. That future has arrived. Paying for past wars is about to become a major national problem.

Interesting Opinions:

"For countries like the Soviet Union, which sell gold to earn dollars to pay for U.S. wheat, the current wheat price in terms of gold is cheaper than it was in the 1972 purchases that the uninformed describe as 'The great grain robbery'. In 1972, the USSR paid about $60 a ton for its immense wheat purchase, and gold in London was at about $60 per ounce. When wheat was trading at about $170 a ton, gold in London was $277 per ounce. In that sense, Soviet Union purchases this year cost less per unit than seven years ago, in much the same way that higher wheat prices have not offset the impact of inflation on the economic well-being of farmers."

—Milling and Baking News

"The truth is that corn and other grains are too valuable as food sources to be used for running cars. Even with the low price of corn today, gasohol must be heavily subsidized to be practical. If a lot of corn were used for this purpose, corn prices would rise, making gasohol still less economic."

—Lauren Soth, Des Moines Register

The Salvation Army has pledged to care for the poor, feed the hungry, clothe the naked, love the unlovable and befriend those who have no friends.

Rehabilitation centers for men, summer camps for children, homes for unwed mothers and centers for senior citizens are just a part of the work done by The Salvation Army.

Washington Report

Sen. Dave Durenberger

The people of Minnesota are facing a crisis that has been building for at least 25 years. It can't be solved overnight, yet few people seem willing to make the necessary long-term commitment to finding a solution. In fact, too few people even recognize the existence of a crisis.

The crisis is transportation and to the people in the small towns and cities of Minnesota it's one of the most serious problems they face. Unless we find a solution, bankruptcy is a real threat for thousands of farmers and community businesses.

That's the message that was reaffirmed for me during my travels throughout Minnesota during August and my daily visits with people at the state fair. Our towns and cities were built around railroads, highways and rivers. Unless we revitalize these transportation systems, their present inadequacy will gradually strangle many Minnesota communities.

The Duluth grain strike, the energy shortage and the railroad cutbacks have temporarily put Minnesota's transportation woes in the news. But, unless we — elected officials and private citizens — keep the issue alive the message won't be heard until it is too late.

The message is simple; the solutions are difficult. Highways and bridges have been left to deteriorate. A major shipping line, the Milwaukee Railroad, faces bankruptcy. Lock and Dam 26 is inadequate to handle barge traffic. Amtrak is cutting service in Minnesota. All this has been happening while agricultural production in the state has increased 50 per cent in the last eight years and exports have increased by almost 120 per cent.

In the coming weeks this column will deal with the causes of these problems and the solutions I and others have been seeking.

Even though the gas lines have disappeared and supplies appear to be increasing, energy was still a major topic of conversation during my visits with Minnesotans. Their greatest concern is the increase in the price of home heating oil. Not too long ago the price was 35 cents a gallon; by the end of this winter it will be $1 a gallon.

People with low and fixed incomes will have trouble paying their heating bills this year. In the long-run we have to reform our existing programs like social security, unemployment compensation and other income security programs. They must be strengthened so we can help those who need assistance with high heating bills.

Many people, however, will need immediate relief. I've asked Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd to place this issue on the Senate agenda. I'll work with congressional leaders to get the strongest possible relief program in place and operational before Minnesota's winter sets in.

The economy was also on the minds of a lot of people with whom I talked. And it's no wonder they are thinking about the economy when inflation is heading for 14 per cent and unemployment has jumped to 6 per cent.

The economic problems are closely related to energy and to the financial policies of the government. We can't bring down the rate of inflation until we settle on a national energy policy and then stick to that policy. Combined with that, Congress must commit itself to spending your tax dollars more wisely.

Other issues, especially SALT II, may grab the headlines. But right now, nothing is more important than energy and the economy. Those must be the congressional priorities until solutions were found.

Monument To Joan Of Arc, Maid Of Orleans

On May 30, 1431, in the French city of Rouen just 84 miles northwest of Paris, Joan of Arc the Maid of Orleans was burned at the stake.

Today, the new chapel of St. Joan of Arc dedicated May 27, 1979 stands as a lasting memorial to the patron saint of France.

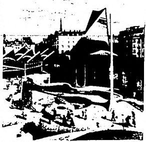
The chapel, on the old marketplace, is at what historians say is the site of the stake. In addition to this historic significance, the chapel is for this "city of a 100 spires," as Victor Hugo described it, a new architectural masterpiece.

Its slate-covered roof has a twisting triangular shape with an intricate pattern that can bring to mind the churches of Scandinavia. It rises about four stories high.

The interior of the chapel features two key elements. One is the northwest wall, with its 12 huge, 16th century Renaissance stained-glass windows. Considered among the best in France, the windows were kept in storage during World War II after they were removed from the church of St. Vincent, formerly located near the square. The church was destroyed during the war.

The other main element is the ceiling, made of golden-colored wood that looks like a cross between the hull of a ship and golden-hued draperies.

Nearby is the large rock that held the pillory of Joan of Arc.



In Normandy's Rouen stands the new, modernistic Chapel of St. Joan of Arc, dedicated in May, 1979. To the left is the round disk of Joan of Arc's pillory.

There is much more to see in the marketplace as well in this city, the capital of Normandy.

In the northeast corner of the square is a modern structure of light-colored wood and slate—the new city market for flowers, vegetables and fish.

Rouen is an architectural blend of the old and the new. You can walk down a busy, exhaust-free mall lined with fashionable boutiques and specialty food shops, turn a corner and see the ornate gilded Gros Horloge, or Great Clock, whose bells have been sounding the curfew since 1260. Not far away is the cathedral, so often painted by the Impressionists.

West Steiner Homemakers Have Meeting

Nine members of the West Steiner Homemaker club met at the home of Mrs. Clara Jaennette Thursday afternoon with Mrs. LaVerne Rondorf as co-hostess. The annual Christmas banquet has been tentatively set to be held at the Spruce Valley Community Center in Middle River either November 26 or December 3 serving starting at 6:30 p.m. by the ladies of the Thief Lake Lutheran church. Plans for the program are a demonstration on holiday entertaining with the use of cheese and wines by the Barberio Cheese House of Thief River Falls and a comedy act by Walter Storey of Wannaska. Officers of the East Home council are president Barbara Rodahl, vice president Evonne Moe, secretary-treasurer Doreen Amundson of Newfolden and historian Frances Meland of Middle River. Material on "Clothing Selection For a Workable Wardrobe" was discussed. Present besides the hostesses were Georgia Malberg, Evonne Moe, Irene Rausch, Rebecca Solem, Maggie Stroberg, Shirley Yonke, and Darlene Muzzy. A visitor was Dorothy Blodgett. Alfred Stroberg was also a luncheon guest.

Triple A Sponsored Tour

Mrs. Ethel Moe, Mrs. Bernice Vatsaas and Mrs. Myrtle Rude left Friday, Sept. 14 for Minneapolis to join others the next morning on a Triple A sponsored tour to Sister Bay, Wisc. Here they spent three days touring Door County. One evening they enjoyed their supper at the "Home of Outdoor Fish Boil". One day they ferried to Washington Island in Lake Michigan to tour it. From Sister Bay the bus took them to Milwaukee where they spent two days. Of interest was a tour of a winery. Their next stop was LaCrosse, Wisc. where something different was the "House on the Rock". They drove Friday along the Mississippi River to Minneapolis which was very scenic. Mrs. Moe, Mrs. Vatsaas and Mrs. Rude returned to Thief River Falls Saturday evening, accompanied by Mrs. Vatsaas' granddaughter Debra Vatsaas from Tacoma, Wash. who spent ten days in this area visiting relatives before returning to her home.

Sunday forenoon visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Malberg at the Valley Home were Allan Johnson and son Robert of Minneapolis, who came from Roseau where they had been overnight guests at the home of his folks, the Edwin Johnsons. Robert was home a few days on furlough from an Air Force base in Texas and will be leaving soon for Florida by car. Olaf Jorde visited the Malbergs Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Solem and Bobby spent Sunday at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Kermit Solem at Rothsay.

Mrs. Clara Jaennette and Mr. and Mrs. Adam Lendobeja of Smiley visited with Mrs. Mabel Swanson at Oakland Park nursing home Sunday afternoon. A week ago Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Lendobeja and Mrs. Jaennette were dinner guests at the Harvey Johnson home of rural St. Hilaire. Mr. and Mrs. Lee Johnson and Kari of Detroit Lakes were also there for dinner and returned home in the afternoon. The Lendobejas and Mrs. Jaennette attended a musical program at the Calvary Lutheran church in St. Hilaire in the afternoon.

Mrs. Ethel Moe and her sister Mrs. Howard McCammon and brother Joe Roso from Bradley, S.D., Mrs. Eldon Moe and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Solem were among those who attended family night at Oak Ridge Lutheran church Sunday evening. The program included several selections by the Senior Citizens' Kitchen band, vocal selections by Pastor David Gabrielson accompanying himself on the guitar and several slides shown of a Norway trip.

Supper guests Friday at the Harold Halvorson home were Mr. and Mrs. David Halvorson of Bemidji. They were houseguests at the Raymond Vaudrin home in Thief River Falls. Tom Rausch, son of Herman Rausch of Cushing has moved to the Raymond Rausch farm with his trailer home and will be employed by Robert Rausch.

NEWS Of Small Business

A FEDERAL LAW THAT WORKS

In these days of painful inflation, a federal law that promotes efficiency in the use of federal tax money is a thing to be treasured.

Few federal laws have stood the test of time and experience as well as has the Davis-Bacon Act since it was passed in 1931. Its stated purpose was, and is, to make sure that fly-by-night building contractors can't procure federal and federally financed construction projects by undercutting construction wages in the community in which the construction is to take place. By requiring all bidders to pay prevailing wages, the Act puts a premium on good management and high productivity, as the way in which the low bidder can do the job and still make a profit.

An important side benefit has been the way the Act works to strengthen the economic health of the local community. It opens bidding to local contractors, who can compete on fair terms with outsiders. It assures local workers of a measure of stability in an unstable industry. They, in turn, buy goods and services in local stores and offices.

There has been reassuring evidence, lately, that Davis-Bacon really does what it is supposed to: that it maintains prevailing construction wages without adding to inflation. Studies by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology found that requiring the payment of prevailing wages resulted in greater worker productivity because the requirement emphasized good management. Moreover, the most recent study by the Department of Labor indicated that more than half its prevailing wage determinations were below union rates, which themselves grew last year at below the national rate of inflation.

The Davis-Bacon Act, therefore, is a good example of how government can foster free enterprise. It promotes efficiency, stability and local economic health. It helps America work the way it is supposed to.

NUTRO'S NUTRITION CORNER

On The Road To Good Nutrition

Many children are learning to eat better.

NUTRO, the world's first nutrition robot, travels around the country talking to children and parents about good nutrition and better eating habits. He teaches in classrooms, appears on television talk shows and is interviewed by newspaper and television news reporters.*

What weighs 450 pounds, knows his A, B, and C vitamins and may become the country's newest super hero? The answer is NUTRO, The World's First Nutrition Robot, and he's starring in TV shows, newspapers and classrooms all over the country, teaching kids the importance of good nutrition.

NUTRO is a 5'2" man of steel with a colorful costume and flashing eyes. He ambles and rambles while teaching kids about well-balanced diets and proper eating habits.

NUTRO is a creation of Hoffmann-La Roche to help meet the need for nutrition education in schools. His quest this year will take him to 14 cities nationwide, where he will stop to work as nutrition teacher for a day. NUTRO will also guest star on television shows and be interviewed by newspaper reporters.

Although NUTRO is made of steel, his voice and brain are human, and come from nutrition authority David Canty, so even though NUTRO looks like a computer, he's not programmed and can answer any question that students have.

NUTRO's lessons to all "Human Biochemical Units" in each class begin with his favorite robot jokes. He then goes on to lecture, quiz, chat and chuckle with students while giving them solid nutrition information.

Because of his important message, NUTRO has even been chosen by the U.S. Commission of the International Year of the Child as our nation's symbol for every child's right to good nutrition.

Unlike human beings that need food for energy, NUTRO recharges by plugging into his wall socket each night, but he's quick to say that kids need to recharge by choosing foods from the four food groups. They must also make sure to get the necessary amounts of vitamins and minerals each day and be careful not to eat too many unhealthy snacks.

Even though you may not be a man of steel, good nutrition can help you to grow into a healthy person, and that's as much as any human biochemical unit should want.

ENTERTAINING IDEAS

Warming Up For An Indian Summer Party

Many of the best desserts depend upon fresh ingredients. Take advantage of the plump apples, juicy oranges and succulent pears now available, perhaps even in your own backyard. Seasonal bounty can create Apple Orange Bread, a delightful cornucopia of pecan meats, raisins and fresh apples; or Bacardi Glazed Pears, elegant finale to any meal. Topping it all off, Fair and Warmer Cocktails, the perfect Indian Summer toast.

Apple Orange Bread

2 cups sugar
2/3 cup shortening
3 eggs
1/3 cup orange juice
1/3 cup Bacardi dark rum (80 proof)
3 apples, cored and grated (about 2 1/2 cups)
1 1/2 cups ground raisins
1/2 cup finely chopped pecans
3 tablespoons finely grated orange peel
4 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg

In Waring electric mixer bowl, cream sugar and shortening together until light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat well. Combine orange juice, rum, apples, raisins, nuts and orange peel. Resift flour with baking powder, baking soda, salt and nutmeg. Alternately, add fruit and flour mixture to creamed mixture. Spoon into 2 well greased and floured 8½ x 4½ x 2½-inch loaf pans. Bake at 350° F. for 1½ hours. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks. Makes 2 loaves.

Bacardi Glazed Pears

4 fresh pears, halved and cored
1 cup apricot nectar
2 teaspoons grated orange peel
1/4 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup Bacardi dark rum (80 proof)
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
6 whole cloves
1 stick cinnamon
Sweetened whipped cream

Arrange pears in shallow baking dish, cut side up. In saucepan, combine all ingredients, except whipped cream. Bring to boil; reduce heat and simmer for 10 minutes. Pour over pears. Bake at 350° F. for 25 minutes, basting occasionally. Remove cloves and cinnamon. Serve warm with whipped cream. Makes 4 servings.

Fair and Warmer Cocktail

2/3 cups Bacardi dark rum (80 proof)
1/3 cup Italian vermouth
1/4 cup Curacao
Shaved ice

In shaker, combine all ingredients. Shake well. Strain into cocktail glasses. Makes 2 drinks.

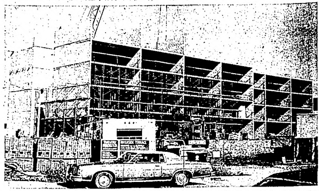
Volume 68 (USPS 627-360) Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota Wednesday, September 26, 1979 Number 76



SETTING OF SECTIONS for the fifth floor of Riverside Terrace apartments in Thief River Falls is underway today as crews of Twin City Construction company work toward a goal of having the six-story building enclosed by mid-November. Bricklayers started their work Monday on the southeast corner of the structure. The entire building is to be faced with brick. When completed the building will have the largest number of stories of any building in the city and will be the tallest building with possible exception of grain elevators. Project foreman Mike Brown indicated that work is progressing approximately on schedule at the present time.

Architect Hired For School Work

With a continuing view toward a construction program to alleviate some of the school district's building problems and high maintenance costs, the board of education for Thief River Falls Monday formally entered into a contract with Armstrong, Torseth, Skold and Rydeen for architectural services.

Over the past several months the district has received information from the firm on a consulting and research basis for analysis of existing facilities and preparation of alternative proposals. A public meeting has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Lincoln high school auditorium to present information and receive questions regarding the alternatives suggested by the board and its citizens committee.

The contract approved by the board Monday provides that the school district will pay an eight per cent charge for services for a Lincoln high school building program if the cost is less than $2 million. If the cost exceeds that amount, the rate will be eight per cent on the first $2 million and seven per cent on any additional amount. The charge will be nine per cent for architecture and engineering on all remodeling.

An hourly rate charge for work done on general improvements was also approved with the rate not to exceed 15 per cent of gross costs.

The board also entered into an agreement with Springsted, Inc., as bonding consultant in the development of school district building needs and authorized Frank Hamerlinck to be the administrative contact with the architect on future building programs.

Jerry Prickett, custodian in the school system for a number of years, was hired as supervisor of buildings and grounds at an annual salary of $15,500 with an increase to $16,500 scheduled after six months.

Also hired by the board Monday were Katherin Campbell, long-term substitute for fourth grade at St. Hilaire; Lois Stensrud, library aide; Mari Jenson, library aide; Rebecca Thorson, clerical aide at the AVTI; and Dorothy Dodds, part-time sales and marketing instructor at the AVTI.

Bernard Myers was transferred from custodian at St. Hilaire to custodian at Washington elementary school as soon as a replacement can be found. Extra-curricular assignments approved included John Kopari as head boys' swimming coach, David Stromlund, Richard Tyler and Peter Tri as elementary boys' basketball coaches and Frank Womack as elementary basketball coach and director.

Authorization was given for the administration to readvertise for two 1980 nine-passenger station wagons, obtain quotations and purchase a used truck for the buildings and grounds department at a cost not to exceed $7,000 and a used van

Concert Ass'n. Will Complete Member Drive

With a limited number of memberships still available for the forthcoming concert season, the Thief River Falls concert association will complete its annual membership campaign this week. Four concerts are on the program this season and admission to each will be by season membership only.

"The board of directors of the association wants everyone to have the opportunity of enjoying this fine entertainment selected for the coming season," states Mrs. William Penning, publicity chairman for the association. "Volunteers will be conducting direct membership sales throughout the week."

Persons new to the community and unfamiliar with the association may obtain information and-or memberships by calling the chamber of commerce office at 681-3720. Others who are not past members and were missed during the mail campaign for membership renewal or by direct contact are also encouraged to contact the chamber of commerce office.

Directors of the association emphasize that it is only through the season membership plan that top caliber artists can be scheduled to perform here. No single concert admissions will be available and the membership will be closed during the concert season.

Individual adult memberships are $13, student memberships only $6 and a limited number of family memberships is available at $37.

Ole E. Engelstad

Elks To Honor Ole Engelstad For Service

Testimonial dinner for Ole Engelstad and his 35 years of service as secretary of the Thief River Falls Elks lodge will be held Saturday evening at the Elks club rooms. Social hour will start at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7:30 with a program to follow.

The event is intended primarily for Elks club members and their wives and invited guests who have been associated with Engelstad's service, especially in his visitation of persons hospitalized at Northwestern hospital here. He has made a practice of conducting regular visits at the hospital for the past 35 years, calling on not only Elks members and their families but other patients as well.

"Voluntary service to the extent it has been provided by Ole Engelstad must be unique in Elkdom and probably in any other organization," stated Bob Jury, exalted ruler of Elks Lodge 1308. "It is entirely appropriate that we set aside this night for a testimonial in his honor, and I encourage all Elks and their ladies to make reservations and be in attendance to give Ole a little of the recognition he so richly deserves."

Tickets for the dinner at $12 per couple are available at the club rooms or from any past exalted ruler of the lodge. Gordon Reierson is ticket chairman.

Also serving on the testimonial dinner committee chaired by Irvin Wilson are Al Christofferson and Glenn Peterson.

FOURTH PLACE TEAM out of 38 entered in horse judging competition at the Minnesota state 4-H club horse show September 16-18 in St. Paul was the Pennington county judging team. Team members (left to right) include Rona Broten and Mark Thune of the Happy Acres 4-H club and Lori Thompson of the Papa Bear 4-H club. As a result of the fourth place finish at the state fairgrounds competition, the team becomes an alternate to the national judging contest. Howard Person, associate county extension agent, is coach of the team.

Center Given $15,500 Grant For Equipment

Ed Opheim, assistant commissioner for the division of vocational rehabilitation (DVR), Minnesota department of economic security, has announced the award of an establishment grant to the occupational development center in Thief River Falls.

The $15,500 grant is one of 16 being given to sheltered workshops throughout the state. The funds represent 80 per cent federal monies and 20 per cent state.

Establishment grants are awarded annually based on priorities determined by DVR. This year the two major priorities were to fund projects to improve building access for disabled persons and increase production capabilities.

Final Decision On Bond Issue Made By Council

Final decision on a proposal to issue commercial revenue bonds for Wagner Corporation for the construction of the Red Owl complex near the K-Mart building, not to exceed $1 million, was made by the Thief River Falls city council at Tuesday's regular meeting.

Lowell Wagner and Larry Carlson, representatives for the Wagner Corporation, attended the meeting. Alderman Bill Penning introduced a resolution to proceed with the project. Following acceptance of the proposal, application would be sent by the city to the Minnesota Department of Commerce for approval of municipal revenue funding prior to the construction of the Red Owl complex. The resolution carried, with six votes in favor, one "no" vote and one abstention. Mayor Bob Carlson voted against the issue and alderman Milton Reierson abstained.

Planning commission recommendations including the Kleinvachter subdivision, zoning, and the recommendation that a retail market analysis be included in the city's comprehensive plan, all carried. Kleinvachter subdivision recommendation pertained to the approved variance request by Don Magner, which involves plotting of land into lots of the land lies within two miles of the city limits. Zoning recommendation referred to an error made in the zoning of Rustad's subdivision, and the council approved the rezoning of the subdivision from R-3 to R-1.

In further discussion at the meeting, Larry McDowell, representing the city of Thief River Falls as assistant city attorney, summarized results of a July 24 yearing conducted in Thief River Falls concerning the installation of a public highway grade crossing on the Greenwood street extension. In order for the procedure to take place, permission has to be granted from the railroad to cross the tracks from Greenwood street west to Pennington avenue.

The hearing examiner at the July 24 meeting had denied the request for the crossing. McDowell paraphrased the examiner further when stating that it would not be feasible to cut the number of trains at the Greenwood crossing (which is necessary if there are more than 30 cars on the track) because of higher costs and terminal delay. The council agreed to consider the recommendation at a later date.

Liquor committee recommendations brought both positive and negative reactions as alderman Penning stated that this was a "touchy issue." First recommendation was to keep the present municipal liquor store on highway 59 south at its present site. Second alternative was the construction of a new store behind

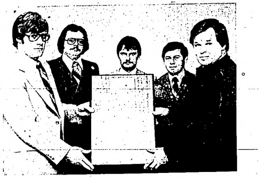
Reierson Won't Seek Reelection To City Council

At least one new member will be elected to the Thief River Falls city council when the city election is held later this fall. Fifth ward alderman Milton Reierson, who has served four terms on the council in two separate two-term periods, has announced that he will definitely not seek reelection this year.

Clayton Restad, presently serving on the council as alderman at large and a resident of the fifth ward, has filed for election as fifth ward alderman. That filing will leave Restad's present at large position up for grabs among non-incumbent candidates.

Joining Restad in filing Tuesday, the first day for filing in the city elections, were Mayor Bob Carlson, first ward alderman Milan Borsheim and third ward alderman Ambrose Wysoski. Councilmen whose terms do not expire this year are second ward alderman O. E. Engelstad and alderman at large Dr. Donald Goodrich.

Filings will remain open through October 8 and affidavits of candidacy may be filed in the city clerk's office from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday during that period. Filing fee is $2.



PACE-SETTER AWARD for participation in the Thief River Falls United Way campaign last year was presented at the kick-off breakfast Monday to the winning team. The award is based on total dollar volume generated by the team as well as number of increased donations over the previous year in the downtown business area. Chris Twomey (left), retail business chairman of the 1978-79 campaign, made the award to John Ihle, camptain of the winning team. Other team members (left to right) are Gary Rux, Jim Rogalla and John Anderson. Team member Glenn Ihle was unable to be present when the photo was taken. The plaque will be used each year to recognize the efforts of a United Way retail business solicitation campaign team.

Guthrie Group To Perform At TRF Elks Club

"Guthrie Players On Tour," a Guthrie theater outreach program, will come to the Elks club in Thief River Falls Friday and Saturday, October 5 and 6 at 8 p.m. Featuring John Ostrander as William Shakespeare and Peter Thoemke as Will Kempe, an actor in Shakespeare's company, the production is entitled "Even As the Sun: A Shakespearean Entertainment."

"Even As the Sun" is an imaginary look into the world of Shakespeare — actor, poet, playwright and theater manager of the Globe theatre — and Will Kempe, the greatest Shakespearean comic actor, in a moment of personal crisis and conflict. Time and change come between these two old friends and professional associates. The play shows these two legendary artists as men, facing a change that forces them to pursue separate careers.

In addition to the performance of "Even As the Sun," Ostrander, Thoemke and stagemanager Jann Iaco will conduct demonstration-workshops.

County Fuel Allocation Cut

Cutback in diesel fuel allocation by 30 per cent to Pennington county may result in curtailed snow removal service this winter, according to Arvid Olson, county engineer. Private driveway and township road plowing will be the first services cut, Olson said.

Dawn Scramstad To Reign Over Goose Festival

Crowned Miss Middle River Sunday afternoon at the pageant held at the Meadowbrook ballroom, Dawn Scramstad will reign over activities of the 1979 goose festival in Middle River this weekend.

Seventeen-year-old Dawn, a senior at Middle River high school, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Scramstad of Middle River. She won the evening gown division of the pageant and sang "The Gypsy" as her talent number. Dawn is a football cheerleader, plays basketball and is on the student council and newspaper staff at the school.

Dawn Scramstad
Miss Middle River

First runner-up in the contest was Mary Sovde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sovde of Greenbush and second runner-up was Dawn Anderson, daughter of Roy and LaVerne Anderson of Middle River.

Weekend events for the sixth annual goose festival, sponsored by the Middle River community club, will begin with the Middle River-Mentor football game Friday at 3 p.m. Demolition derby will follow at 5 p.m. at the east end of Main street, a teen dance will be held in the community center that evening and Bobby Vee will perform at the Meadowbrook ballroom.

Saturday events, which will be highlighted by the 2 p.m. goose festival parade, start at 10 a.m. with kiddie contests in the area to the rear of Berg's store. At noon a helicopter number drop will be held.

Afternoon events in addition to the main parade will include a kiddie parade at 1 p.m., bed races, tug-of-war between men from Middle River and Plummer and arm wrestling competition. Evening entertainment will include a Hunters' ball at the American Legion hall with music by Country Roads and a dance at Meadowbrook with music by "Girls, Girls, Girls".

Flea market will open at 10 a.m. Sunday with dealers from a wide area expected to participate. Community auction will be held at 1 p.m. on the grounds east of the Legion hall. Eight-team women's softball tournament hosted by the Mush-a-retts team of Middle River will start at 9 a.m.

By-Jo carnival will return for the festival and provide rides all three days of the event. Advance tickets at reduced prices are available at First National bank in Middle River.

On Friday evening the Legion auxiliary will serve a ham supper at the Legion hall. On Saturday at the hall the women of Our Savior's Lutheran church of Thief Lake will serve lunches and a noon meal. St. Joseph's Catholic guild will barbecue two pigs to be served Saturday afternoon and evening and several other food concessions will be set up on Main street.

A craft display will be set up by Middle River senior citizens at the community center and the seniors will serve coffee there Saturday and Sunday. The community club will serve food from a chuckwagon fro Sunday's flea market and auction crowds.

PROCLAMATION endorsing the Thief River Falls area United Way campaign and encouraging total community participation was signed Monday by Mayor Bob Carlson as part of the official kick-off of the 1979-80 fund drive. With the mayor is Jan Peterson, chairman of the United Way board. Goal of the campaign this year is $75,000. "Total effort by the volunteer United Way teams and outstanding cooperation and dedication by the community resulted in the organization surpassing its goal last year," Mayor Carlson noted. "Recognition of the services which the United Way provides as it works for all of us, and fair share contributions in accordance with that recognition, should make for another highly successful campaign this year. In strongly encourage full support of the United Way effort."

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Sara Howick-James Blix Marriage Vows Spoken

Marriage vows were exchanged recently at Trinity Lutheran church in this city by Miss Sara Howick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Howick, rural Thief River Falls, and James Blix, son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Blix of Ortonville.

Rev. Berton Hushagen officiated at the double ring ceremony witnessed by about 200 relatives and friends. Mrs. Walt Larson was the organist and Mary Roy, a cousin of the bride, sang "Morning Has Broken," "Sunrise, Sunset," and "The Lord's Prayer."

For the four o'clock ceremony, the altar was graced with bouquets of white gladioli. Highlighting the altar was a wedding candle surrounded by greenery and white bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a gown of white jersey with the molded bodice and cape sleeves enhanced by imported lace embroidered with seed pearls. Matching lace edged her accordion pleated skirt and chapel length train. A beaded Juliet headpiece secured her fingertip veil. She carried a bouquet of white silk roses.

Lynn Barzan of Schererville, Ind., a friend of the bride, was maid of honor. Other attendants were Peg Thompson, Blaine, sister of the groom; Deb Seveland, Plymouth, a friend of the bride; and Claudette Howick, Brookings, S.D., sister-in-law of the bride. All wore mauve jersey gowns styled with blouson tops, cape sleeves and accordion pleated skirts. They carried three red roses, accented with babies' breath.

Flower girls were Dawn and Stephi Thompson, Blaine, nieces of the groom; and Tammi Howick, Brookings, S.D., a niece of the bride. They wore identical, empire fashioned gowns of white chiffon featuring a mauve floral print. The gowns were designed with gathered skirts and puffy sleeves.

Jerry Blix, Wahpeton, N.D., a brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Wayne Thompson, Blaine, a brother-in-law; Ron Vennes, Moorhead, a cousin, and Bruce Howick, Brookings, S.D., a brother of the bride. The ushers were Fred Howick, a brother of the bride; and Rick Habstritt, Bemidji, a cousin of the groom. All wore tan tuxedos with satin lapels, and cream-colored ruffled shirts. The groom's boutonniere was a white silk rose and the attendants' were solitary red silk roses.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Howick selected a mint green jersey gown with accordion pleated skirt and long, full sleeves of a coordinating chiffon. Her corsage was composed of assorted pastel silk flowers. A similar corsage was worn by the groom's mother who wore a blue jersey gown featuring cape sleeves and an accordion pleated skirt.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a dinner in the church parlors for 200 guests. Host and hostesses were Miss Lydia Dahlen and Mr. and Mrs. Orvis Olson, aunts and uncle of the bride. Mrs. Roger Roy, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Lorinzo Eck, aunt of the groom, registered the guests and served the punch.

Highlighting the serving table was a five-tiered chocolate wedding cake iced in white and decorated with mauve roses. Topping the cake, which was made by the bride's sister-in-law, Claudette Howick, was a cluster of three wedding bells. The cake was cut and served by Mrs. David Reed, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Joel Vennes, aunt of the groom. Mrs. Al Haroldson, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Les Lord, aunt of the groom, poured.

Preceding the rehearsal, the evening prior to the wedding, the groom's parents hosted a dinner at the Best Western for the wedding party and the immediate families.

The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school and the University of Minnesota. Prior to her wedding, she was honored at showers in Minneapolis and Thief River Falls. She is currently employed by Hamilton Aunet Electronics, Edina. The groom is a graduate of Fergus Falls high school and is in his last year at the University of Minnesota. He is employed by Albinsons Graphics, Minneapolis.

The couple is at home at 9965 Trenton Lane, Maple Grove. Photo, James Solsten, Thief River Falls.

New Members Welcomed Into Local BPW Club

Four new members were welcomed into the Thief River Falls Business and Professional Women's club at the monthly meeting of the organization held recently at the Elks club.

Admitted were Ami Jesch, secretary at the Elks club; Ann Olson, agent at Thune-Upham associates; Lonnie Kjos of the Ramsey Eye Clinic, and Bonnie Folkedahl, regional manager of Foundation for Health Care Evaluation.

The club's observance of National BPW week, set for October 21-27, was discussed. Also discussed were a club project for the year, and member participation in the BPW Legislative Conference to be held September 29 at Detroit Lakes. The program booklet for the year was reviewed.

An informative program on buying and selling real estate was presented by Jan Kramer of Four Seasons Realty. She was assisted by Val Holmes, who gave her concepts of condominium living. At the conclusion of the meeting, they led a tour of the Belmont Townhouses.

A brief resume of the "Parenting Classes," being offered at Northland Community college and the local AVTI was given by Henrietta Ness.

Preisdent Vicki Erickson presided at the meeting.

Set at Ebenezer Church

Reception for Mr. and Mrs. Monte Haugen will be held Sunday at the Ebenezer Lutheran church, of the Plummer parish.

Hours will be from 1 to 4 p.m.

Relatives and friends are welcome to attend.

Colleen Tina Peters and Dale Bergeron Marry

Miss Colleen Tina Peters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Peters of Plummer, became the bride of Dale Bergeron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Bergeron of Oklee, at a recent wedding at St. Vincent dePaul Catholic church at Plummer.

Rev. Larry Wieseler officiated at the double ring ceremony. Linda Hesse, organist, played the traditional wedding marches and also accompanied Dee Dee Huotari, a friend of the bride, as she sang, "Let Me Be There," before the ceremony; "Wedding Song," after the exchanging of the vows; and "Follow Me," for the recessional.

Vases of pink carnations graced the altar.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a Chantilly lace gown featuring a Queen Anne neckline, bishop sleeves and a fitted bodice laced in front with satin ribbon. Her bouffant skirt with a deep ruffled hemline flowed into a chapel-length train. A headpiece of Chantilly lace, edged with pearls and irridescents, held her mantilla styled veil, bordered with matching lace. She carried a nosegay of pink and white roses, accented with petunias, babies' breath and greenery.

Vicki Konickson, Plummer, a friend of the couple, was the bride's personal attendant.

Maid of honor was the bride's sister, Kim Peters of Plummer. Other attendants were Mary Lasha of this city, sister of the groom, Mary Shetler, city, a friend of the couple; and Fawn Peterson, Plummer, a sister of the bride. Their gowns of pink qiana, were styled with double triangular tiered skirts, fitted bodices with spaghetti straps and sheer pink capelets. They carried three long-stemmed roses on a bed of greenery. Their engraved silver bracelets were gifts from the bride.

Harlan Bergeron of Thompson, N.D., attended his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Paul Lasha, city, brother-in-law of the groom; Paul Curfman, city, a friend, of the groom, and Gene Kalinowski, city, a friend of the couple. The guests were ushered by Duane Tougas, Brooks, and Jim Reinbold, Oklee, friends of the couple. The groom wore an all-white tuxedo with a pink ruffled shirt, accented by the pink rosebuds pinned on his lapel. The other men of the wedding party wore burgandy tuxedos with pink ruffled shirts and white rose boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride wore a pink polyester-floor-length gown featuring a fitted bodice complemented by a double rosebud corsage accented with pink petunias. A similar corsage was worn by the groom's mother, who was attired in a pink gown with princess-styled sleeves.

A reception for 200 guests followed in the church parlors. Host and hostess were Bill and Anne Traxler, Plummer, friends of the couple. Melanie Skjerven, Plummer, a friend of the bride, registered the guests as Terri Offerdahl of this city, and Nancy Carpenter, Plummer, friends of the bride, ladled the punch.

The three-tiered Lady Windermere wedding cake, surrounded by four heart cakes, was enhanced by a double stairway with miniature replicas of the wedding party on the steps. Topping the cake were a miniature bride and groom. The cake was cut and served by Tina Kraemer, Circle Pines, aunt of the bride, and Rena LaCoursiere, Warren, aunt of the groom. Pouring coffee were Helen Kostrzewski, Stephen, aunt of the bride, and Dallas Paridis, Brooks, aunt of the groom.

Waitresses were Jodi Kostrzewski, Cindy and Donna Kasprowicz, and Denise Kostrzewski of Stephen, cousins of the bride. Nancy and Karen Traxler, Plummer, friends of the couple, arranged the gifts.

Following a camping trip to Old Mill State Park, the couple is now at home in this city at 417 Hickory Road, Southtown. The bride is a 1979 graduate of Pershing high school, Plummer, and is employed by Kmart. The groom, a 1974 graduate of the Oklee high school, is employed by Jim Klemmetsen, subcontractor of Woodland Construction. Photo, Don Nordlund, Bagley.

Mickelson and Syltie Vows Spoken at Porter

Miss Paula Renae Mickelson and Harvey Allen Syltie were joined in marriage on Saturday, August 11, at 2 p.m., at the Bethel Lutheran church in Porter.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Roger Mickelson of Goodridge and Mr. and Mrs. Hans Syltie of Porter.

Officiating at the double-ring ceremony were Rev. Dell Shiell of Porter and Rev. Paul Idsteom of New Hope, uncle of the bride. Organist was Norma Dovre, Porter, a friend of the bride. For the processional, she played "Trumpet Voluntary," with Bill Spurlock of Manchester, Iowa, brother-in-law of the groom as oboeist; and Don Adams, St. Paul, uncle of the groom, as violinist. During the ceremony, Don Norlin of Canby, a friend of the couple, sang, "Greatest of These is Love," and "We Three Are One."

Arrangements of white and ice-blue pompons on the altar formed the chancel setting.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a sleeveless, white qiana gown with Venise lace tracing the fitted waistline, stand-up collar and the gracefully draped skirt that flowed into a cathedral-length train. A headband of matching lace held her elbow-length veil. She carried a cascade of white roses and carnations accented with ice-blue babies' breath and English ivy.

Angie Frey of Grimes, Iowa attended her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmaid was Lesa Hoseck of Canby, a friend. They wore identical, floor-length gowns of ice-blue qiana featuring halter tops with cowl necklines. They carried bouquets of pompons in white and ice-blue.

The bride's personal attendant was Pam Simonson of Fosston, a friend.

Attending the groom as best man was Don DeWerff, Ellinwood, Kans., a friend. Mark Syltie, Porter, a cousin of the groom, was groomsman, and Walt Syltie, II, Porter, another cousin and Stuart Mickelson, Goodridge, a brother of the bride, served as ushers. All wore silver chalice tuxedos.

The mother of the bride wore a sleeveless gown of a blue floral print accented by a corsage of white carnations surrounding a white rose. A similar corsage was worn by the groom's mother who wore an aqua blue, elbow-length, floor-length gown.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception in the church parlors for 150 relatives and friends. Centering the serving table was a four-tiered wedding cake, iced in white and decorated with cascading ice-blue flowers. A golden Christogram graced the top. The cake was cut and served by Shirley Eckstein, Red Lake Falls, aunt of the bride, and Orla Christensen, Ellendale, aunt of the groom. Ruth Idstrom, New Hope, and Margaret McClellan, Edina, godmothers of the bride and groom, respectively, poured the coffee.

Pam Simonson registered the guests as Harold Mickelson, brother of the bride, and Becky Syltie, cousin of the groom, ladled the punch. Waiters and waitresses were Neil and Jill Dovre and Ricky and Shelly Anderson, friends of the couple. At the gift table were Timothy and Thomas Mickelson, brothers of the bride.

For traveling on the wedding trip to Western Wisconsin, the bride wore a white and blue dress topped by a white vest.

A second reception for the bride and groom is scheduled for Saturday at 8 p.m. The event, open to all friends and relatives, will be held at the Telemarken Lutheran church, rural Goodridge.

The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school, Thief River Falls and Moorhead State University. She is first grade teacher at Canby elementary in Canby. The groom is a graduate of Canby high school and the University of Minnesota, St. Paul. He is engaged in farming, south of Porter, where the couple will make their home. Two Bergeron Brothers Die Two Days Apart

Two Bergeron brothers, Elmer, 67, of Seattle, Wash., and Albert, 92, of Valley Home, died this past week, just two days apart. Elmer died Friday at Seattle, and Albert died Sunday at Northwestern hospital.

Elmer Bergeron

Mass of the Resurrection for Elmer Bergeron was held today (Wednesday) at 10:30 a.m., at St. Francis Xavier Catholic church at Oklee with Rev. Keough Patnode as celebrant. Interment was in the church cemetery. The Petterson Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Elmer J. Bergeron was born Feb. 24, 1912 near Brooks to Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bergeron. He grew to manhood in that area and later farmed in Lambert township, Red Lake county. In 1937, he moved to Oregon and since then had lived there and at Washington.

He was married in 1932 at Brooks to Viola Guerard.

Surviving are two sons and one daughter, Russell Bergeron, Milwaukee, Wis., Harold Bergeron and Mrs. Marie Kurczewski, both of Cudahy, Wis., and seven grandchildren.

Albert Bergeron

Mass of the Resurrection for Albert Bergeron is scheduled for Thursday at 11 a.m. at St. Francis Xavier Catholic church at Oklee. Rev. Patnode will officiate. Interment will be in the church cemetery. A prayer service and recitation of the rosary are scheduled for eight o'clock tonight (Wednesday) at the Petterson Funeral home at Oklee, where the body is reposing.

Pallbearers will be Harlan, Dale, Lloyd and Randy Bergeron, Rick LaCoursiere and Jerome Surprenant.

Albert J. Bergeron was born Jan. 12, 1887 in Lambert township, Red Lake county. He farmed in the Oklee area until 1962, when he moved into Oklee. For the past few years, he had been a resident of Valley Home, Thief River Falls.

He was married on Aug. 18, 1924 to Laida Fournier. She died in 1971.

He is survived by two sons: Willard Bergeron, Oklee, and Donald of Milwaukee, Wis.; two daughters: Mrrs. Larry (Rena) LaCoursiere, Warren, and Mrs. John "Bud" (Bernadine) Surprenant, Milwaukee, Wis.; 29 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Two sons preceded him in death.

Also surviving the Bergeron brothers are a brother, Alphonse Bergeron, McIntosh and six sisters: Mrs. Ed (Antoinette) Gibeau, Mrs. Sam (Evelyn) Gibeau and Mrs. Alexine Turgeon, all of Oklee; Mrs. George (Mary) Phillippon, Winnipeg, Canada; Mrs. Art (Rose) Dufault, Argyle; and Cecile Bergeron, Crookston.

One brother and a sister preceded them in death.

Workshop On Gifted Slated At Moorhead

One-day workshop designed to help school districts and teachers develop special programs for gifted and talented students is scheduled at Moorhead state university Thursday, November 1.

Called "Celebration," the workshop recognizes recently passed legislation funding programs for gifted students in Minnesota schools.

Rep. Rodney Searle, speaker, Minnesota house of representatives, will deliver the keynote address during the program's noon luncheon. Searle, active in promoting gifted education for the past 15 years, is a charter member of the state advisory board of the gifted.

Nine seminars along with an afternoon program in promoting and writing gifted programs are included in the workshop, scheduled to run from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the university's Comstock memorial union.

Seminar topics will examine the role of parent groups, administrators and school boards in developing gifted programs and how small school districts can set up their own programs. Other sessions will look at successful teaching strategies and model programs in gifted education and how to identify gifted children in the classroom.

Afternoon writing workshop, aimed at school district teams, will cover public relations and community involvement in gifted programs and how to plan and develop them to suit individual school districts.

Cost of the workshop is $20 a person, or $45 for a team of three people from one school district. Teams may include teachers, administrators, members of school boards or parent groups. Price includes lunch.

To register, write Celebration, Education Department, Moorhead State University, Moorhead, MN, 56560, or call the university's education department at (218) 236-2612. The program is limited to 100 people and registrations are due by October 24.

Senator's Bill On Recreation Week Adopted

Calling on local and state officials to join the federal government in recognizing America's recreational opportunities, the Senate last week designated June 1-7, 1980, "National Recreation and Parks Week." The resolution naming the week was introduced by Senator Dave Durenberger of Minnesota and passed by unanimous consent of the Senate.

Durenberger's resolution urges local and state officials to involve citizens in "appropriate ceremonies and activities" to focus attention on the nation's park and recreation systems.

"Passage of this resolution and subsequent attention to it by selected executive agencies will lead to improved recreation and park opportunities for most Americans. It will expand the public's understanding of the physical and mental health benefits potentially available through recreation, and it will encourage public use of park and recreation systems," Durenberger said during his introduction of the resolution.

Durenberger praised the people of Minnesota for taking the lead in developing parks and recreation areas. "Minnesotans have always had a commitment to outdoor recreation and it has paid off by contributing to out high quality of life," he said.

Good Weather Pushes Crops To Maturity

With good weather during the past two weeks, Minnesota crops are closer to maturity and are much less prone to frost damage, according to the Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service. Another week of dry, sunny weather should push row crop development far enough so that any frost damage would be minimal except in some low spots and very late planted fields.

Unfortunately, cool, cloudy weather in August reduced the amount of sunshine available for photosynthesis during the important development stages following pollination. Since daily solar energy and temperatures drop sharply in September, this season's potential crop yields have been affected and will not fully recover from the August weather.

While recent dry, sunny weather improved field conditions, some fields are still too wet for any field operations. Topsoil moisture continues surplus in some southwestern and south central counties. Supplies are short in most western central counties but adequate elsewhere.

About 79 per cent of the state's corn crop is denting and 14 per cent is mature. Around 12 per cent of the acreage intended for silage has been chopped.

Forty-eight per cent of the soybean crop is shedding leaves and approximately 11 per cent is mature. A few fields have been combined but full scale harvesting will not start until after the first of October.

Except for a few scattered localities, farmers have completed combining of oats and barley. Spring wheat harvest is also nearing completion with 90 per cent of the crop combined.

Most flax in southern Minnesota has been combined and harvest is in full swing in the northern areas. For the state, nearly one-half of the acreage has been combined.

Digging of potatoes is making favorable headway with 30 per cent of the crop dug. Sweet corn harvest is now 85 per cent completed. A few sunflower fields have been combined.

Seventy per cent of the 1980 winter wheat and 65 per cent of the rye has been seeded. Baling of the season's last hay crops made good progress during the week. Farm fuel remained mostly adequate to tight.

During fiscal year 1978, a major reorganization consolidated all federal contract compliance functions into the Labor Department's Office of Federal Contract Compliance, according to the Department of Labor's 66th annual report.

Cancer Service Receives 28 County Calls

In figures released September 15, Minnesota cancer information service supervisor Debra C. Minde reported to the Minnesota American cancer society division that the CIS answered over 9,850 calls from Minnesotans between January 1, 1977 and July 31, 1979.

"We've talked to people from each of the 87 counties in Minnesota, including 28 from Pennington county, Mrs. Minde announced. "Our statistics show that women make three out of every four calls to us. We think this percentage reflects women's roles in family life." Marshall county residents made 20 calls, Red Lake seven and Roseau eight.

The questions answered by the statewide-toll-free telephone service, according to Mrs. Minde, stretch across a wide range of cancer problems.

- Do any farm herbidices cause cancer?
- Is there a suntan lotion that really will protect against skin cancer?
- How can I tell if the new lump on my teenager's leg might mean cancer?
- I've found a lump in my breast, but I'm afraid the doctor's going to order one of those breast x-rays called a mammogram.
- Why is my mother still so tired? She's getting cancer chemotherapy.
- Is there any place to get home care help for my husband?

These and hundreds of similar questions are answered in confidence by Mrs. Minde and her staff of a dozen specially trained volunteers.

"In Pennington county, for example," Mrs. Minde reported, "the cancer information service received 28 calls during this period; 27 were from women and only one from a man. Questions about breast cancer, colorectal cancer, financial aid, chemotherapy, radiation hazards, bone cancer and liver cancer were asked most frequently by Pennington residents."

Mrs. Minde summarized her progress report by noting that the cancer information service, a program of the Minnesota cancer council, is open weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. Over 90 different pamphlets and reprints about cancer and cancer-related subjects are available at no cost from the service, she said.

The toll-free number for the service is 1-800-582-5262.

Local Student In Production At Dickinson

Director Jean Waldera has announced the cast list for "Tartuffe", the first major theatre production of the season at Dickinson state college. The play will be presented October 26-28 in Dorothy Stickney auditorium.

Among cast members in the production is Steve Easton, Thief River Falls, who will play the part of Damis.

SERVING LINE set up in the St. Hilaire fire hall was active throughout most of the evening Saturday as the St. Hilaire commercial club hosted its annual appreciation night. Barbecued beef and beans were served by volunteer workers to several hundred people who attended the event.

Classic French comedy by Moliere is set in the late 17th century and centers around the activities of Tartuffe, also known as "The Imposter" or "The Hypocrite". Lead character is a seemingly pious, saintly man, who is, in reality, a greedy lecher.

Energy Program At Goodridge On October 10

Mike Kirkwood

A Minnesota 4-H program to arouse energy awareness in junior and senior high students will be presented at Goodridge high school on Wednesday, October 10, reports Pennington county extension agent Deborah Matero.

The "Energy Today and Tomorrow" show is sponsored by four Minnesota power companies and the state 4-H and youth development program of the University of Minnesota agricultural extension service. The show's host, Mike Kirkwood, taught junior high social studies and history before joining the state 4-H staff in June of 1979.

"Through this lively, colorful show, Kirkwood helps youth develop a constructive attitude toward energy," Midd Matero says. "He helps them realize how valuable it is, its rising expense, and how we may be able to alter our energy usage while maintaining our standard of living."

Kirkwood received his bachelor of science degree in social studies at St. Cloud state university in 1970. He has also served as a photographer for the state 4-H office.

The teacher took part in an intensive training program at Oak Ridge Associated university (ORAU) in Tennessee from June through August this year. Orau supplied the basic script and stage props, while Kirkwood added situations that are unique or especially important to Minnesotans.

"We want to provide as much information as possible so young consumers can make informed decisions on their energy use as they mature into adults," the extension agent adds. "This program will grab their attention and provide that information."

Funding of the program comes from Northern States Power company, Interstate Power company, Otter Tail Power company and Minnesota Power and Light.

Marshall Co. Bus Schedule Is Announced

Marshall county bus schedule for the month of October has been announced for the bus program sponsored by the Tri-Valley Opportunity Council, Inc. Further information on the schedule or the program can be obtained by calling the Newfolden senior center at 874-6900 between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Schedule for Monday, October 1, shows stops at Middle River at 9 a.m., Gatzke at 9:20 a.m., Grygla at 9:40 a.m. and Goodridge at 10 a.m., enroute to Thief River Falls.

Trip to Warren is planned for October 3, with stops set at Strandquist at 9 a.m., Newfolden at 9:30 a.m. and Viking at 9:50 a.m.

October 4, the bus will travel to Thief River Falls, with passengers boarding at Middle River at 9 a.m., Newfolden at 9:20 a.m., and Holt at 9:45 a.m.

Departure times October 17 are at Strandquist at 9 a.m., Newfolden at 9:30 a.m., and Viking at 9:50 a.m., with a trip to Warren slated.

Bus will travel to Thief River Falls October 18, picking up passengers at Newfolden at 9 a.m., Middle River at 9:20 a.m., and Holt at 9:45 a.m.

Stops will be made October 22 at Middle River at 9 a.m., Gatzke at 9:20 a.m., and Grygla at 9:40 a.m., with Thief River Falls as the destination.

Route will begin in Newfolden October 23 at 9 a.m., followed by stops at Thief River Falls at 9:30 a.m., and St. Hilaire at 9:45 a.m., enroute to Grand Forks.

Leaving Strandquist at 8:40 a.m. October 25, the bus will make stops at Newfolden at 9 a.m., Viking at 9:20 a.m., and Holt at 9:45 a.m., with Thief River Falls as the final destination.

Please let your bus coordinator know if you plan to go on the bus. If there are no passengers, he may not stop.

Eye Problems Often Show Up During School

Weeks between the first day of school and the first report card are a good time for parents to look for symptoms of vision problems in their children, says the president of the Minnesota Optometric association.

Dr. Burton Skuza says a child's behavior and posture while doing schoolwork often give clues signaling the need for a complete vision exam. "The symptoms parents spot help us determine the need for special tests to uncover vision perception problems not easily diagnosed with a routine vision examination," he said.

Symptoms parents should look for include frequent clumsiness; difficulty in reading or doing other close work; a short attention span for the child's age; frequent blinking; complaints of nausea, dizziness or headaches after reading of doing other close work; a tense potision when looking at object far away or close up; tilting the head noticeably to one side when reading; holding books close to the eyes; frowning or scowling; and continued avoidance of reading and close work in favor of outside activities.

"All children probably show one or more of these symptoms occasionally but the child who exhibits them continually is the one who may need professional vision care", Dr. Skuza said.

He added that parents should not wait for a child to complain about not seeing well, since most children do not know they have a vision problem. They assume everyone sees the way they do.

Dr. Skuza also advised not to rely totally on school vision screening test results. Generally, the school screening checks only the ability to see clearly at a distance. Vision skills needed for reading, for example, may not be checked.

For good preventive vision care, parents would do well to have their child's vision examined annually, he said.

Hot Lunch Menu At Goodridge

Monday, Oct. 1: Barbecue on bun; chips; vegetable sticks; pickles; pudding; milk.

Tuesday, Oct. 2: Chicken vegetable soup; minced ham sandwiches; crackers; bananas; milk.

Wednesday, Oct. 3: Lasagna; parmesan cheese; green beans; pears; bread; milk.

Thursday, Oct. 4: Pancakes; hot maple syrup; eggs; orange juice; applesauce; milk.

Friday, Oct. 5: Fish burgers; tartar sauce; jello with fruit; chips; milk.

Senator Seeks Continuation Of Amtrak Routes

Senator Dave Durenberger states that a lawsuit filed by the state of Minnesota to block the cutback of Amtrak service is "welcome assistance in the fight I've been carrying on in Congress to save Minnesota's trains."

Durenberger said he was pleased with Minnesota attorney general Warren Spannaus' announcement that he would join the state of Kansas to fight proposed reductions in Amtrak service.

"I've consistently maintained that there is sufficient need and public support for two Amtrak routes in Minnesota," said the senator. "The North Coast Hiawatha and the Empire Builder have been operating at near capacity for several months and have recorded two of the highest ridership increases in the country. Yet, Amtrak wants to eliminate the Hiawatha and reduce service on the Empire Builder.

"Trains that Amtrak is keeping in other parts of the country can't match this record. I don't blame the public for questioning the decision to cut service in Minnesota while trains elsewhere with weaker performance records and less support are being maintained.

"People are upset with bureaucratic decisions made by computers or based on political trade-offs," Durenberger said.

Durenberger worked closely with Minnesota officials to gather and prepare the background information that forms the basis of the lawsuit. He said he devoted so much effort to preparing the material because "it is important that we settle the question of Amtrak service outside of the political arena. Amtrak service must be determined by what the communities need and the public will support.

"Trains are a vital part of out transportation future. The people and communities of Minnesota recognize their economic and energy-saving importance. I hope Congress and the rest of the country join us in that recognition," Durenberger said.

MN. Production Of Dairy Goods Increases In '79

Manufacture of American cheese is higher by nearly 11 per cent and ice cream output is up by nearly eight per cent, more than offsetting an almost nine per cent reduction in butter production by Minnesota's dairy industry during the first seven months of 1979 compared to last year, agriculture commissioner Mark Seetin reported recently.

Minnesota's production of manufactured dairy products for the January-July period this year included 254,225,000 pounds of American cheese, 102,565,000 pounds of butter and over 18.7 million gallons of ice cream.

Cheese manufactured topped last year by almost 24.4 million pounds. Ice cream production was up by nearly 1.4 million gallons. Butter production dropped by less than 9.6 million pounds.

Based on national per capita consumption of dairy products during 1978 Minnesota's production this year thru July supplied the needs of over 13 million butter consumers, over 8.5 million cheese consumers, and 7.4 million ice cream consumers.

Only neighboring Wisconsin leads Minnesota in producing and processing dairy products for this nation's consumers.

Sgt. Hruby In Exercise With U.S. Marines

Marine Sgt. Michael D. Hruby, son of Richard D. and Evelyn K. Hruby of route 4, Thief River Falls, recently participated in exercise "Fortress Gale". He is a member of 3rd Battalion, 4th Marines, 3rd Marine division, based on Okinawa.

The two-week exercise conducted on Okinawa and in its surrounding waters involved more than 40,000 U.S. sailors and marines, 20 ships and 280 aircraft. Training stressed amphibious landing techniques and operations ashore under various simulated combat conditions.

The 7th Fleet amphibious task force conducted an amphibious landing on Okinawa while the naval forces sharpened their anti-air, anti-surface and anti-submarine warfare capabilities.

A graduate of Lincoln senior high school, Hruby joined the marine corps in June of 1976.

Solar Heating Basics Covered In MSU Course

A non-credit course in "Solar Heating Basics" will be offered Wednesday evenings at Moorhead state university beginning October 9. Classes will meet for six weeks from 7 to 9 p.m. in room 104 of Hagen Hall.

Intended for people with little or no knowledge of solar heating, the course will look at some of the factors to consider in buying or building a solar heating system, from insulation and location of the home to types and designs of solar units.

Examples of existing systems will be presented in the course, taught by Dennis Mathiason, a professor of chemistry at Moorhead state. He'll also talk about the advantages and disadvantages of certain systems and explain designs and construction.

Preregistration is required. For information, call the Moorhead state division of continuing education at 236-2181.

Funds Available For Special Transportation

Federal funds are available from the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) to provide transportation services for elderly and handicapped persons, according to commissioner Richard P. Braun.

Private nonprofit organizations may apply by October 31 for part of the $348,000 in federal funds to purchase vehicles equipped to transport elderly and handicapped persons.

Applying agency must provide 20 per cent of the vehicle cost and all of the operating expenses, Braun said. Federal funding is 80 per cent of vehicle cost. Applications, including guidelines, are now being mailed to private nonprofit organizations statewide.

For further information, contact the Mn-DOT Office of Transit Administration, 416 Transportation Building, St. Paul, MN 55155 or phone (612) 296-7590.

Geoff Dagg To Study Under Exchange Plan

One hundred sixty students are participating in St. Olaf college overseas study programs during the fall term.

They are or will be situated in England, Germany, Norway and various combinations of countries in Africa, the Middle East, and the Far East including Japan, India, and the Republic of China.

Geoffrey Dagg, Thief River Falls, will take part in the Konstanz program. This program, which runs from August 1 or September 1 through February 5 (term) or June 30 (Term), will permit students to take four courses per term at the university of Konstanz in southern Germany.

The university term is preceded by intensive language study in a Goethe language institute. St. Olaf students are housed in Konstanz university dormitories and a member of the university faculty serves as adviser in all areas of academic life, including course selection, and arranges a variety of extra-curricular activities.

St. Olaf programs in England are situated at Manchester college in Oxford, Lancaster University, Oxford and Cambridge. Program at Lancaster is primarily for natural science students, while the others concentrate on the humanities. Programs in Germany are largely language learning programs and the programs in African and Asian countries deal with the culture of the host country or area.

The Opal and the Tourmaline

The Opal and the Tourmaline
GENUINE BIRTHSTONE FOR OCTOBER
Opals are only found where once there had been an inland sea. It is as though the dying sea had left this vivid gem in memory of rainbows that arched above it. Some feared the power of the Opal, which was reputed to make its owner invisible so that he could escape the roving eye of misfortune. Like its companion birthstone, the Opal signifies hope.
The Tourmaline also belongs to October. It is another attractive birthstone for jewelry.

Hearing Loss Least Publicized Hazard

Hearing loss due to noise exposure is one of the least publicized, yet one of the most common, occupational hazards. For example, the federal government spends more money on hearing loss claims than on any other occupational hazard, excluding claims filed in the military services.

Yet industrial workers who wouldn't report for work without a hardhat and steel-toed shoes commonly forget another simple but vital safety device — ear plugs.

Data compiled by the Minnesota pollution control agency's (MPCA) noise section, based on hearing screening conducted at the 1978 Minnesota state fair, provides more evidence of the far-reaching effects of occupational noise. The survey of 1,083 fairgoers showed that partial hearing loss was more common among persons who had been exposed to high noise levels in their job, than those who had not.

Occupational breakdown among those tested also showed that the hearing thresholds of persons with military service were far inferior to those without (76 per cent of those with military service reported that they had been subjected to loud noise), and that male farmers' hearing thresholds were poorer than those of the total male population.

Of the survey population, 22 per cent had served in the military, while those engaged in farming included nine per cent of the total survey group, and 14 per cent of the males surveyed.

Before having their hearing tested, the subjects were given a questionnaire on personal data, occupational history and general noise exposure information. When questioned before testing, a majority of the subjects indicated they did not think they had a serious hearing impairment. Fifty-two per cent considered their hearing to be good, 43 per cent fair, and only five per cent rated their hearing as poor.

Thus the survey sample was not heavily biased by persons having their hearing tested only because they suspected a hearing loss, according to MPCA officials who planned and administered the tests.

Hearing study also showed that women had better hearing than men at most frequency levels, and that the left ear proved worse than the right ear in almost all cases.

Hearing loss was most common in the high frequency range. The middle age categories (25 to 55 years) showed hearing threshholds dropping markedly from 3,000 to 6,000 hertz, the improving again at a higher frequency, 8,000 hertz. The older age categories also showed a "dip" in the 3,000 to 6,000 hertz range, but did not improve at 8,000 hertz.

Persons with occupational noise exposure showed a greater drop from 3,000 to 6,000 hertz, and also showed a greater difference between left and right ears. It was also noted that the difference in hearing threshold levels between men and women diminishes considerably when persons with occupational noise exposure are exlcuded. The3,000 to 6,000 hertz dip was pronounced in all categories of job exposure, but tended to be less severe for those with less than five and more than 30 years of exposure.

Thirty-three percent of the population tested felt that their current jobs were noisy. The type of noise most often cited was heavy industrial and-or construction equipment (21 per cent), followed by conversation (18 per cent); office equipment (12 per cent), followed by conversation (18 per cent); farm machinery (nine per cent); and transportation equipment (six per cent).

Thirty-four per cent of the survey population said they had at some time worked at a noisy job, not including those reporting current noisy jobs. The occupations most often cited as being noisy were computer operator, laborer, farmer, printer, machine operator, mechanic, factory worker, heavy equipment operator, construction worker and military service.

Persons whose tests showed serious hearing problems were advised to seek medical attention. All those tested were given a copy of the audiogram showing their test results, a pair of earplugs and a "no noise" button.

Hearing screening project, conducted by the MPCA and state health department with help from some outside volunteers, was continued at the recently-concluded 1979 state fair, and proved quite popular with fairgoers, some of whom waited as long as 2½ hours to have their hearing checked. Fifty-four per cent more people were tested at this year's fair, a total of 1,672 men, women and children.

Results of this year's testing will be computerized to provide more date on hearing levels, and people's knowledge of and attitudes toward noise and hearing loss will also be analyzed.

Al Perez, chief of the MPCA's noise section, and staff member Jane Chinowsky, who helped plan and administer the screening, said the project also exposed some common myths about noise and hearing loss.

"Even people who knew that noise can damage your hearing didn't know that there is nothing you can do to cure hearing loss, Perez said. "Also, some people who have noisy jobs think they can't wear ear protection because they won't be able to hear the person working next them. But they would be able to, because by wearing ear plugs, you lower both noises by the same amount."

"A lot of people didn't even know that there are such things as noise protectors," Perez said.

Testing also showed hearing loss among a number of children as young as 10 years old, Perez said, likely caused by noise from recreational vehicles such as motorbikes and snowmobiles. "We took the opportunity to advise them to protect them from further damage," Perez said.

In the questionnaire used at this year's fair, people were asked to list the sources of noise that bothered them the most. The results will also be used to analyze the hearing performance of those who said they are bothered by noise, and those who said they are not, and also the respective hearing performances of those who rated their hearing as good, fair or poor, according to Chinowsky.

The data will also ebe used to determine how hearing loss affects people in their jobs, family life and social life.

Perez and Chinowsky said they and other MPCA and health department officials hope that the hearing screening project can be continued in future years.

It is estimated that the economic loss resulting from pedestrain accidents is over 200 million dollars annually.

Garden Valley Plans Raises In Phone Rates

Adjustment in rates for Garden Valley telephone service — the second increase for residential subscribers since 1951 — will be made on subscribers' bills beginning in October. The company has announced that one-party rates will be increased 95 cents per month for residential service and $1.65 per month for business subscribers.

Garden Valley general manager Lawrence Ware stated that "based on the cooperative's current level of total patronage billed, including long distance toll, the projected monthly increase of $12,300 will add less than four per cent to members' bills.

"Although the company's average investment for each subscriber has grown from $144 in 1951 to $1,436 last year, Garden Valley's rates have been increased only twice for businesses — and just one time previously for residential service — in over 28 years. During the period of 1951 to 1978," Ware noted, "the consumer price index was up more than two and one-half times (156 per cent), while one-party residential telephone rates increased only 23 per cent — less than one-sixth of the rate of inflation."

Garden Valley, the largest telephone cooperative in Minnesota, presently provides service within 24 exchanges for more than 17,000 telephones. The company's home office is located in Erskine.

National Car Pool Saves Gas For Members

Sharing a ride from coast to coast and from points in between has become as simple as dialing a toll-free 800 number, according to the automotive information council, and pooling is a great way to conserve the nation's fuel.

With that phone call, a person who wants a ride or a rider tells the operator the point of origin and destination and desired dates, and in a few seconds the computer provides the names and phone numbers of those planning the same trip, or portions of it.

Membership in this unusual service, operated by National Car Pool association, costs $25 for six months, $40 for a year or $125 for a lifetime wanderer. Non-members can use the service for a one-way trip fee of $15.

Each passenger and the driver agree to share expenses.

The association set up 100,000 referrals last year and it brags that it has never had a crime. It also says its service has saved about 1.5 billion gallons of gasoline since it was started seven years ago.

The application form asks such questions as tobacco use, lifestyle, leanings and other questions — for which answers are optional I in an attempt to match up those who might be most compatible on a long trip. It also suggests that the parties who may share the ride get together before the trip to discuss ground-rules and to share proper identification.

Whereas the share-a-ride concept first appealed to servicemen, students and the retired, the spectrum has broadened to include everyone, says Ray Orsini of National Car Pool.

The organization also has set up a pooling effort for sharing rides on private airplanes, and even yachts.

Membership forms can be obtained by calling 800-547-0333 or writing to Box 40303, Portland, Ore. 97240.

Stardom Comes Early To Young TRF Resident

Stardom came early for Adam Quigley, two and one-half year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Quigley of Thief River Falls, when his picture appeared on the cover of "For Your Information," a publication of the United hospital in Grand Forks.

The book is published once a year and is distributed to patients in the hospital. Grandparents of Adam Quigley are Mr. and Mrs. Irving Swanson, Thief River Falls, and Mrs. Anna Quigley, Sioux Falls, S.D. Adam was a patient at the hospital at the time the photo was taken.

Energy Funds Available On Congress' O.K.

Senator Rudy Boschwitz said today he had received clarification about the date or release of money to help with high energy costs and was pleased to learn that the funds can be distributed as soon as they're approved by Congress.

"Many in Minnesota," explained the Senator, "were under the impression that the special funds could not be released 'til January 1. Obviously, that's too late to be of much help for a good part of Minnesota's heating season.

"However, the community services administration (CSA), which administers the 'crisis intervention program,' has responded to my query and tells us that the delay of release 'til January which occurred last year was due to a lag in Congressional approval.

"Actually, the funds can be released as soon as Congress approves the appropriations bill in which they're included."

Boschwitz repeated the need for ugency in passing that appropriations bill and said that if passage were delayed, he would seek a way to introduce a "continuing resolution" in the Senate.

Such a measure, he explained, would extend funding on an interim basis for those programs not freshly funded by October 1, when the next fiscal year begins.

A "continuing resolution" failed to pass in the House of Representatives Wednesday, and Boschwitz earlier criticized the House for its failure to get the energy assistance funds moving.

Transporting Our Alaskan Oil

The need for additional means of transporting Alaskan crude oil to other parts of the country for refining is exemplified by the fact that Alaskan oil production currently exceeds West Coast refining capabilities by approximately 500,000 barrels per day. During the U.S.-Canadian Interparliamentary Group meeting we discussed ways in which this problem could be resolved.

Originally, the U.S. was considering a proposal by Standard Oil of Ohio to construct a Pacific-Texas pipeline but his idea has since been put on the shelf and four major alternative proposals are being considered.

One is the Northern Tier route which I favor. Under this plan oil would be transported by tanker from Valdez, Alaska, to Port Angeles, Washington. From this point, the crude would begin a 1568 mile journey by pipeline to Clearbrook, Minnesota. The project involves a new deep water port and terminal facility in Puget Sound at Port Angeles and a pipeline with a potential capacity of 933 million barrels of oil per day. Officials estimate construction would take two years at an estimated cost of $1.4 billion.

The Northern Tier route is the most attractive alternative, in my opinion, because it offers the greatest transportation capacity and possibly provides the largest incentive to increase exploration and production. Potential production capacity in Alaska has been estimated at 2 million barrels per day and possibly as high as 4 million, if there are additional discoveries.

The second proposal is the Trans-Mountain route which would be designed to transport oil by tanker to Port Angeles before routing it by pipeline to Edmonton, Alberta, where it would enter existing lines into Montana and Minnesota. The use of existing Canadian pipelines has been considered, but technical difficulties make their use unfeasible. Therefore, the current plan calls for using existing right of way to construct a new pipeline alongside existing lines. Capacity is estimated at 352 million barrels a day, and the cost is unknown.

A third proposal, submitted by the Foothills Pipleline Company, suggests an overland route connecting the existing Alyeska Pipeline in Alberta to existing pipelines running from Edmonton. The cost would range from $1.33 billion to $1.55 billion depending on which route is chosen.

The final alternative is the Kitimat proposal. This idea involves shipping oil by tanker from Valdez to Kitimat, British Columbia, and then by pipeline to existing pipelines in Edmonton, Alberta. The Canadian National Energy Board has rejected this proposal and it apparently will not receive further consideration.

Canadian sentiment favors the Foothills route, primarily because it involves the greatest amount of construction in Canada and it would provide the largest boost to that nation's economy. It also involves less environmental hazards to Canada since it does not involve shipment of oil by tankers.

A few of my colleagues agree with the Canadians that the Foothills proposal, even though it may be the most expensive, is the best, but I maintain my faith in the Northern Tier route. They contend that expanded facilities at Port Angeles and increased shipping in Puget Sound present unnecessary environmental risks and, therefore, they are not able to support the Northern Tier. I do not think, however, that this argument is valid since the U.S. is currently transporting 9 million barrels per day by tanker to the West Coast without any major environmental mishaps on record.

Representatives from the U.S. and Canada fully understand the urgency of working together to rationalize our oil transportation problems and develop a coherent, workable transportation policy. We cannot maximize our refining capabilities and reach production goals without constructing one of these alternatives. The decision as to which route the United States will choose now lies with President Carter, and it appears likely he will choose the Northern Tier.

Council Okays Bonds To Build Red Owl Store

the present one, and to eventually phase out the existing store for use as parking or other needed space. Maximum budget figure for the recommendation, set at $300,000, does not include costs such as those for parking area, stated Doug Stewart, city engineer. Presently, the existing building occupies 1,800 square feet of space. Space occupied by the new building, if constructed, would be 9,000 square feet.

"We have to have firm numbers on this particular site," alderman Penning said. "We can't possibly solve the problem with just one alternative." No definite action was taken on the recommendations, as council members agreed to proceed at a later date, when more definite costs would be determined.

Thief River Falls skating club requested waiver of the fee of $75 a day for the use of the sports arena October 7 for the Jose Cole circus. Council members waived the rental fee.

Bids were opened at 1:30 p.m. yesterday for the repair of the water treatment plant roof in Thief River Falls. Council members accepted the $16,425 bid from the Hjelle Roofing company of Newfolden for repair work on the roof.

In other council proceedings, members accepted the grand agreement for the Airport Development Aid Project (ADAP) funds not to exceed $120,000 for a rotary snowblower at the Thief River Falls regional airport. Although the agreement was accepted, members are to continue working on the type of snowblower needed and necessary for the project. Material for the agreement had been sent earlier to council members from the Minnesota Department of Transportation (Mn-DOT) and the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) regarding the rotary snowblower.

Final discussion was presented by city attorney Robert Wurst, who discussed testimony on the airline deregulation bill. Response to the bill had been received from the chairman of the subcommittee on aviation. The deregulation bill concerns cutting subsidies to the airline industry. Council members are concerned with the question of what constitutes essential air service. It was mentioned that subsidizations of the airline industry would be continued since this is a major form of transportation.

October 1 council members will gather for a hearing on sewer and water main replacement, and there will be a discussion on the freeze-ups of water service lines in Thief River Falls.

program," Mrs. Penning said, "the association has tried to provide as much variety as possible, present the type of attractions most enjoyed in this area and offer members an opportunity to hear artists of national and international reputation. Each artist's or group's program will be varied so as to perform something to nearly everyone's liking."

Opening the season on October 15 will be the Bohemian Folk Ballet of Prague, Czechoslovakia. Fifty dancer, singers and instrumentalists will present their artistic abilities and appear in spectacular costumes for their performances.

Second concert will be by the St. Olaf college orchestra on Tuesday, November 13. St. Olaf has a reputation for excellence in music and may not be sufficiently appreciated because of its proximity to Minnesota audiences. "This performance will bring us a symphony in our own hall," Mrs. Penning said.

Warming up the winter will be the January 15 appearance of soprano soloist Penny Orloff who is on the roster of the New York City opera. She has a different vocal style and will draw from her Russian gypsy background to present some folk songs, accompanied by guitar, in addition to operatic numbers.

Last of the four concerts on the schedule will be by the "Singing Hoosiers" of Indiana university. These 25 young singers will bring a repertoire of pop, folk and Broadway musical numbers to the Lincoln high school stage. They have appeared on national television and are widely acclaimed for their entertainment value.

"We feel the concert association has assisted in providing a valuable addition to community life here," Mrs. Penning said, "and that support by the public will assure continued opportunity for local people to view and hear high caliber entertainment at an extremely modest cost."

Architect For School Project Hired Monday

for the AVTI carpentry department at a price not to exceed $3,000. Low bids from Firestone and Tireland were accepted for tires for district vehicles. Two of the district's buses which will not pass inspection will be advertised for sale with bids to be opened at the October 2 meeting.

The board reaffirmed its position that management and control of AVTIs remain under the control of local Minnesota school boards and adopted several official positions regarding vocational project funding.

Use of the Lincoln high school auditorium on October 9 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. for a presentation by the Chimera Theatre of St. Paul was granted to the sponsoring Thief River Falls community arts council rent free. The theatre group will also present a workshop which Lincoln vocal music students will attend.

Grant Okayed To Stimulate Area Business

A $550,000 grant has been approved by the economic development administration to help conduct a development strategy aimed at stimulating the growth of small businesses and creating jobs in a nine-county area of the Seventh district, Congressman Arlan Stangeland announced today.

The funds will be used to establish a revolving fund and encourage the expansion or establishment of small businesses in Becker, Beltrami, Clearwater, Hubbard, Lake of the Woods, Mahnomen, Pennington, Polk and Red Lake counties. The Headwaters regional development commission in Bemidji, and the Midwest Minnesota community development corporation in Detroit Lakes applied for the federal grant jointly.

Midwest Minnesota community development corporation will administer the revolving loan which is designed to provide venture capital for businesses that can create a permanent year-round jobs to workers now experiencing seasonal employment in the farming and tourist industries.

Employers can obtain certification for the Targeted Jobs Tax Credit (TJTC) for eligible workers already on their payrolls from the nearest Job Service office.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

Yesterday, September 23, we were at Hawley to help Bob Asp celebrate the completion of his Viking ship, which he hopes to sail to Oslo, Norway in the spring of 1981. He will have it in the water next year at Duluth.

Here are the specifications: Length, 76½ feet; width, 17½ feet; height, 7 feet; bow and stern posts, 13 feet; weight, over 20 tons. It is made of solid white oak. The ship is a copy of the Gokstad ship. The original ship is in the museum near Oslo, Norway.

Bob Asp was born here at Thief River Falls, grew up here and went to school here. What is hard to understand is why Thief River Falls people did not show up at Hawley yesterday. As close as we could tell there were seven people from Thief River Falls there, including ourselves and excluding Bob's relatives.

They had a dinner to honor Bob and his family. One thousand attended the dinner. Many came to see the ship besides. So you can tell from that not everyone was asleep.

Additional information was received on the item telling of the wedding of Robert Dimmen of Indianapolis and Nancy Marie Hutchins at St. Paul Sept. 15: Among those already mentioned as attending were Jimmy Dimmen of Missouri and the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dimmen and family of Colorado, all of whom were also house guests at the Larry Dimmen home at Farmington.

New Arrival

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Mike Thompson (Cathy Ellingson) of Mound, who became the parents of a baby girl Tuesday, Sept. 18. The little miss weighed 6 lbs., 2 oz., and was 20 inches long. She has been named Rhiannon Lynn. Proud grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ellingson. Mrs. Ellingson left Friday to spend a few days assisting at the Thompson home and getting acquainted with her new granddaughter.

Todd Hoglo of Thief River Falls was a Friday overnight guest at the Daryl Lewis home. Brent Olson was a weekend guest of John's at the Don Dyrdal home.

THANK YOU

I would like to thank the mayor, aldermen, the planning commission, and other concerned citizens for their assistance in obtaining the Industrial Revenue Bonds for the construction of the new Red Owl store and future shops. Without their assistance this project would have failed. Thanks again.

Young Walkers To Help Clean Area Roadsides

Walk and beautify efforts of the marathon for non-public schools is scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday. The roadside cleanup campaign, sponsored by the local Knights of Columbus Council 4619 with participation by area non-public schools on a voluntary basis, has a goal of gathering the trash along 30 miles of road ditch.

Discussion with county and state highway officials has indicated the roads in the vicinity of Thief River Falls where there is most need for cleanup include highway 59 south, state aid road 3 between highways 32 and 59, and the Smiley bridge road.

"Accordingly, we will concentrate on those areas," stated Jim Kremer, Grand Knight of the local Knights of Columbus council, "and clean up as many miles as our volunteer 'child power' will permit". City of Thief River Falls will furnish garbage bags for litter collection and an effort will be made to separate aluminum cans for recycling.

State highway department maintenance foreman Glen Davidson of Thief River Falls stated that Minnesota spends approximately a quarter of a million dollars annually on roadside cleanup or between $75 to $100 per mile. This means that the young people involved are contributing significantly to reduction of roadside cleanup cost while at the same time increasing their awareness of the problem created by careless disposal of litter.

"Each team of four to six children will be accompanied by an adult. Local law enforcement officials will assist in helping to assure the safety of all the participants," Kremer stated. "The work teams will be dispersed so as to eliminate the need for crossing the highway during their walk and pickup to beautify assignment.

Kremer said he hoped that local citizens will be generous in their support and encouragement when approached by these young people for a pledge. Anyone wanted to assist with a pledge of a certain amount permile of roadside cleaned or to participate in the cleanup effort to raise funds for their non-public school is asked to call Kremer at 681-2946.

Horse Show At Crookston Set October 19-21

Fifteenth annual Great Midwest horse show, which will be October 19, 20 and 21 at the Red River Valley winter shows building in Crookston, will offer Appaloosa and quarter horse halter and performance classes as well as an open horse show.

Horse juding contest conducted by the University of Minnesota, Crookston, Trojan riders will kick off the weekends events. The contest, which will feature conformation and pleasure class judging, is open to all FFA champters, 4-H clubs, and other youth groups. For more information on the horse judging contest, contact the light horse management office of the University of Minnesota, Crookston.

Open show will begin at 7 p.m. October 19. Halter classes for registered Appaloosas and quarter horses will begin at 7 a.m. October 20, followed by performance shows at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m. Performance classes will begin at 8 a.m. Sunday and the final performance will begin at 1 p.m. with the last queen's ride and the coronation of the 1979-1980 Agassiz riders queen.

Premium books are now available for the show, which is approved by the American quarter horse association, Minnesota quarter horse association, Appaloosa horse club of America, Red River Valley International Appaloosa club, North Dakota Appaloosa horse club and the North Dakota quarter horse club. For more information on the Great Midwest horse show, contact show secretary Mrs. Tove Altepeter at route 2, Crookston or call 218-281-4798. Entries close on October 1.

To Demonstrate Bread Making At Plummer

Demonstration of the making of 100 per cent whole wheat bread from flour milled east of Middle River will be given by Mrs. Helen Juhl Monday, October 8, at 7 p.m. in the Pershing high school home economics room at Plummer.

Mrs. Juhl, whose family operates Natural Way Mills, Inc., will also demonstrate the making of a product called vegetarian steak mix — a protein mix made from wheat, oats, barley, soybeans and nutritional yeast. Product samples will be served and a slide show of the milling industry and the Natural Way mill will also be presented.

There is no charge and the public is invited.

Sales Outlook For Livestock To Be Offered

Special meeting on market outlook for livestock producers will be held on Wednesday, October 3, at 8 p.m. in the Pennington county courthouse meeting room.

An extension specialist from the University of Minnesota will assist associate county extension agent Howard Person in reviewing the local feed situation, analyzing the market outlook for cattle and hogs, and winter feeding programs that can provide additional marketing alternatives for area farmers.

Hot roast beef or ham sandwiches will be served at the close of the meeting.

DFL Central Committee In Session Here

Minnesota attorney general Warren Spannaus headed the list of guest speakers when the Seventh district DFL central committee met in Thief River Falls Sunday at the Best Western inn. Robert Irvine of Detroit Lakes, district chairman, presided at the session.

Other speakers were state Sen. Marv Hanson of Hallock; Rep. John Corbid, formerly of Oklee; Gene Wenstrom, announced candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives from Minnesota's Seventh district; and Connie Rico, Seventh district field representative. Pennington county delegates attending were Fran Stromberg and John Steidl, county chairpersons.

According to the official call for the 1980 Democratic-Farmer-Labor conventions, dates were announced for the precinct caucuses on Feb. 26, 1980; county unit conventions on March 15-30, 1980; congressional district conventions on April 19-May 4, 1980; state convention June 6, 7 and 8, 1980; and senate district endorsing conventions to be held between March 15 and July 27, 1980.

The call conforms with Minnesota election laws, charter of the national Democratic party and the DFL state constitution and bylaws. Provisions of the call take precedence over other DFL party rules at any level, and govern all caucuses, conventions and electoral commissions.

Brainerd was selected as the site of the Seventh district convention.

Prior to the central committee meeting Sunday, a meeting for Senate District 1 was held with Grant Satre of Grygla presiding. Purpose of the meeting was to discuss the process of identifying potential candidates for the state House of Representatives from districts 1A and 1B. Incumbent DFL Rep. John Corbid has announced he will not seek reelection in District 1B and District 1A is represented by Independent-Republican Rep. Myron Nysether of Ross.

A campaign coordinating committee was established with Lowell Enerson of Red Lake county as chairman. Other members include David Lundeen, Red Lake county; Fran Stromberg, Pennington county; Francis Bergeron, Marshall county; and Faith Rud, Polk county.

The campaign coordinating committee will not be involved in endorsing nor in limiting the number of candidates, but will attempt to serve as a vehicle for introducing and extracting the potential of each interested candidate.

Organizational meeting of the committee will be held next Wednesday, October 3, to establish objectives toward meeting the goal of assisting candidates to election. Persons interested in becoming DFL candidates are encouraged to contact any members of the committee.

TABLES WERE FILLED at the St. Hilaire fire hall Saturday evening as the commercial club hosted its annual appreciation night dinner. The club started the event four years ago and has seen it grow each year, according to Bernie Huot, club president. Several hundred people were served this year as fire trucks were moved out to make room for an indoor serving area.

Task Force To Make Report To Legislature

An interim report to the Minnesota legislature in November will identify existing programs and major issues in transportation services for elderly, handicapped disabled or economically disadvantaged persons, according to Peter Fausch, assistant commissioner, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) and chairman of a recently appointed interagency task force on special transportation programs.

Fausch heads the 15-member task force to identify existing programs, study opportunities for coordination of such programs, and evaluate overall program effectiveness before making final recommendations to the legislature by July 1980.

Some issues to be addressed by the task force are whether program coordination can improve cost effectiveness, whether existing programs meet identified needs and what strategies are needed for continued coordination among service providers, Fausch said.

Task force members are from public or private groups that provide special transportation services, representatives of state departments, boards and agencies which provide or regulate special transportation services and representatives of the Metropolitan council and regional development commissions. Mn-DOT commissioner Richard P. Braun appointed those members from the public sector and the other agencies selected their representatives.

Task force effort is the first to provide a comprehensive study of transportation alternatives for those unable to use conventional modes. A series of public information meetings will be held throughout the state early next year. Task force will seek input in way to improve services to those Minnesotans with special transportation needs and has tentatively set a meeting for October 31 to outline content for the interim report to the legislature.

LEC Reports 14 Cases In Sept.

Law enforcement report dated September 25 listed the following individual cases by reporting date.

September 10 — Janice Goodger reported that someone had stolen a tape player from a vehicle owned by Jerry Wetch which was parked at Big John's muffler shop on Highway 32. Value of the tape player was $100. Brand name of the tape player was unknown at this time.

September 17 — Mrs. Bob Johanning of 908 N. Knight reported that someone had stolen a new Huffy three-speed brown boy's bike valued at $110 from the Johanning yard.

September 17 — An on-duty police officer noticed a suspicious person in the area of the Solheim furniture store and upon investigation a juvenile male, 16, was apprehended and charged with the theft of a $70 lamp taken from the furniture store warehouse.

September 18 — Sherryll Irvine, Thief River Falls, reported that someone had taken a 55 gallon gas drum from behind her garage at Oakland Park. There was 30 gallons of gas in the drum at the time of the theft. Total loss estimated at $40.

September 20 — A juvenile male, 17, was charged with the theft of a cassette tape player which was stolen from a vehicle owned by Mitch Hoard. The vehicle had been parked east of the Midland station at the time of the theft. $100 in damages was done to the dashboard of the vehicle at the time of the theft. Value of the tape player, later recovered, was estimated at $180.

September 20 — At 9:03 p.m., a vehicle driven by Jodi Wiskow of Thief River Falls was traveling south on Main avenue when it collided with a car driven by Allen Becken of Hallock who was traveling east on Fourth street. Damages to the Wiskow vehicle were estimated at $300 and $200 to the Becken vehicle. No injuries were reported.

September 22 — Highway 1 E., 3:04 p.m.: A car driven by Ordean Edberg of Thief River Falls was traveling east on highway 1 when it skidded in the roadway and turned around and slid into a vehicle driven by Joyce Austad of Thief River Falls, which was stopped at the stop sign at the AVTI entrance awaiting clearance to turn onto highway 1. Damages were $300 to both vehicles. No injuries were reported.

September 24—4:46 p.m.: A car owned by David Bjorkman, Thief River Falls, and driven by Karen M. Swanson, also of Thief River Falls, was traveling east on highway 59 north, while a car driven by Debra Holtan, route 1, Newfolden, was traveling north on Brooks avenue and attempting a left turn onto highway 59. Holtan pulled out as a semi was making a right turn and she struck the vehicle driven by Swanson in the right rear. Damage to the Bjorkman car was estimated at $600 and the Holtan car, $800.

September 24, 5:07 p.m.: Rebecca Bruggeman, 503 E. First street, reported the theft of her wallet from her residence. The wallet contained her I.D. and a small amount of money.

September 24 — Arctic Enterprises reported an AM radio stolen from a vehicle owned by Rueben Rabenhorst, Viking, while the car was parked in the Arctic lot. The J. C. Penney radio was valued at $50.

September 24, 10:29 a.m.: A car driven by Loretta Aaseby, route 2, Thief River Falls, was in the right-turn lane on Main avenue at Eighth street when a truck driven by George Hayes, also of Thief River Falls, also attempted a right turn from Main onto Eighth street. Hayes was to the left of Aaseby and Aaseby stopped but was struck by Hayes. Damage to the Aaseby car was $500, while the Hayes car received no damages.

September 24, 10:13 a.m. — Sheriff's deputy responded to an accident that had been reported south and west of highway 32. Deputy found two juvenile boys, ages 15 and 17, coming from the area of the crash. The youths were brought in and vehicle was found to be stolen. It had been taken from the Bridgeman creameries lot on Knight av. S. and is owned by Raymond Spencer, Thief River Falls. Both youths were charged in connection with the incident.

Sheriff's department reported that on September 17, Dr. David Brown of Goodridge reported some vandalism done to the city of Goodridge tractor parked by the fire hall. The distributor was broken off and spark plug wires had been cut. Also the oil filter was removed and some of the wires leading to the starter had been cut. Estimated damage to the tractor was $100.

September 2 — Doug Green of Midland south station turned in two $20 bills he had received so they could be checked to see if they were counterfeit as they were an old issue in good condition. Two anonymous phone calls were also received from the public regarding suspicious actions of the suspect in the case. These assists led to the arrest of Dennis Hovet, Goodridge, 19, in connection with the burglary of the Ottea Edwall residence that occurred August 21.

CHEFS FOR A NIGHT were Lyle Peterson (left) and Ron Hink as they sliced barbecued roast beef for the St. Hilaire commercial club's appreciation night dinner Saturday. A crowd estimated between 350 and 400 people attended the event in the St. Hilaire fire hall.

Moorhead, which hasn't lost a football game to Thief River Falls since 1940, is once again a decided favorite heading into Friday's 7:30 p.m. game against the Prowlers on the Thief River Falls athletic field.

Thief River Falls has lost 12 times to Moorhead over the last 38 years. Since the often-interrupted series began anew in 1976 the Spuds have beaten the Prowlers 46-6, 14-8 and 40-14.

However, the last Moorhead visit here almost produced a Thief River Falls upset in 1977 when the Spuds, thanks to Mark Kath, returned to Moorhead with a narrow 14-8 win. Kath won that game by returning two kickoffs for 178 yards, setting up a touchdown with a game-opening 86-yard return to the Thief River Falls four-yard line and then erasing a brief 8-7 Thief River Falls lead with a 92-yard touchdown return early in the fourth quarter.

Even Thief River Falls visits to Moorhead have produced close games — for the first half, anyway.

At Concordia's Jake Christiansen Stadium in 1976, Thief River Falls trailed only 14-6 at halftime. But Moorhead and the 90 degree afternoon heat wore down the Prowlers in the second half when the Spuds scored 32 points for a 46-6 runaway. The Prowlers lost control when they failed to score after getting a first down at the Moorhead three-yard line early in the third quarter. They trailed 21-6 at the time.

Same type of situation occurred again last year at Moorhead State University's Alex Nemzek Field when Thief River Falls trailed only 20-14 midway through the third quarter before Moorhead scored twice in a five-minute span to put it out of reach en route to a 40-14 win.

Thief River Falls coach Gene Jurgens is confident the Prowlers can compete on even terms with the Spuds. "I think we're capable of playing with them," he said. "Thus far we have been stronger defensively than we were in the past. And we're certainly capable of some things on offense."

The key for the Prowlers Friday will be the elimination of mistakes. "We realize in order to beat them, we will have to play mistake-free football," noted Jurgens. "We'll have to eliminate the penalties — we can't afford to have any touchdowns called back."

Miscellanoous

+Lincoln high school football players and coaches are beginning to dread road games. And it's not because of hostile crowds. It's because the School District 564 transportation system that has required five buses to transport the Prowlers to two games. Mechanical failure left the Prowlers stranded en route to a season-opening game in Grand Forks August 30. That was topped Friday when three buses were needed to get the Prowlers to Staples. Difficulty in getting that third bus started in Staples nearly required a fourth vehicle!

+Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club annual fall pie and ice cream social, scheduled to be held Tues., Oct. 2, has been postponed because the club did not want to direct attention away from a special public meeting that night concerning the building program plans for School District 564.

+Lincoln high school tennis coach Whitey Olson called Detroit Lakes "the class of the region," following the Lakers' 5-0 victory over the Prowlers last week. And one of the reasons for those words was the Lakers' Ann Pettit who beat the Prowlers' Pam Wassink 6-0, 6-0 that day. Pettit, the only senior on the Detroit Lakes team, has been a member of the Lakers' varsity since the seventh grade. Much of that time she played in the shadow of JeNelle Johnson who is now playing for the Minnesota Gophers. "If we could describe JeNelle Johnson as the patient type who wears you down, then I guess we would describe Annie Pettit as the thunder-and-lightning type — the kind that knocks you flat," Detroit Lakes coach Gary Kludtx told Ralph Anderson of the Becker County Record. "Annie goes for the roat. She has seemingly forever played in JeNelle's shadow and that's a tough act to follow. But Annie has done a super job for us over her career." That career already includes three state tournament trips and 43-4 record over the past two years.

Prowlers Beat Pirates, Host MCC Thursday

Lincoln high school volleyball team, a 2-0 winner at Crookston Tuesday, will host Marshall County Central Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln gym. Junior varsity match will start at 6:30.

Thief River Falls ran its record to 6-5 with an 18-3, 19-17 victory over the Pirates. LeAnn Paetznick served eight points in the first game romp and Kathy Walker came up with nine service points in the second game after Thief River Falls reserves, in a starting role, fell behind 12-2.

"I was a lot happier with our performance," said Thief River Falls coach Sharon Stauss who was disappointed inthe Prowlers' play when they lost two of three matches in an invitational tournament at Roseau Saturday. "Offensively and defensively we played much better."

Sparked by the serving of Lynette Huot and Sharon Bailey, the Lincoln junior varsity was also a 2-0 winner over Crookston Tuesday for a 5-2 season record. Huot opened with 10 service points in an 18-16 first game victory and Bailey duplicated that feat in an 18-9 second game win.

Final Home Tennis Match Is Thursday

Final home match of the 1979 season for the Lincoln high school tennis team will be played Thursday when the Prowlers host Crookston at 3:15 p.m. on the Northland community college and Lincoln high school courts.

Thief River Falls' dual meet record dropped to 2-4 Tuesday following a 4-1 loss at Mahnomen. The Pirates beat the Indians 3-2 earlier this year, but Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson noted, "It's always tougher to come back the second time. We didn't hang in there as well."

Junior Karen Kloety and seventh grader Michelle Olson provided the Prowlers with their only point of the afternoon with a 10-4 win over Roberta Clifton and Sue Brandon at second doubles.

Bemidji Beats Freshmen In Overtime 14-6

Bemidji defeated Thief River Falls 14-6 in overtime Monday in a freshman high school football game played at Bemidji.

Thief River Falls led 6-0 on a first quarter three-yard run by Jerry Kertz, but Bemidji sent it into halftime deadlocked at 6-6. That was all the scoring until Bemidji produced a touchdown and conversion on its first possession in overtime. Thief River Falls fumbled away the ball on its overtime try from the Bemidji 10-yard line.

Winless in three starts, Thief River Falls will travel to East Grand Forks Thursday for a 4 p.m. game.

MAKING HER FIRST appearance at number one doubles, Lincoln high school sophomore Nancy Swanson lunged for a Moorhead shot at the net during Monday's triangular tennis meet played in Thief River Falls. Swanson played with junior Leslie Williamson against the Spuds and East Grand Forks after playing most of the year at third singles for the Prowlers. Thief River Falls won Monday's match with seven points, followed with Moorhead with five and East Grand Forks 3.

TRF Defense Will Tackle Moorhead Offense Friday

Thief River Falls defense, which made headlines after holding Staples without a first down and minus yardage on offense in a 37-0 victory last week, has no illusions about repeating that performance Friday when the Prowlers host Moorhead. However, the Lincoln high school coaching staff once again has a list of goals for the defense to shoot at in the 7:30 p.m. game that, if met, would probably make the Prowlers winners over the Spuds for the first time since 1940.

"The defense has a lot of pride in itself," explained Thief River Falls head coach Gene Jurgens. "We've set some realistic goals, and if we can meet them, we have an excellent chance to win. We're looking for a close ball game. And if it's close, we think we have a good chance to win it."

It'll be up to the Thief River Falls defense to keep it close. Through their first four games the Prowlers have given up only 496 yards, an impressive 124-yard average per game. Opponents have averaged just 87 yards on the ground and a mere 37 yards in the air against the Prowlers who bounced back from season-opening losses to Grand Forks Red River 30-8 and Detroit Lakes 13-6 to handle Crosby-Ironton 26-14 and Staples 37-0 thanks largely through defensive excellence.

"We think our defensive end play has improved quite a bit since the beginning of the season," mentioned Jurgens who has been playing seniors Jim Nyland and Mitch Muzzy at those spots. "We've been using the same people all year, but they've really come along."

"Rick Gobell has been playing well at nose guard all season," praised Jurgens who inserted the 180-pound junior in the middle in place of senior Mark Williamson, a two-year starter. "Rick is bigger and stronger than Mark," he explained.

That doesn't mean Williamson has been benched. Instead, he's teamed with senior Dan Cullen to give the Prowlers strong play at the tackles. "Even though he's small out there, Mark has been doing a decent job because he's quicker than most of the tackles he's faced," noted Jurgens. "Cullen has played awfully steady the last few weeks at the other tackle."

The linebackers, with newcomer Steve Jorstad, a junior, joining senior Brian Ranum, have also been performing admirably, says Jurgens. "Our secondary is not having to make nearly as many tackles as they did last year, so somebody has been doing the job up front."

And the defensive secondary, which includes starters Jim Thompson, Bill Jury, Dave Odegaard and Jeff Ulrich, along with top reserves Tom Bjerkman and John Dillon, still ranks as the Prowlers' strongest area. All six of those defensive backs are seniors.

Those Thief River Falls defenders will be focused on a Moorhead offense that is built around senior co-captains Jim Laske, a 165-pound tailback and Shawn Anderson, a 185-pound quarterback. Laske carried 23 times for 171 yards in a 14-13 loss to Sioux Falls O'Gorman last week that dropped Moorhead's record to 2-2. The Spuds earlier lost to Fargo South 22-6, beat Fargo North 10-7 and defeated Superior 17-14.

"We're going to have to shut down Laske," admitted Jurgens, "but I don't think you can key on him. A school the size of Moorhead is not going to be a one-man football team."

While a lot of emphasis is being placed on the Thief River Falls defense, Jurgens doesn't want to take away the importance of a strong offensive showing. "We're going to have to score a few times," he said. "I don't think it's going to be a 6-0 or 7-0 ball game. And we're certainly capable of some things on offense now. We think we're capable of breaking one at any time."

Actually, the Thief River Falls offense was nearly matched its defensive counterpart in improvement. After struggling at the start, the Prowlers have racked up 63 points and 744 yards in their last two starts. In the backfield, Jury rushed for 218 yards on just 16 carries against the Rangers and Cardinals, and Odegaard scored twice against both of those foes.

Jury suffered a shoulder injury early in the third quarter at Staples last week, but was ready for practice Monday.

Friday game will be the final nonconference outing of the year for the Prowlers who will finish the season against Northwest Athletic Conference foes Bemidji, Fergus Falls, East Grand Forks and Crookston.

Prowler Relays Are Scheduled For Sat.

Second annual Thief River Falls Prowler swimming relays will be held Saturday in the Franklin middle school pool. The meet, devoted exclusively to relay events, will start at 2 p.m.

Defending champion Thief River Falls will be joined by Detroit Lakes, International Falls, Bemidji and Park Rapids.

Thief River Falls coach John Hustad expects plenty of close competition. "Relays are always exciting to begin with, and to have a whole meet of them is really something," he said.

Before staging their relays, however, the Thief River Falls girls will travel to Grand Forks Thursday for a 4 p.m. meet against Grand Forks Red River and Grand Forks Central.

Gene Jurgens To Address Sports Boosters Club

Lincoln high school football coach Gene Jurgens will address the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club Thursday during the noon luncheon meeting at the Rex Cafe.

The meeting is open to the public. Jurgens' Prowlers will host Moorhead Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Northmen At Fergus Falls Saturday . . .

Northland Is Looking For First MJCAA Road Win

Northland community college football team, after recording its first shutout in history in a 7-0 victory over Hibbing last week, goes after another milestone Saturday afternoon at Fergus Falls when the 3½-year-old Northmen will try to win their first Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) road game. They've lost 12 straight Northern Division games on the road heading into the 1:30 p.m. game against the Spartans.

Defense has made Northland competitive through three weeks of the 1979 season, even though the Northmen lost their first two starts to Mesabi 20-6 and Vermilion 10-0. The offense hasn't been nearly as effective, but coach Irv Smith was quick to defend his often-maligned offensive unit.

MJCAA Northern Division	w	l
Golden Valley Lutheran	3	0
Vermilion	2	0
Hibbing	2	1
Mesabi	1	1
Crookston	1	1
Northland	1	2
Brainerd	1	2
Itasca	1	2
Fergus Falls	0	3

"We have good people playing defense," acknowledged Smith. "We have just as good people on offense, but defense is always ahead of the offense early in the season."

Smith, who did not run the option the second half against Hibbing because of the game-long rain, will not abandon the offense. "We could move the ball if we wanted to go to the I and dive people all day," he said. "But when the going gets tough, you'll get stopped if you don't run the option. There's just no way to defend that thing when it's run right. It just takes a while to get things down. We're going to improve dramatically."

Fergus Falls has not won a game this fall, losing to Hibbing 7-0, Brainerd 8-0 and Itasca 43-7 last week. But Smith isn't taking the Spartans lightly. "I think Fergus Falls is better than last week's score indicates," said Smith. "We feel like we're a better football team than they are, but that's what we thought in our first two games, too, and look what happened."

While looking for improved offensive play, Smith should be satisfied with his defense that held Hibbing to just six yards rushing in the second half. That earned game awards for all four Northland defensive linemen — Dave Klemish (Drayton, N.D.), Jeff Reese (Hallock), Danny Canela (Miami, Fla.) and Duane Kjono (Mahnomen).

Linebackers Albert Padron (Miami, Fla.), Rick Williams (Miami, Fla.), Jose Cabrera (Miami, Fla.) and Joe Ranum (Thief River Falls) were also praised for their work in shutting down the Cardinals' attack. Padron, with a dozen stops, was Northland's leading tackler.

In other MJCAA Northern Division games Saturday, Brainerd will be at Itasca, Mesabi visits Crookston and Vermilion travels to Golden Valley Lutheran in a battle of unbeatens. Hibbing hosts the Superior junior varsity.

Last week, in addition to Northland's 7-0 win over previously unbeaten Hibbing and Itasca's 43-7 rout of Fergus Falls, Crookston clobbered Brainerd 34-9 and Golden Valley Lutheran shut out Mesabi 28-0.

Bemidji Runners Win Bagley Races

Bemidji teams won three of the four races Tuesday in the Bagley cross country invitational.

The Lumberjacks took the boys feature race with 56 points, followed by Bagley 64, Staples 94, Roseau 107, East Grand Forks 112, Thief River Falls 146, Park Rapids 193, Walker 198 and Clearbrook 210.

Brian Kraft of Bemidji was the individual winner in the 65-runner field, with Thief River Falls sophomore Bruce Johnson placing ninth in 15:44, his best three-mile run of the season. The Prowlers are still running without Bob Fitzgerald and Todd Bergland, their top two runners.

Bagley came up with a win in the girls varsity race, but Bemidji was a winner in the boys junior varsity and boys junior high school races.

Bemidji won the junior high competition with 32 points, followed by Staples 44, Thief River Falls 95, Roseau 134, Bagley 140, Walker 151 and Clearbrook 158.

Thief River Falls' Chuck Lowell placed fourth in the 60-runner field with an 11:25 two-mile run and teammate Kevin Kezar was sixth in 11:29.

Grafton will be the next stop for the Thief River Falls runners Thursday at 4:30 p.m.

Fargo North 48-35 Winner Over TRF J.H.

Fargo North defeated Thief River Falls 48-35 Saturday in a junior high school swimming meet at Fargo. The meet was held in conjection with the Spartans' 52-31 victory over the Prowlers in high school varsity competition.

Nordics Will Play 9-Man Game Against Greenbush

Football fans in Newfolden will be watching a when Marshall County Central hosts Greenbush in a nine-man game beginning at 7:30 p.m.

It'll be a first for the Nordics who play in the standard 11-man Top of the State Conference. The Tigers used to belong to the Top of the State before small numbers forced them to plan an independent nine-man schedule this fall.

The game won't, however, be a pure nine-man contest since the teams will be using the standard 100x50-yard field instead of the 80x40-yard field used by the nine-man confernces.

"With the bigger field it definitely changes the game," mentioned Marshall County Central coach Sam Gebhart. "You don't notice the difference so much with a smaller field, but with the bigger field and the ratio of backs and ends to linemen, it becomes more of an outside passing and running game."

Two Marshall County Central tackles will lose their starting status with the switch to nine-man.

"We'll have some trouble adjusting, I'm sure," admitted Gebhart, "but we're going into the game with the idea of having some fun. If we didn't play this nine-man game, we'd have an open date."

The game could be a preview of 1980 for Newfolden players, coaches and fans since most of the Top of the State Conference teams have indicated they favor a switch from 11 to nine-man football next fall because of smaller numbers.

Playing the 11-man game this fall Marshall County Central is 1-3. Stephen and Argyle, the Top of the State Conference unbeaten co-leaders, handed the Nordics losses in the first two weeks, 20-6 at the hands of the Tigers and 7-0 at the hands of the Eagles. Marshall County Central also lost to Warroad 22-0 before playing and winning its first road game last week, a 22-0 shutout at Hallock.

Elsewhere in the Top of the State Conference, Stephen will be at East Grand Forks Sacred Heart, Hallock at Lake of the Woods, Argyle at Roseau and Karlstad at Warroad.

Last week Argyle doubled Karlstad 12-6, Marshall County Central shut out Hallock 22-0, Stephen blanked Roseau 33-0 and Warroad got by Lake of the Woods 6-0.

Bill Sczenpanski of Stephen continues to lead the Top of the State Conference in scoring with 56 points, followed by Greg LaDoucer of Karlstad with 38 and Mark Huglen of Roseau with 24.

In North Tri County Conference play, Plummer and Goodridge will be celebrating homecoming Friday with 7 p.m. games. The Cardinals will entertain Clearbrook while the Huskies tangle with Gonvick. In other games, Middle River will be at Mentor, Oklee at Erskine and Grygla at McIntosh-Winger.

PAM WASSINK of the Prowlers connected on a shot against Moorhead Monday during a triangular high school tennis meet played in on the Northland community college courts. Wassink was a double winner at number two singles as the Prowlers beat the Spuds and East Grand Forks.

Prowlers Win TRF Tennis Triangular

Pam Wassink and Cindy Liden both won a pair of matches Monday as Thief River Falls out-scored Moorhead and East Grand Forks in a triangular high school tennis meet played here.

The Prowlers finished with seven points, the Spuds had five and the Green Wave three.

Wassink and Liden supplied Thief River Falls with four points in second and third singles, respectively.

"We were pleased with our overall play," said Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson who juggled his line-up for the match by moving Patty Langlie from first doubles to first singles; Wassink from first to second singles; Nancy Swanson from third singles to first doubles; and Liden from second to third singles.

Team scores — Thief River Falls 7, Moorhead 5, East Grand Forks 3.

Bemidji Begins Defense Of NWAC Football Title

Defending Northwest Athletic Conference (NWAC) football champion Bemidji, 4-0 through a month of non-conference play, will start four weeks of 1979 NWAC competition Friday when the Lumberjacks host Fergus Falls. It's a must-win game for the Otters who already find themselves nearly eliminated from the five-team race after losing a 26-7 conference opener to Crookston last week.

Other NWAC members will be involved in conference play Friday as Crookston travels to Cloquet, East Grand Forks drives to Grafton and Thief River Falls hosts Moorhead. The NWAC ran its non-conference record to 14-5 last week with another sweep of Mid-State Conference opponents as East Grand Forks beat Detroit Lakes 27-16, Bemidji defeated Park Rapids 26-6 and Thief River Falls humbled Staples 37-0.

Bemidji, 4-0 in the Northwest Conference a year ago, has been a season-long favorite to repeat its title performance. Top NWAC challenges were expected to come from Fergus Falls and Crookston. The Pirates, with their victory over the Otters, have apparently established themselves as the Lumberjacks' prime threat.

After facing Fergus Falls, Bemidji will continue its conference play October 5 at Thief River Falls, October 12 vs. East Grand Forks and October 19 at Crookston before finishing the year October 25 at Grand Rapids.

+After one game, Steve Johnson of Crookston is the NWAC scoring leader with 12 points. Dale Leonard of Bemidji is the overall scoring leader with 48 points. John Roche of East Grand Forks has 32.

+Brent Weiss of Crookston rushed for 87 yards Friday to become the early NWAC rushing leader. Leonard is tops in all games with 404 yards. Roche has 371.

+Johnson was 4-for-4 for 65 yards in the Pirates' win over Fergus Falls to rank as the top NWAC passer. In all games, Phil Hatchner of the Otters is 12-for-45 for 239 yards. Todd Selk of East Grand Forks is 6-for-17 for 151 yards.

+Mike Amundson of Crookston caught two passes for 35 yards Friday to rank as the leading NWAC receiver. Craig Erhart of Bemidji is the overall leader with seven catches for 176 yards.

+Darwin Boe of Fergus Falls punted four times for a 38.3-yard average Friday. He is also the overall leader with nine punts averaging 35.9 yards.

Northwest Conference	NWAC w	NWAC l	All w	All l
Crookston	1	0	3	1
Bemidji	0	0	4	0
East Grand Forks	0	0	3	1
Thief River Falls	0	0	2	2

+Leonard is the overall leader in the punt return charts with five returns accumulating 141 yards, an average of 28.2 yards. Bill Jury of Thief River Falls ranks second with eight returns for 83 yards and a 10.4-yard average.

+Dave Swanberg of East Grand Forks tops the overall kickoff return yardage figures with six returns for 238 yards, a 39.7-yard average. Brian Oulkins of Thief River Falls ranks second with six returns for 91 yards and a 15.2-yard average.

+Bemidji ranks atop the NWAC team offense charts in all games with an average of 349.5 yards per game, followed by East Grand Forks 264.0, Crookston 235.8, Thief River Falls 228.3 and Fergus Falls 220.0.

Eagles Beat Warriors 2-0 In Volleyball

Sophomore Jean Verbout served 14 points Tuesday to lead Grygla past Warroad 2-0 in a high school volleyball match played at Warroad.

The Eagles evened their record at 3-3 with an 18-8, 18-16 victory.

Grygla will host Lake of the Woods Thursday before traveling to Middle River Tuesday.

Goodridge — Argyle

Argyle was a 2-0 winner over Goodridge Thursday on the Huskies' court with 18-3, 18-5 games.

It was only the second match of the year for the Huskies who will host Plummer Thursday, play at Gonvick Monday and entertain Warren Tuesday.

UND Basketball Clinic Designed For High School Cage Coaches

First annual University of North Dakota basketball clinic, designed for high school coaches, has been scheduled Oct. 25-27, according to Sioux head basketball coach Dave Gunther, who is beginning his tenth season at UND.

Gunther said the clinic staff includes high school coaches Gary Addington, Hibbing; Ken Demester, Mayville-Portland; Gary Schuler, Warren; and Dick Vinger, Grand Forks Central.

All clinic sessions will be at the Westward Ho Motel. Registration fee if submitted before clinic starts is $17. Registration fee on day of clinic is $20. The fee includes a ticket to the UND-Morningside football game here Oct. 27 and other events, including social hours.

Clinic registrants also will attend a UND practice session Oct. 26 and a Sioux intrasquad varsity scrimmage prior to the football game.

Among the clinic discussion topics are favorite drills for high school players, pre-practice conditioning, individual defense to team defense, transition game, coaching special play situations, passing game, teaching passing game and watching the Sioux practice session and then a scrimmage.

Sioux assistant coach Darryl Lehnus is assisting Gunther with the details.

Minnesota Has 72 Unbeaten High School Football Teams

High school football season has reached the halfway point for 498 of the state's teams and 72 of them are still harboring hopes of undefeated campaigns, reports Larry Larson, director of information and publications for the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL).

But when the season does end for all squads in November, only a maximum of five contingents can have unbeaten status as a result of the playoff format for the five classes of prep football in Minnesota.

For the first time ever in the eight-year history of grid playoffs, conference champions will advance to post-season play in all five — AA, A, B, C and nine-man — divisions. Previously, either conference winners or the top computer rated teams would advance to state playoff action.

Among the 72 undefeated teams heading into this fifth week of play are two defending champions from last year's playoffs. They are Class AA champion Edina West and Alden-Conger, the Classs C titlist who this season is competing in the nine-man division.

Class AA

Feature game this week in Class "AA" is the clash between South St. Paul and Park at Cottage Grove on Friday evening. Both teams are 4-0 in St. Paul Suburban Conference play and are tied for the top spot with Stillwater. Another interesting matchup will find Minneapolis Southwest playing Minneapolis Roosevelt. Southwest, 3-1, will be attempting to get a share of the Minneapolis City Conference lead when battling the Teddies, who are sole leaders of the loop with a 3-0 mark. Roosevelt is 3-1 overall having lost at Faribault in the season opener.

In all, 11 teams remain undefeated in this class.

Class A

There are a number of pivotal games this week in Class "A". The most attractive game will be played in the South Central Conference where St. Peter (4-0) will tavel to St. James (4-0). Brooklyn Center, another Class A team with hope for a unbeaten season, will try for win five Friday when entertaining Golden Valley. Brooklyn Center has outscored its loop foes 57-0 in two games. Another game worth noting is in the Rum River Conference where once-beaten Braham (3-1) will try and upend league leader Princeton (4-0) in a game at Princeton on Friday.

There are 12 undefeated teams in Class A, including Bemidji of the Northwest Athletic Conference.

Class B

Jordan (4-0) and Belle Plaine (4-0) are two of the 19 unbeatens in Class B and they will be meeting in a key Minnesota River Conference clash Friday in Belle Plaine. Another battle of unbeatens will square off in Pine-to-Prairie Conference action on Friday when Fosston (4-0) plays at Fertile-Beltrami (4-0). Still another game featuring undefeated teams will see Arrowhead Conference frontrunners Chisholm (4-0) playing at Biwabik (4-0) on Friday.

Class C

Among the 16 unbeaten aggregations within Class "C" are Mountain Lake (4-0) and Sherburn (4-0) and they will be meeting in a Middle Eight Conference outing Friday in Sherburn. Battle Lake, an entry in the state playoffs three times, has won their first four again this year and will be out for their fifth victory on Friday when hosting Parkers Prairie (3-0) in a Park Region Conference tussle.

Nine-Man

There are 14 undefeated teams in the nine-man division and one of them is Alden-Conger, who has the state's longest winning-streak — 20. The Blackhawks host twice-beaten Bricelyn in quest of yet another triumph on Friday. The biggest conference tussle in the division this week will be at Franklin when the Tigers host Echo-Wood Lake. Both teams have yet to lose in Mini Conference games and Friday's victory will gain sole possession of the lead in that loop.

Gonvick and McIntosh-Winger of the North Tri County are among the unbeaten nine-man teams.

Crookston Is 31-0 Winner Over LHS JV

Crookston expanded a 14-0 halftime lead into a 31-0 victory over Thief River Falls Monday in junior varsity high school football.

It was the home opener for the Lincoln junior varsity, 0-2 for the year. Thief River Falls will play at Grand Forks Red River Monday at 4 p.m.

Proposed Improvement

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Notice is hereby given that the City Council of Thief River Falls will meet in the Council Chambers of the City Auditorium at 7:00 p.m. on October 1, 1979, to consider the making of the following sewer and water improvements pursuant to Minnesota Statutes Sections 429.011 to 429.111:

1. WATER MAIN REPLACEMENT

Water mains in the following locations are recommended for replacement: Arnold Avenue—Bay Street to First Street; Main Avenue—Bay Street to First Street; Crocker Avenue—across T.H. 59 on Third Street; Merriam Avenue—First Street to Taft; Kneale Avenue—First Street to Third Street; Maple Avenue—First Street to Mussey; Spruce Avenue — First Street to Third Street; First Street — Spruce Avenue to Pine Avenue; Tindolph Avenue — Across T.H. 59. The total estimated cost of this portion of the project is $248,500.

2. SANITARY SEWER REPAIRS AND REPLACEMENT.

The following repairs or replacement will be considered at the hearing:

1. Replace 8" sanitary sewer line on Michael Street from Kendall to Tindolph and on Tindolph from Michael Street south a distance of about 660'.

2. Spruce Avenue South—sewer repairs at manhole at Hughes and Nora.

3. Merriam Avenue North — reline existing 12" sewer across T.H. 59.

4. Crocker Avenue North—insulate 150' of sewer south from manhole at bathhouse and insulate two sewer services.

5. Kendall Avenue North—insulate two sewer services south of Taft and reline 80' of sewer across T.H. 59.

6. North Main Avenue—repair 150 L.F. of broken pipe between North 5th Street and North 7th Street.

7. Manhole replacement and repair. A list of manholes was submitted by the Utilities Department and those recommended for such work under this project are indicated on the attached preliminary print.

Total estimated cost for this portion of the proposed project is $90,000.

Properties benefited by the proposed construction are those abutting said construction where replacement of sewer mains is proposed.

3. WATER SERVICE LINES

The utilities and tax and assessments committees recommendations are that residents who have a history of water service line freeze-ups should be notified of the proposed construction. Estimated cost for the proposed lowering and-or insulating is $600 per connection and it is proposed that the City pay 50 per cent of the cost of the work and that the balance (estimated to be $300 per connection) be specially assessed.

It is further recommended by the above committees that the property owners be given a choice as to whether or not they wish to have the work done. If they choose not to have the work done, the property owner will be charged for any City service required to thaw frozen water lines and the water meter will remain connected and property owners charged for water used.

Total estimated project cost for repair of water service lines is $220,000.

The property proposed to be assessed for such improvements is all or a portion of the properties as described in items 1 and 2 and in Exhibit A attached. The estimated total cost of such improvements is $558,000. Such persons as desire to be heard with reference to the proposed improvements will be heard at this meeting.

Dated this 18th day of September, 1979.

-s- Gerald A. Wigness,
City Clerk-Treasurer

HERE'S THE 015R

HERE'S WHY IT'S A STIHL.

1. A high voltage ignition system and an efficient combustion chamber means it'll start work when you do. Every time.
2. A "no thumb," fully automatic chain oiler lets you concentrate on cutting. Not oiling.
3. Hot chamber magnesium die-casting makes the housing tougher. And the whole saw lighter.
4. Balanced fuel and oil tank capacities keep you from having to refill one when there's still plenty in the other.
5. It's been designed to last at least twice as long as any other saw like it.
6. And by lasting twice as long it really only cost about half as much.
7. It's the best for less than you'd expect.

AND HERE'S THE BEST PLACE AROUND TO GET IT.

For Only $150.00

FOR SALE
40 ACRES OF CHOICE RIVER PROPERTY

2½ miles south of Thief River Falls on Hwy. 32, ½ mile of river frontage. Beautifully wooded oak, ash, elm and basswood. Rich black soil. 17 acres of oak grove, 7 acres of homesite and grove, 8 acres riverside park with huge old trees, 8 acres field, windbreak and garden. Uniquely isolated by river on two sides, highway and open farm land on the other. River bottomland across the river prevents future development which enhances the peace and tranquility and provides a wild isolated area for canoeing, boating, cross country skiing and snowmobiling. Controlled development would preserve this tranquility. Large 3 bedroom remodeled home, 2½ baths, oak woodwork and cupboards, fully carpeted, beautiful river view, large garage and outbuildings. This farm could be subdivided into 7 large country estates that could share a private community park. If plotted it would make 30 one acre building sites with a private community park. The oak grove and park would make a beautiful 25 acre overnight campgrounds or trailer court. We prefer to sell all in one transaction to one or more buyers, singly or collectively.

Dana Peterson Wins At State 4-H Horse Show

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

For 14-year-old Dana Peterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Peterson of rural Thief River Falls, the 87th first place trophy won in horse show competition is the most gratifying of all. It was awarded for her first place victory among 63 county champions competing in the Intermediate Western Pleasure class at the Minnesota state 4-H horse show in St. Paul.

Adding frosting to the cake was a third place finish in English Pleasure among 69 entries in that phase of the state event. Western pleasure class was for contestants 14 and 15 years of age and English pleasure was for riders 14 and younger.

Certainly an amateur but by no means a novice, Dana has six years of horse show competition under her trophy buckle. In recent years she has been taking in about 20 shows a year—either open shows or competition for registered quarter horses.

A former competitor in games events, she has more recently concentrated on showmanship and the pleasure classes. For the last two years she has ridden "Suntully", a registered palomino and quarter horse, in competition. The horse is a nine-year-old gelding.

In competition at the Marshall county fair where she qualified for the state show, Dana won the senior high point trophy. She also won the showmanship award for the fifth consecutive year and took nine blue ribbons in nine classes entered, including showmanship, barrel racing, western pleasure, pole bending, egg and spoon competition and other games.

A freshman at Marshall county central school at Newfolden, Dana exhibits poise beyond her years in the show ring. "She has all the confidence in the world when she can take her horse along," jokes her mother, Karen. "She never seems to be nervous about competition once she gets in the saddle."

The confidence may well be born of success in her past experience.

Among her other wins are such things as first place in the Western Horsemanship class for junior riders 13 and younger at the Red River Valley winter shows in 1976—one of the larger shows in the area. She has captured eight high point trophies based on total points earned in competition at open shows in the past two years. Such things inspire confidence.

Generally speaking, Dana has earned her way to the top by observation, listening to suggestions from judges, concentrating on her own performance and having a good knowledge of the horses she has ridden. Attendance at a three-day workshop in Grand Forks and a series of lessons on English riding which totaled about a week of instruction at the University of Minnesota at Crookston are her only exposures to formal training.

In addition to the local and area open shows which offer good competition, the Petersons take in such events as the winter shows and breed shows as far away as Valley City, N.D., and Windom. They are members of the Thief River Falls saddle club, American Quarter Horse association and Minnesota Quarter Horse association, Regions nine and 10.

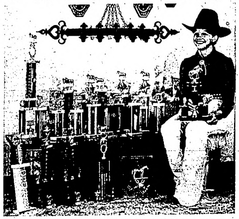
Eventually Dana hopes to be a professional rider, training and-or riding for a breeder of high quality horses. Although she seems to take the competition in stride, she has a competitive attitude and a desire to excel.

Following in her boot prints now is her eight-year-old sister Gina who has been riding in shows for the past two years. Dana is passing along advice and suggestions which she has gained on the show trail.

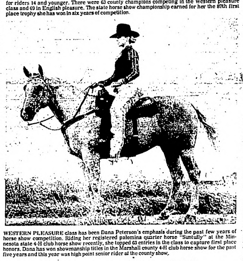
"It's not really cheap entertainment," Kenny admits about the family show schedule. "But it's something we all enjoy and that we can do as a family. I guess that's worth something, too."

Already a four-year entrant at the state 4-H horse show, Dana has several years left in 4-H club work and therefore several chances to reach the state show again. Does she think she can repeat as a state champion?

"I can try," she smiles. And she will, too.



SUCCESSFUL HORSEWOMAN at the age of 14, Dana Peterson of rural Thief River Falls captured first place in the Intermediate Western pleasure class for participants 14 and 15 years of age at the Minnesota state 4-H horse show recently. She also placed third in the English pleasure class for riders 14 and younger. There were 63 county champions competing in the Western pleasure class and 69 in English pleasure. The state horse show championship earned for her the 87th first place trophy she has won in six years of competition.



WESTERN PLEASURE class has been Dana Peterson's emphasis during the past few years of horse show competition. Riding her registered palomina quarter horse "Suntully" at the Minnesota state 4-H club horse show recently, she topped 63 entries in the class to capture first place honors. Dana has won showmanship titles in the Marshall county 4-H club horse show for the past five years and this year was high point senior rider at the county show.

TRF Recreational Skate Program Is Open To All

Thief River Falls recreational skating program provides lessons for everyone—pre-school to adults. Group lessons will be offered on Thursdays at 3:30 p.m.

Lessons are given by qualified, experienced professionals starting November 22.

Private lessons are also available by contacting any of the professionals at the arena on Thursdays.

Thief River Falls' program uses the United States figure skating association (USFSA) basic test program as the basis for group instruction. The basic test program has 12 levels, each consisting of as many as five different skating skills. The skills are in a progressional order.

Once skaters become competant at the skills in one level, they are tested and move on to the next level. Testing sessions are held approximately three times each year. Skaters may test as many levels or badges in one test session as they can successfully complete.

Upon completion of the basic tests provided by the recreational skating program, skaters will be able to execute the basic spins, jumps, turns, and dance steps that make up figure skating.

If skaters desire to become more proficient in figure skating, rather than just recreational skating, the Thief River Falls figure skating club (TRFFSC) provides a more serious and intense program. The 12-badge level program is not a preequisite for the dance, figure (patch) free style program provided by the TRFFSC.

The official USFSA program is taught and practiced during dance, patch, free style (DPFS) sessions here.

United States figure skating program and test structure is quite involved. If you or your child is truly interested in figure skating, contact one of the professionals at the arena. They will explain the program and arrange private lessons. This program can be very challenging and rewarding.

For girls who have passed seven badges and are not interested in DPFS, the recreational skating program will be offering for the first time a precision line.

Auditions will be held from which 20 girls will be selected. The audition, which will be announced at a later date, will consist of the basic steps, turns and stops learned in the first seven badges. Everyone will have to perform the same audition. Practice will be held three hours a week and a fee of $3 per week will be charged for each skater.

Once the line becomes proficient at skating together,

Skate Exchange, Registration Is Set Saturday

Annual Thief River Falls skate exchange and registration for the Thief River Falls Amatuer Hockey Association (TRFAHA) and recreational skating programs will be held Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the city auditorium.

Hockey and figure skates, hockey equipment and skating outfits will be offered for sale. Persons with skates, equipment or outfits who would like to sell the items are invited to bring the merchandise to the auditorium that day.

Registration will also be held that Saturday for youngsters ages 5 to 14 who plan to participate in the TRFAHA and recreational skating programs.

Public Hearing On Sewer And Water Tonight

Public hearing concerning sewer and water main replacements and water line freeze-ups is scheduled for 7 p.m. tonight in the basement of the city auditorium.

Tax and assessments committee met briefly Friday noon and it has been suggested that the city council may wish to review some of its recommendations at 6:45 p.m. tonight, prior to the hearing.

Blood Pressure Tests Planned

Blood pressure testing this month will be October 3 and 17 at the Inter-County nursing service office in the courthouse in Thief River Falls from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.; October 22 from 1 to 3 p.m. at Skylite apartments in Thief River Falls.

Public Meeting Tues. On School Building Proposals

Public meeting on alternative building proposals for the Thief River Falls school district will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln high school auditorium.

Purpose of the meeting, according to Dr. William Corliss, superintendent of schools, is to present information gathered by the board of education, give the public an opportunity to contribute its thinking on facilities problems of the district, and to exchange viewpoints on the situations in question.

"Public attendance is needed Tuesday to continue the orderly process for meeting the educational needs of this district," Supt. Corliss said. "It is planned to convene a meeting of the board following the public input session to develop a specific building proposal which will be submitted to voters of the district in a special bond election."

Dr. Corliss said that a realistic time for a public vote is in early December of this year. Representatives of the architectural firm assisting the board in developing alternatives and the financial firm offering bonding consultation will be in attendance at the Tuesday evening meeting.

"It is often difficult for us as school board members to obtain a general public expression of the direction which the district should be taking in its educational or facilities programs," stated Larry McDowell, chairman of the board of education.

"We know that our district has had to spend large sums of money on building repair and maintenance because of the age and condition of some of the facilities. Some portions of the Lincoln high school complex have been closed to student use because they could be potentially unsafe and one building — Old Washington — was removed this summer.

"Our studies and the evaluations done for us as your elected board would indicate that action must be taken soon to bring our

Teachers At MCC Request Arbitration

Marshall county central education association voted unanimously at meetings in Viking and Newfolden September 25 and 26 to file for arbitration.

Negotiators for the MCCEA and the school board have been meeting since April to discuss the master teaching contract for the next two-year period. Negotiators for the school board are Larry Bjorsness, Dave Bakke and Tom Yutrezenka. Representing the teachers are Doug Safar, Nicki Almquist, Carol Peterson and Odette Bendickson.

When little progress was made, the negotiating team for the teachers filed for mediation in late June. The two teams, however, continued to meet to try to resolve their differences with little success.

Mediation session was held in Warren on September 19 with Warren Sandquist from the bureau of mediation services as mediator. The two teams were unable to reach a satisfactory agreement.

Doug Safar, chief negotiator for the teachers, presented the available information and his negotiation team's recommendation that MCCEA file for arbitration. A vote by secret ballot showed 100 per cent in favor of this recommendation. MCC will now join Stephen which is awaiting an arbitration settlement.

Compared with the schools that have already settled in the northwestern Minnesota are — Roseau, Warroad, Lake of the Woods, Red Lake Falls, Lancaster, Middle River, Alvarado, Argyle, Strandquist, Goodridge — with the school board's final offer, Marshall county central ranks below all but Strandquist and Goodridge in salary and below all in fringe benefits, Safar said.

MORE THAN 50YEARS of making people laugh have been crowded into the career of Al Ross, appearing Sunday in Thief River Falls with the Jose Cole's circus. Show times will be 2 and 5 p.m. at the sports arena. Circus sponsor is the Thief River Falls skating club.

MN. Good Roads Holds Public Meeting Oct. 7

Minnesota Good Roads, Inc., in cooperation with the Minnesota association of wheat growers, will be conducting a public meeting to try to answer the question: "What would roads say if they could talk?" Tuesday, October 9 at 7:30 p.m. in the wheat growers association headquarters building, Red Lake Falls.

MN-DOT commissioner Richard P. Braun, other MN-DOT personnel, local legislators and Minnesota good roads officials will attempt to inform people why many of our roads, streets and highways will not be reconstructed, rebuilt, or repaired — and ask for opinions on remedies available to correct the situation.

LHS Juniors Eligible For College Tests

Whitey Olson guidance counselor at Lincoln high school, has announced that juniors will be able to join over one million other students around the world in taking the Preliminary Scholastic aptitude test and National Merit scholarship qualifying test (PSAT-NMSQT) this fall. The test, cosponsored by the college board and national merit scholarship corporation, is an important step in making college plans.

Scheduled for Saturday, October 27, at Lincoln high school, the PSAT-NMSQT measures verbal and mathematical aptitude.

Commended By Merit Program

COMMENDED STUDENTS in the National Merit scholarship association competition are (left to right) Marissa Johnson, Vicki Gustafson and Kathy Paulson of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls. The designation ranks them among the top five per cent of the more than one million students who took the National Merit scholarship association qualifying test.

Frank Hamerlinck, Lincoln high school principal, announced today that three seniors at Lincoln have been named commended students in the 25th annual National Merit scholarship program.

A letter of commendation from the school and National Merit scholarship corporation (NMSC) was presented to Vicki Gustafson, Marisa Johnson and Kathy Paulson in recognition of outstanding performance on the PSAT-NMSQT, the qualifying test for the merit program that was administered nationwide to high school juniors in October 1978.

Of the more than one million students entering the competition, about 35,000 throughout the United States are being commended for test performance that placed them among the top five per cent of participants. Although commended students rank below the level required for merit program semifinalists — the only participants who

Mosbeck and Loeffler Marriage Vows Spoken

Wedding vows were exchanged recently in an afternoon ceremony at the Black River Lutheran church in rural St. Hilaire between Kristine Marie Mosbeck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Veral Mosbeck, and Timothy Scott Loeffler, son of Elgin and Gladys Loeffler, all of Thief River Falls.

Officiating at the ceremony was Reverend Keith Prekker. Organist was Mrs. Donald Mosbeck, an aunt of the bride, who played the traditional wedding march. Vocalists were Nancy Ricci and Diane Mosbeck, cousins of the bride, and, also Peter Mosbeck, brother of the bride, and Stu Peterson, friend of the couple. Selections included "Time In a Bottle," "Songbird", "Evergreen", and "Lord's Prayer".

Candelabra graced with floral decorations outlined the front of the church. Floral arrangement accented the altar and organ.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a white, floor-length gown, fully gathered in the back. The gown featured long sheer sleeves and an empire waistline. Lace accented the U-shaped neckline, bodice, sleeves and hemline. A floral headpiece of stephanotis and sprengeri held her sheer, mid-length veil appliqued with lace flowers. She carried a cascading style bouquet of Phalaenopsis orchids, babies' breath, stephanotis, and greenery.

Cindy Mosbeck of Red Lake Falls, attended her sister as maid-of-honor. Other bridesmaids were friends of the couple, Shelley Mathson, Tammy Johnson and Michelle Kraemer, all of Thief River Falls. Their identical mint-green gown featured accordian skirts and drape necklines, highlighted by cap sleeves and bows at the empire waistline. Attendants carried bouquets of silk beige roses, white lilies, and mint-green carnations with fresh foliage.

Flowergirl for the wedding was Nicole Loeffler of Fargo, a niece of the groom. She wore a long white dress with green ribbon accents.

Best man for his brother's wedding was Bob Loeffler of Thief River Falls. Groomsmen were Gordie Markstrom Bob Stoffel, and Brad Brouse of this city, friends of the couple. Tony Loeffler, brother of the groom, Paul Mosbeck and Peter Mosbeck of Red Lake Falls, both brothers of the bride, served as ushers. They wore beige tuxedoes with dark brown trim, white shirts, and tinted green carnation boutonnieres. The groom was attired in an all white tuxedo and his boutonniere consisted of stephanotis, babies' breath, and salal and spengeri greens.

Damien Boutlette, a friend of the couple, carried the rings. He wore a miniature tuxedo, identical to those of the groomsmen.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Mosbeck chose a floor-length gown of peach floral print with cap sleeves, empire waistline, and scoop neckline. Mrs. Loeffler selected an aqua floral pring floor-length with a matching sheer cape. Both had identical corsages of Phalaenopsis orchids, stephanotis, babies' breath, and greens.

Other honor guests included Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Mosbeck, Mrs. Auggie Anderson, and Mrs. Mary Loeffler, grandparents of the couple.

Mrs. Ray Mosbeck and Wendy Noreen were the bride's personal attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Hallstrom, uncle and aunt of the bride served as host and hostess for the reception that followed, given by friends from the church. Approximately 300 guests attended. Centering the serving table was a three-tiered wedding cake separated by pillars. Sild green and white flowers decorated the cake, and fresh foliage surrounded the base. Bells from the bride's parents' wedding highlighted the upper tier. Mrs. Oscar Mosbeck and Mrs. Florence Anderson, grandmothers of the couple, cut the cake. Coffee was poured by Mrs. Bud Zimple, godmother of the bride, and Mrs. Darrell Bakke, an aunt of the groom. Punch was ladled by Mrs. Kathy Loeffler and Mrs. Judy Loeffler, sisters-in-law of the groom while Peggy King registered guests. Joni Mosbeck, Tina Kruse, Pam Smsky and Brenda Smsky served as waitresses. Gifts were arranged by Billy Olson and Scott Blankenfeldt.

After a wedding trip to the Black Hills and the Colorado Rocky Mountains, the couple is at home in Red Lake Falls, Rt. 2.

Both the bride and groom are graduates of Lincoln High School. The groom is employed at Hydra-Mac and the bride at Hall's Floral.

Malnutrition Decreased By Food Programs

"Our first and overwhelming impression is that there are fewer grossly malnourished people in this country today than there were 10 years ago... where visitors 10 years ago could quickly see large numbers of stunted, apathetic children with swollen stomachs, and the dull eyes and poorly healing wounds characteristic of malnutrition — such children are not to be seen (now) in such numbers."

This was the conclusion of Field foundation medical teams, who recently revisited poverty stricken areas of the country to learn whether there were fewer hungry Americans than 10 years before. In their initial survey in 1967, the foundation's doctors found evidence of serious malnutrition. They subsequently shocked the nation with their report of hunger in America.

In their 1967 report to Congress they stated, "Wherever we went and wherever we looked we saw children in significant numbers who were hungry and sick, children for whom hunger is a daily fact of life... The children we saw were more than just malnourished. They were... weak, apathetic. Thier lives are being shortened... They are suffering from hunger and disease, and ... They are dying from them ... which is exactly what 'starvation' means."

Congress responded to their concerns by enacting more than a dozen food aid laws in the ensuing 10 years, expanding and improving federal food programs. It is these programs that have alleviated hunger, the doctors said, and not a general improvement in living standards or a decrease in unemployment. Actually, they noted, "the facts of life for Americans living in poverty remain as dark or darker than they were 10 years ago. But in the area of food there is a difference." The doctors praised the food stamp program, Head Start, school lunch and breakfast programs and the women, infants and children (WIC) feeding programs as being instrumental in alleviating hunger.

Fashion Meet For Interested Women Thurs.

Purchasing new fall fashions will require careful thought by most women who have a limited clothing budget this year. In order to help women select clothing and fabrics they enjoy wearing, the Pennington county extension service is offering an afternoon seminar Thursday at 1:30 p.m. in the courthouse meeting room in Thief River Falls.

"The Look You Like in Clothing" will be led by Lois Goering, extension clothing and textiles specialist at the University of Minnesota. There will be a variety of activities during the afternoon in which women will respond to various clothing designs, colors, body types and fabrics and determine what their personal preferences are.

Women participating in this seminar should complete the afternoon with a personal profile of clothing preferences to make wardrobe planning an easier task.

Deborah Metero, Pennington county extension agent, asks that participants wear a favorite outfit to this seminar which is offered free of charge to all interested women.
